THE TIMES came to us for a week, and it was generally approved, but the consensus of opinion was that it could not compete with its established rivals.

But week by week it grew in favor and strength, and after a year it was found fitted to survive, and I continued to read it until in 1858 I went South, and in 1861 found the New York papers no longer accessible, but resumed in 1865, and recall with pleasure the kindly spirit of conciliation which pervaded its columns and made it a welcome visitor where many other Northern papers were sources of irritation.

It was always clean, interesting, and instructive, and I resumed my reading with pleasant memories of the days when the Union did not require restoring, but was dear to all who lived and flourished under the folds of the flag.

Secretary Shaw is on a friendly tour in the South, and in his non-partisan speeches is doing good service in exposing the iniquity of the Dingley system of robbery, for he deprecates discussion, fearing panic and disaster if free discussion is had. That was our view of the question of slavery in 1856. It is a safe proposition that any question which cannot be discussed without danger is evil, not good, so Mr. Shaw is unconsciously hastening the time and day when all tariffs will be done away and the people will exchange their products freely and without hindrance.

Here is common ground for meeting, a real restoration of the Union and the recognition of human brotherhood.

I wish for THE TIMES many years of continued good for the world and humanity. WILLIAM RILEY BOYD.

Fine Opening for Criminals.

From The London Telegraph.

PARIS, Sept. 26.—There is evidently a fine opening for criminals in the French penal colony of New Caledonia, in the West Pacific. Residents of that island who are in business or following agricultural pursuits have addressed a petition to the Colonial Minister, M. Clementel, asking him to send them out more convicts. The colonists of New Caledonia were formerly of a different opinion as to the value of convicts, for they once asked the Government not to transport all the penal servitude prisoners to their island. Consequently fewer convicts were dispatched there of late years, and now the colonists find that they cannot do without the help of the condemned criminals, whom they are, in fact, ready to receive with open arms.

How a "Public Utility" Is Worked.

From The Louisville Courier-Journal.

A contemporary agrees with the Courier-Journal that "the Government management of the Government printing at Washington throws a strong sidelight on the consequences of Government control of public utilities. It costs the Government about $7,000,000 per year to get about $4,000,000 worth of work done." And it might be added that the Government, simply because it runs a printing office with public funds, does more than twice the amount of printing that there is any occasion for, thus greatly increasing the amount of "graft" supplied the politicians by that remarkably conducted concern.

Better Dressed in the West.

From The San Francisco Chronicle.

The manager of the National Dressmakers' Association declares that for well-dressed women New York is not in it with the cities of San Francisco and St. Louis. The metropolis is inclined to look down upon her sister cities, but occasionally she hears the truth about herself. When she does it is usually told by outsiders.

On a Missionary Basis.

From The Springfield Republican.

Before the American people are through with this life insurance problem the Beck-McCurdy view may be accepted, that the business is of a Christian missionary character, and compensation for conducting it will then be reduced to the level obtaining in other missionary and charitable work.

The "Wall Street Candidate?"

From The Baltimore Sun.

Those who were wont to call Judge Parker the "Wall-Street candidate" last year might learn something by reading the testimony concerning campaign contributions in the insurance investigation.

THE STRIKE BILL.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The appalling dishonesty revealed in the management of large corporations does not compare in my judgment with the monumental iniquity of the so-called "strike bills" in our Legislature. Please turn the limelight upon them. Let us have through the press the fullest publicity given to these iniquitous measures that the public may know the men responsible for them. Almost every corporation is attacked seemingly for blood money, and immunity from attack comes at a high cost, which the great business concerns are constantly paying and from which corrupt Legislatures grow fat. Is it true that our Legislatures can be thus influenced? That bills are planned for no other purpose than the extortion of money? Turn on the light. Let some commission examine the Legislature. The people want to know. ENQUIRER.

ANOTHER ROCKEFELLER TEXT.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I must say that I do not sympathize with the people who have been writing to THE TIMES protesting against devoting so much space to the sayings and doings of Mr. J. D. Rockefeller. I think his addresses to the Sunday school children of his church and on other occasions are highly entertaining. There is no doubt that THE TIMES is adding to the gayety of nations by giving them a wide circulation.

When I read about his quoting the first verse of the Twenty-third Psalm in one of his Sunday school talks recently it occurred to me that he might have repeated another verse of the same Psalm with good effect. It is this: "Thou anointest my head with oil, my cup runneth over." C. G. BARROWS.

A "Mutual" Investigation.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

How "mutual" it all is! The young man explaining how he has expostulated—alas! in vain—to the old man about his excessive emoluments. The old man explaining how his dummies, in his absence and without his knowledge, forced upon him an addition to his salary.

This you might call "high finance." But when the old man also explains that it is not really finance at all, but philanthropy, in his zeal for which he consented to do violence to his own feelings, to the extent of accepting a meagre increase of 50 per cent. in his beggarly pittance of $100,000 a year, nausea overcomes wonder.

And when you discover, from his own testimony, that, since his salary was raised, he has made it a point not to know anything about the operations in particular of the departments for which he has such a "vast responsibility" in general, what are you going to say then? To meet the dramatic proprieties, the whole ought to conclude with a song and dance by the junior philanthropist—"Everybody Works but Father." WALL STREET.

Mixed on His Nationality.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I came to this country from Dublin, Ireland, in the year 1890, and in due course took out naturalization papers as an American citizen. I can trace my pedigree in Ireland as far back as the year 1500, but my family are, and always were, English in heart, English in religion, and English in name, I myself being an ex-soldier of the British Army.

Now, when asked by fellow-American citizens what my nationality was before I became an American, and I reply: "Irish," I am commiserated with as to my down-trodden country and told: "Oh! How you must hate England." I protest against it! I have Irish blood in my veins in plenty, and I'm proud of it; but I never was, or felt myself to be, down-trodden, and my last drop of blood would go for England to-morrow if she needed it. I don't carry a shillalah round with me or stick a pipe in my hat, nor did I ever see any one in Ireland who did do so. I'm an American now, but what was I? "ERLE" OF DUBLIN.

A Word for Mr. Comstock.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The article you published Oct. 10, "Comstock Gets After Pool," is certainly helpful as far as it goes in relieving fresh anxiety on the part of anti-vice workers. Many thousands of sincere, retiring people endeavor to promote higher standards of morality, but lack moral courage to render much aggressive service for the prevention of immoral influences over youth and the general public. Many true Christians are constantly fearful lest evil shall triumph over righteousness and honest endeavor, and that Anthony Comstock, who is one of the most aggressive workers, shall be proved an extremist, or overly grasping in his judiciary rights. Christian watchers who commit aggressive workers to the care and protection of the all-powerful compassionate heavenly Father, are grateful to you for publishing this defense by Anthony Comstock.

Another Punctuator Speaks.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

While exceptions may prove the rule, I hardly think that "G. A. W.'s" criticism of your suggestion as to deleting the comma before the final "and" in a phrase containing more than two substantives is sustained by the example he cites. In the statement "The following officers are to be elected: President, Vice President, Secretary and Treasurer" there is no doubt that four persons are intended, and that the comma is very properly deleted; for to have conveyed the impression that only three officers were to be elected, the wording, and not the punctuation, would have been affected, as follows: "President, Vice President and Secretary and Treasurer," the deleting of the comma occurring before the first "and."

Tall Figures.

From The Ottawa Free Press.

Sir Frederick Borden has visions of 1,000,000,000 bushels of wheat being produced in the West. This beats Dr. Saunders 850,000,000. The Hon. George E. Foster talks of 50,000,000 of people in Canada in a few years' time, and a recent distinguished English visitor chats glibly of 100,000,000. It is easy to talk in big figures, and men seem unable to think soberly with regard to the West.

Convincing Realism.

From The Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"Yes, indeed, he's a master of realism in art."

"Is he?"

"I should say he is. Why, he painted a railway tunnel so naturally that a young man who was looking at it with a young woman quite forgot himself and suddenly kissed her!"

Still a Good Thing.

From The Washington Star.

"Do you regard the political future of this country as secure?"

"Yes," answered Senator Sorghum, "I have thought the matter over, and I still consider politics an entirely safe investment."

The Family Joke.

From The Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"That young man who took $360,000 from a New York bank insists that he didn't steal it."

The Missouri Plan.

From The St. Louis Globe Democrat.

The plan advocated in Missouri is for each political party to have its own insurance company.

THE HALL OF FAME.

How the Names Are Chosen That Are to be Perpetuated Therein.

From The World Almanac.

March 5, 1900, the Council of New York University accepted a gift of $100,000, afterward increased to $250,000, from a donor whose name was withheld, for the erection and completion on University Heights, New York City, of a building to be called "The Hall of Fame for Great Americans." A structure was accordingly built in the form of a semi-circle, 500 feet long, 15 feet wide, and 170 feet high, connecting the University Hall of Philosophy with the Hall of Languages. Within the colonnade 150 panels, each 2 by 8 feet, are to be placed, to bear the names of Americans deemed the greatest in their respective fields.

Under the rules adopted only persons born on what is now United States territory and who shall have been dead ten or more years are eligible to be chosen. Fifteen classes of citizens were recommended for consideration, to wit: Authors and editors, business men, educators, inventors, missionaries and explorers, philanthropists and reformers, preachers and theologians, scientists, engineers, and architects, lawyers and Judges, musicians, painters and sculptors, physicians and surgeons, rulers and statesmen, soldiers and sailors, distinguished men and women outside the above classes. Fifty names were to be subscribed on the tablets at the beginning, and five additional names every fifth year thereafter, until the year 2000, when the 150 inscriptions will be completed. Should there be a failure to select the entire fifty names at the beginning the vacancies shall be filled in a following year.

The rules prescribed that the Council should invite nominations from the public. Every nomination seconded by a member of the University Senate should be submitted to an electorate of one hundred eminent citizens selected by the Council, each of whom must vote for fifty of the candidates.

In October, 1900, the University Senate received the ballots of the Judges. Of the one hundred Judges selected ninety-seven voted. The number of names which had been submitted to them was 252. Of these each Judge returned a vote for fifty. This rule required that no candidate receiving less than fifty-one votes should be accepted. The returns showed that but twenty-nine candidates received this required number and were chosen. These were as follows: George Washington, Abraham Lincoln, Daniel Webster, Benjamin Franklin, Ulysses S. Grant, John Marshall, Thomas Jefferson, Ralph Waldo Emerson, Henry W. Longfellow, Robert Fulton, Washington Irving, Jonathan Edwards, Samuel F. B. Morse, David G. Farragut, Henry Clay, Nathaniel Hawthorne, George Peabody, Robert E. Lee, Peter Cooper, Eli Whitney, John J. Audubon, Horace Mann, Henry Ward Beecher, James Kent, Joseph Story, John Adams, William E. Channing, Gilbert Stuart, and Asa Gray.

It was decided to select the remaining twenty-one names of the first fifty in 1902, under the same rules, but as the official book was not ready until late in 1901, the Senate reconsidered its action and decided to do no more than it was required to do by the deed of gift, namely, to fill the vacant panels in 1905. At that time, therefore, twenty-six panels will be filled. All names which received as many as ten votes on the first trial can be voted for. The same judges will act, save that unavoidable vacancies will be filled by the Senate. Provision will be made for an additional hall having thirty panels, to contain the names of foreign-born Americans. Six names for these will be chosen in 1905. Also for a Hall of Fame for women, with sixty panels, for which twelve names will be chosen in 1905, two to be foreign born.

QUERY FOR THE CASUISTS.

What to Do with Unsolicited Milk—Might Ask the Milkman.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I am in perplexity, so remembering the moral discussions of THE TIMES I write to you. The pint of milk which constitutes my breakfast was rendered unfit for use this morning by three milk tickets which I found stuck fast to the jar's bottom after I had drunk the milk. I washed the glass jar hurriedly, and with a fresh ticket by its side left it as usual for my careless milkman. Apparently he found three tickets in the jar and one outside, for I found on my return from the day's duties four pints of milk. Now what ought I to do?

I cannot return the milk. It would be sour when the milkman comes again. If I drink it must I in equity pay for it? In despair I have given the milk to an aged neighbor, explaining how I obtained it. Will her use of it injure her soul? Help! J. B.

Cover the Deadly Third Rail.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Manhattan elevated lines, the Subway, and the Long Island Railroad have all covered their third rails, and at stations have removed the third rail to the side of the track furthest from the platform, for the protection of the public and incidentally guarding against injury suits. What is the influence at work that permits the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company continually and persistently to defy the public and ignore their safety in this regard. It, of course, would never occur to the State Railroad Board to take any action—not they.

Those Morningside Rats Won't Down.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Why a disinterested or even an interested reader of THE TIMES should try to explain away those Morningside rats as the hallucination of a maniac or of a victim of delirium tremens, is hard to understand; but as those rats are unmindful of the question of veracity raised with so much animosity and wit by your correspondent, if a TIMES representative would spend some ten minutes or so at the place named, he would see the rats and find out that the only truth contained in the hilingual statement of "Luege Mensonge" is the most appropriate and fitting nom de plume he chose to adopt as a characterization of the contents of his letter. Those Beardless Angels.

From The Richmond Times-Dispatch.

This is not a new question at all. It was long since settled by a distinguished divine, the Right Rev. Richard H. Wilmer, late Bishop of Alabama, who was remarkable at once for his piety and his humor. When some one asked him why it was that the pictures and figures of men angels, as well as female angels, were represented without beards, the Bishop replied promptly that it seemed to be easy enough to make angels out of women, but that men could only get into heaven by a "close shave."

OTHER TIMES, OTHER CUSTOMS.

"My angel," wrote the lover
Unto the Boston girl,
"For you alone I'm living—
You set my brain a-whirl.
Tho happy day I'm waiting,
My angel and my pearl."

"Dear Sir," thus ran her answer,
"Abjure your foolish pen.
I've told you many times, Sir,
What now I say again:
The clergy have decided
That angels all are men."

HE HAS FOUR WIVES AND WOULD HAVE MORE

Binniker, Who Once Wore Uniforms, Looked So Fine.

TWO WIVES MET BY CHANCE

Compared Notes and Had Him Arrested—As He's Held for Trial a Fiancee Appears.

Robert Leroy Binniker, once a soldier, then a sailor, looked so well in uniform that four women seem to have married him, regardless of results. Two of them appeared in the Jefferson Market Court yesterday, because, as was brought out at the hearing, their mothers thought something ought to be done to the fascinating Binniker. A fifth woman hovered about the courtroom making eyes at him. She said she was not married to the prisoner yet, but was engaged to be.

So far as could be discovered no anger and no jealousy rankled in the breasts of the women who know the truth about Binniker. Friends they were in girlhood, and friends they still remain.

The first intimation about Binniker reached Magistrate Cornell, in the Jefferson Market Court on Tuesday afternoon. There appeared in court two women, who applied for a warrant for the man's arrest. One of them said she was Mrs. Emily Binniker, 20 years old, of 245 East Eighteenth Street; the other that she was Mrs. Norma Binniker, 19 years old, of 425 East Fifteenth Street. The Magistrate was forced to believe what they said when they produced two marriage certificates, which showed that both of them had been married by the pastor of St. Matthew's Lutheran Church, but that the clergyman had been slightly imposed upon by Binniker's juggling with his name—that in one instance he had used his middle name, and in the other his first one.

Norma further explained to the Magistrate that she had married Binniker in June last. She said that Binniker had long since left her. She added that she and Emily had been friends since girlhood, and that a few days ago she had gone to visit Emily at her Eighteenth Street home. There, she said, she had found not only her girl-friend, but also her husband. While she was at the house she said Emily happened by chance to catch a glimpse of a marriage certificate in Norma's handbag with the name of "Leroy Binniker" on it as the bridegroom. Emily said:

"Why, I didn't know you were married."

"Oh, yes," Norma answered. "Leroy is my husband."

This led to revelations and a family council. When Binniker got home that night from his work as painter his explanation consisted mostly of this:

"What are you going to do about it?"

He was arrested. When the case came up in court yesterday morning, the two women told the Magistrate that Binniker had taken time enough between the dates that he had married them to go to Fall River and marry a woman named Esther Enerdred, whom he brought to New York and introduced to Emily as his cousin. Norma also told the Magistrate that one night her husband had taken her to Chinatown, and that there he had spoken in a very familiar way to a woman whom she had since learned Binniker had also married.

While these revelations concerning Binniker were being made, his fiancée was looking through the iron grating which separates prisoners and witnesses from the spectators. She said her name was Jennie Wood. She repeated over and over again:

"I don't believe it; I don't believe that Robert would do such a thing!"

Magistrate Cornell, however, held him in $1,500 bail for trial. No sooner had this been announced than Norma fainted. She was caught by Emily, Binniker's other wife, who helped to resuscitate her friend.

Binniker then said:

"She knew I was married when she married me, and was willing to take a chance."

Binniker says he is 25 years old. He is smooth shaven, and has light blue eyes. There are thousands on the lower west side who look enough like him to be his brother.

"To-morrow Land" to Stay on the Road

Announcement came last evening from the office of Henry W. Savage that the reopening of the Garden Theatre Monday night with "To-morrow Land" had been indefinitely postponed. It was said on Broadway that "To-morrow Land" was to continue on the road.

"The Nazarene" Seen in Newark.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 11.—"The Nazarene," a new biblical drama by Hal Reid and Bertha Westbrook, produced by Lee Shubert, John C. Fisher, and Frank Perley, began its season in a crowded house to-night at the Empire Theatre. The story bears some resemblance to Wilson Barrett's famous play, "The Sign of the Cross."

The prologue is set at Golgotha, and the last act shows the triumph of Christianity. The Christ does not appear in the play.

Suit Over "The Two Orphans."

An action was begun yesterday in the United States Circuit Court by Kate Stevenson, who is Kate Claxton on the stage, against F. F. Proctor, the theatrical manager for $1,200 in royalties alleged to be due on the production of "The Two Orphans" on Oct. 12, 1903, by the Proctor stock company. She alleges that in 1902 the play was newly copyrighted and all rights transferred to the plaintiff.

Institute of Musical Art Opens.

Frank Damrosch, Director of the Institute of Musical Art, opened the institute's first session yesterday. More than 250 students from all parts of the country have enrolled, and there are a large number of applications awaiting action. The new school has an endowment of $500,000, the gift of James Loeb, and a large amount promised in addition.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Ex-President Grover Cleveland, Alton B. Parker, and Gen. Grant attended the performance of "Rip Van Winkle" at Wallack's last night. Rear Admiral Evans, his staff, and a hundred other officers were at the Lew Fields Theatre. The Duchess of Marlborough occupied a box at the Princess Theatre, where Margaret Anglin is playing in "Zira."

J. W. Barrie has cabled to Cecelia Loftus inviting her to go to London to play the title role in "Peter Pan," his last successful play.

Herbert Kelcey and Effie Shannon are soon to begin a starring tour under the management of Harry Sommers in Byron Ongley's play "The Rector's Garden" in which Robert Edeson appeared several seasons ago.

Lina Abarbanell, leading woman in "Fruhlingsluft," the comic opera at the Irving Place Theatre, was too ill to appear last night. The bill was changed to the comedy "Er und Sein Schwester."

Architects and contractors looked over the Hippodrome yesterday morning to get notions for a Hippodrome for Cleveland, Ohio.

Mrs. Leslie Carter's repertoire for the last two weeks at the Belasco Theatre is for the week of Oct. 30, "Zaza"; for the week of Nov. 6, Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, "Du Barry"; Thursday, "Adrea"; Friday and Saturday, "Zaza."

The special matinee of Florence Davis in "The Player Maid," announced to take place at the Hudson Theatre on Friday afternoon, has been changed to the Liberty Theatre.

Owing to the extensive arrangements preliminary to the production of "The Romance of a Hindoo Princess," no matinees will be given at the Hippodrome next week on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday. The spectacle will be produced on Wednesday evening.

THEY FOUGHT AND SHOOK.

And Justice Zeller Tells Sammy and Willie That's All Right.

Disorderly conduct and gathering a crowd was the ponderous charge preferred against Samuel Rodman and Willie Silinsky, when they were arraigned before Justice Zeller yesterday in the Children's Court. The policeman said that 2,000 persons had gathered at East Broadway and Pike Street the day before to see the boys fight. The boys had stripped to the waist, and their noses had bled before the police arrived.

"Well, well," said Justice Zeller, turning to the policeman, "was there any hitting below the belt or anything of that kind?"

"Not that I could see," he said.

Then Justice Zeller found that Sammy was 14 years old and Willie 12. Willie then told about the fight.

"It wasn't just a championship, Judge," he said. "This feller tells all the other boys in School 114 that he can lick any one in his class. I didn't feel sure that he was right, Judge, so I just took a chance."

"Well, what did you discover?" asked the amused Justice.

"He's pretty good, Judge, but I had him going when some one calls, 'Cheese it, cops,' and then he got in a soak when I wasn't looking."

"What is your grudge against this boy?" asked Justice Zeller.

"Ain't got any," said Willie. "We was just fightin' for fun. Oh, he's an all right kid, Judge."

"Are you ready to shake hands now?"

"We did that before we come in, but we'll do it over again," said Willie, and they did shake.

"I don't think that either of you boys is very bad," said Justice Zeller, "and there are worse ways of settling disputes than with fists, but don't use that style out in the public streets. Find a nice quiet place where there are no 'cops.' Then when you've settled it shake hands. Never bear malice. Now you can both go home."

HERBERT ROE ODELL WEDS.

Miss Ramsdell the Bride of the Ex-Governor's Eldest Son.

NEWBURG, Oct. 11.—The marriage of Miss Pauline Clarkson Ramsdell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Homer S. Ramsdell of Newburg, and Herbert Roe Odell, eldest son of ex-Gov. B. B. Odell, Jr., took place this afternoon at 4 o'clock at St. George's Church. The ceremony was performed by the rector, the Rev. John Huske, assisted by the Rev. Dr. O. Applegate, rector emeritus.

The bride was attended by Misses Maude Ramsdell and Vera Quaid of Newburg, Miss Margaret Post of Jersey City, and Misses Katharine Fowler and Rosalie Tone of New York. Mrs. Charles Millard of Newburg, her sister, was matron of honor.

Hatch, Mr. and Mrs. Simon Fleischmann, Raymond Bishop, Miss Elsie May, Dr. William Welch, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Hyde, and Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Gimbel.

PARSONS—SMYTH.

Miss Adelaide Douglas Smyth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Smyth of this city, was married yesterday afternoon at the Church of the Heavenly Rest to James Graham Parsons. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Anson Phelps Stokes of New Haven, assisted by the Rev. Parker Morgan, D. D. Miss Ethel C. Duryea was maid of honor, and Miss Dorothy Graham Thompson and Miss Elise Walker of Philadelphia were the bridesmaids. The best man was Henry Ivison Parsons, brother of the bridegroom, and the ushers were William H. White, John H. Inman, Louis H. Dos Passos, Eckley H. Stearns, Douglas Graham Smyth, and Lewis B. Franklin. A reception for the family and intimate friends was held after the ceremony at Delmonico's.

WEEKS—LIGHTHIPE.

Miss Alice Estelle Lighthipe, daughter of the Rev. Lewis H. Lighthipe of Orange, N. J., was married to Clifford Sims Weeks of Trenton in Christ Church, East Orange, last evening, by the bride's father. The maid of honor was Miss Marion Agnes Lighthipe, the sister of the bride, and the bride was given away by her brother, William Wilson Lighthipe. The best man was Malvin Harry Weeks, a brother of the bridegroom, and the ushers were Frederick H. Brace, Jr., William Musehert, and Dr. Archibald Bolce of Trenton, and Harry Voorhees of New York.

CRATER—HOBART.

EAST ORANGE, Oct. 11.—The wedding of Miss Agnes Victoria Hobart, daughter of Mrs. John W. Hobart, to Robert Martin Crater took place this afternoon at the home of the bride's mother, 102 Glenwood Avenue. The Rev. Dr. John Fulton Patterson, pastor of the Central Presbyterian Church, performed the ceremony. The maid of honor was Miss Eleanor Tunis Burr, and the best man Scott M. Martin of Newton. The ushers were Norman F. S. Russel and Edward Preston Lee of East Orange. The bridegroom is a New York lawyer.

RUSH—WRIGHT.

The marriage of Miss Jennie Gibson Wright of New York to Howard Merritt Rush of Westfield, N. J., took place yesterday in the chantry of Grace Church. The bride was given away by her father, Tobias A. Wright. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Harris C. Rush, father of the bridegroom. The bridegroom's sister, Miss Elizabeth L. LILLIAN RUSSELL SUING THE SHUBERT BROTHERS

Wants a Share of the Profits of the "Lady Teazle" Tour.

SHE GOT ONLY $700 A WEEK

Less Than She Has Received Since She Began "Twenty?" "Yes, Twenty Years Ago."

In her dressing room at Proctor's Twenty-third Street Theatre Lillian Russell told last night of a suit she has brought against the Shubert Brothers for a share of the profits in "Lady Teazle."

Edna Wallace Hopper was with Miss Russell at the time. When it came to a point of law in the interview Miss Hopper requested that she be appealed to.

"Ask me, I know all about law," she said. "Yes, this is to be a civil suit."

"Mr. Klein, the counsel for the Shuberts, was served to-day with papers in the suit by my counsel, Edward Lauterbach," Miss Russell began. "And mark you, this is my first suit against a theatrical manager.

"I have never had any trouble. All my managers before have paid me with just one exception. In that case the manager said he could pay me, but he couldn't pay the chorus. He did pay me, and he didn't pay the chorus. I did pay the chorus, and the manager said he would make it good with me, but he never did. It was my loss. I never sued him.

"When I signed with the Shuberts for 'Lady Teazle' it was agreed that I should get a low salary and half the profits. Well, I never got half the profits. I played for a salary lower than I ever played for since—since—"

Miss Russell closed one eye, held up her finger, and said deliberately:

"Since I began, twenty years ago."

"It was $700 a week, and I have never played for less than $1,000 for twenty years back," she continued. "The Shuberts didn't treat me right in other respects. They billed me for matinées impossible to a singer. One of these, for example, was at Hartford, on Thanksgiving Day. I had notified them long before hand that I would not sing there, but instead of canceling the date, Lee Shubert telegraphed on to his representative: 'Fix it with Russell.'

"Well, he couldn't fix it with Russell. I keep my word the same as a man does. All these things Lee Shubert is urging against me. I have failed to find that that man has any aptitude for business. At any rate, I have been unable to get any satisfaction out of him. As near as I can make out, after going to various persons, is that they made no profits out of my tour.

"Now, I know different. From my books and accounts it is clear that they owe me at least $20,000, having done a business of about $200,000, with a profit of $40,000. My agreement with them was that I was to get half the profits.

"But that is not all. The Shuberts are playing 'Lady Teazle' on tour, and I am going to establish my rights to an interest in that production. I understand it is very profitable."

Lee Shubert was said to be in Philadelphia last night. Channing Pollock, his representative, said:

"Miss Russell evidently thinks she has a case. We think she has not."

FUNERAL OF MR. NIXON.

Special Train Will Carry Colleagues and Others to Westfield.

WESTFIELD, N. Y., Oct. 11.—It has been decided to hold the funeral of Speaker S. Fred Nixon on Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Presbyterian Church. The Rev. George L. McClellan, the pastor, will officiate. The services will be brief.

The Speaker's youngest son, who was attending school at Cornwall-on-the-Hudson, arrived this morning.

ALBANY, Oct. 11.—It is expected that nearly all the State officers and a large majority of the members of the Senate and Assembly will attend Speaker Nixon's funeral. Assemblyman Rogers, Republican leader in the House, and Clerk Baxter of the Assembly to-day arranged for a special train, which will leave New York over the New York Central Thursday at 10 P. M. and pick up various persons along the way, arriving at Westfield at 1 P. M. Friday.

On account of the lack of hotel facilities at Westfield the train will leave at 6 P. M., reaching New York again Saturday morning at 8 A. M.

The Executive Committee of the Legislative Correspondents' Association met to-day and took action on the death of Mr. Nixon. President George E. Griffin designated this committee to attend the funeral: Justin McGrath, Louis Seibold, and Frank H. Simmonds, New York; George M. Janorin, Brooklyn; George E. Griffin, John P. Gavit, and Albert E. Hoyt, Albany; Willard A. Marakle, Rochester, and George T. Wight, Buffalo.

WHAT IS DOING IN SOCIETY.

There are many informal dinners and theatre parties in town, the first being entirely at the fashionable restaurants. The participants are either in town for the day and evening only or are passing through to the Hot Springs, the Long Island resorts, or to estates up the Hudson. Many gay house parties are being enjoyed. Mrs. Ogden Mills being a notable hostess.

The engagement announced at Newport of Miss Mary Honey, daughter of Samuel R. Honey, to Josiah Quincy of Boston and formerly Mayor of that city, is of general interest. Mr. Quincy is a widower, his late wife having died about nine month ago. Mr. Quincy was Assistant Secretary of State in the second Administration of President Cleveland. His fiancée's father is also a politician, having been Lieutenant Governor of Rhode Island and Mayor of Newport. He is a lawyer and was retained by Mrs. Hollis Hunnewell when she was Mrs. Arthur Kemp to procure her divorce. Mrs. Honey's mother, who has been dead for some years, was Miss Mary J. B. Edwards. Miss Honey has been out in society a number of years and has traveled extensively. Mr. Quincy is a man in middle life. No date has been set for the wedding, but it is expected to take place privately soon.

Mlle. des Portes de la Fosse, who was one of the attendants of Miss Edith Clapp when she was married to the Count de Rougemont, will remain in France with her mother until the end of January, when M. and Mme. des Portes de la Fosse and Mlle. des Portes de la Fosse will return to Washington. The Henry Mays have been visiting them in France.

Ralph Pulitzer gave his bachelor dinner at Sherry's last night. His guests included his best man and brother, Joseph Pulitzer, Jr., and his ushers, Duncan Harris, Phoenix Ingraham, Charles Draper, Thomas E. Crimmins, Allan Davis, F. Otway Byrd, and J. Watson Webb. Mr. Pulitzer's marriage to Miss Frederica Vanderbilt Webb, only daughter of Dr. W. Seward Webb and Mrs. Webb, will take place on Saturday at Shelburne, Vt. Mr. Pulitzer and his attendants will leave to-day for Shelburne, and a special train with other guests is to leave New York to-morrow. A large detachment of waiters and other extra help go up to-day to the Webb place, being sent by Sherry, to take charge of the catering at Shelburne Farms for three days, leaving the Webb servants free to celebrate the wedding, for there is to be a ball for the servants and other diversions as well.

Gilbert-Harrison Engagement.

The engagement is announced of Miss Marie Louise Harrison, a daughter of Jared F. Harrison of New York, to Joseph T. Gilbert of Gilbertsville, N. Y. Miss Harrison is a sister of Mrs. Arthur Turnure. Her mother was Miss Carolyn Farnsworth, a daughter of Chancellor Farnsworth of Michigan. Miss Harrison is an expert golfer and she and her sister, Mrs. Turnure, have won numerous trophies at championship matches.

Mr. Gilbert is a member of the historic family which founded the town of Gilbertsville in this State.

BABES IN 7TH AVENUE WOODS.

How Susie Dodds Saved the Metz Twins, Who Were Lost.

Policeman Knerran was walking along Seventh Avenue near Thirtieth Street last night when he met a little girl leading two little boys by the hand. They were much bedraggled by the downpour and all three were crying.

"What's the matter?" inquired the policeman. "Are you lost?"

"I ain't," replied the girl, who was the fraction of an inch taller than her companions. "I ain't, but these boys are. I'm Susie Dodds, 7 years old, and I live at 372 West Thirty-third Street. I'm just trying to help the boys find their way home."

"And who are the boys?" asked Knerran.

"We're Valentine and Charlie Metz," they chorused.

"Well, which is Valentine and which is Charlie?" pursued the policeman. "I'm blessed if I could tell you apart."

"They ain't nobody can tell us apart," sobbed the youngsters. "We're twins, 6 years old."

Then Susie took up the story and told in a motherly way how Valentine and Charlie had stopped away from their home to sail make-believe boats down the Seventh Avenue gutter when it rained so hard that the street was awash. The current ran so fast and the water roared so that they lost account of time and distance, until at last they realized they were lost. Then Susie came to the rescue.

Knerran took the children to the station, and Matron Rose Bailey made them dry and comfortable and sent out for good things to eat. After that Susie was sent home and Valentine and Charlie were sent to Police Headquarters to await their parents.

35 YEARS ON BROADWAY.

George H. Neale, Whose Place Was a Landmark at 43d Street, Is Dead.

Broadway has lost one of its well-known characters by the death yesterday morning of George Henry Neale. He was 76 years old, and for thirty-five years had kept the little one-story hat and fur shop at the southeast corner of Broadway and Forty-third Street. He lived in the rooms in the rear of the establishment. In that period he saw a rudely constructed road develop into one of the finest business thorougfares in the world. The old-fashioned two and three story dwelling houses were transformed into colossal steel and stone structures which towered above his little store.

Mr. Neale was born in New York and never had any desire to leave here. Many years ago a friend lured him to a theatre, but he only sat out the first act and then walked out. He never went again, as he said that theatres had no interest for him. His only recreation was to chat over old times with his neighbors and smoke a mild cigar occasionally. Persons who had lived in the neighborhood years ago would come and talk with the old man. He remembered them all.

On the fine days he would sit at his shop door and gaze at the passing stream of humanity and wonder where they all came from. For the last five years Mr. Neale had been ill and his wife carried on the business. He suffered from rheumatism and deafness, which kept him from waiting on customers.

At 8 o'clock yesterday morning Mr. Neale got up out of bed and said he wanted to breathe the fresh air. He looked out on Broadway for a few minutes and then went back to bed and died. The immediate cause of death was heart failure. The funeral will be held at Woodlawn Cemetery to-morrow.

Mrs. Neale will cary on the business of selling hats and renovating furs as in her husband's lifetime. Mr. Neale was married twice. He had children living by the first marriage, but none by the second.

BADLY HURT WHILE KISSING.

Guerin, Overjoyed at Rejoining Brother, Was Hurled from Auto.

Special to The New York Times.

ORANGE, Oct. 11.—Daniel Guerin of 809 West Forty-eighth Street, New York, was probably mortally injured last night in an automobile accident out in South Orange Township. Guerin was riding in an automobile with his brother, John Guerin, chauffeur for Mrs. George Bliss of Bernardsville, N. J., and, according to John, lost his balance and fell out of the car while he was trying to kiss John. The two had not seen each other for a long time.

"It was just pure brotherly love, nothing else," said John Guerin to-day. "While we were passing through Hilton my brother, who was seated beside me, arose and put his arms around my neck and kissed me. I cautioned him to be careful, for we were going fast. He went to sit down again, and the machine gave a sudden swerve. Daniel pitched out, landing on his head."

The Colorado's Guns Made a Record.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—The statement was made at the Navy Department to-day that the armored cruiser Colorado at her first target practice recently made a record with her six-inch guns which had never before been equaled, and was accomplished without derangement of her sights. This is regarded as the more remarkable because it was the first time the Colorado had fired her guns in target practice, and because her gun crews were but newly organized.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—During the last twenty-four hours a general and decided drop in temperatures has occurred east of the Mississippi except in New England. In connection there has been rain in the Middle and South Atlantic States, New England, and thence westward to the lake region. The first snow of the season over Upper Michigan and Northern Minnesota fell during to-day.

The area of low pressure central Tuesday night in Tennessee and the Upper Ohio Valley has moved eastward, the southern portion passing over the Atlantic and the northern portion occupying Western New England. During the next twenty-four hours this storm will cause rain in New England, followed by clearing weather Thursday afternoon or night. It will be colder in Eastern New York and New England Thursday and low temperatures will prevail generally east of the Mississippi during the next day or two.

Steamers departing Thursday for European ports will have fresh northwest winds and cloudy weather to the Grand Banks.

FORECAST FOR TO-DAY AND FRIDAY.

Eastern New York, New Jersey, Eastern Pennsylvania, and Delaware—Fair and colder Thursday. Friday, fair; brisk northwest winds.

New England—Rain and colder Thursday. Friday, fair; brisk southeast, shifting to northwest winds.

Western Pennsylvania—Fair and continued cool Thursday. Friday, fair and warmer; fresh northwest to west winds.

6 A. M.	67	60	6 P. M.	70	65
9 A. M.	68	62	9 P. M.	63	49
12 M.	77	62	12 P. M.	61	48

The thermometer registered 61 degrees at 8 A. M. and 65 degrees at 8 P. M. yesterday, the maximum temperature being 66 degrees at 5:15 P. M. and the minimum 48 degrees at 7 P. M. The humidity was 74 per cent. at 8 A. M. and 92 per cent. at 8 P. M.

A FOOTBALL CONGRESS, SCHURMAN SUGGESTS

WALTER CAMP'S STATEMENT

Conferrees Agreed to Urge Strict Enforcement of Rules—Cornell's Coach Suggests Changes.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, Oct. 11.—Jacob Gould Schurman, President of Cornell University, made the following statement to-day on President Roosevelt's efforts to bring about reform in football:

"I believe in the retention of the game, but its brutality must be eliminated. The difficulty has been in finding some supreme central authority which could initiate reform with effect.

"President Roosevelt has all the qualifications for such effective initiation. His standing as a college man, his well-known devotion to athletics, his sensible comments on the football situation in his Harvard address, all mark him out as the man to lead in this movement of reform.

"I believe that what he finally recommends will be adopted by college athletes throughout the country. It might perhaps hasten the reformatory movement if a convention of the athletic representatives of the colleges and universities were summoned to meet in Washington."

Glenn S. Warner, Cornell's head coach, suggested two changes in the following statement:

"I think a very simple way to fix things would be to allow offside play on all punts; to let the ball be free after kicks, and to increase the distance to be gained in three downs from five to ten yards.

"As far as roughness goes, I think that this element of the game depends largely upon the coaches."

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 11.—Walter Camp, Yale's general athletic adviser, on receiving permission from President Roosevelt, to-night gave out a statement, signed by all the conferrees, as follows:

"At a meeting with the President of the United States it was agreed that we consider an honorable obligation exists to carry out in letter and in spirit the rules of the game of football relating to roughness, holding, and foul play, and the active coaches of our universities being present with us pledged themselves to so regard it and to do their utmost to carry out that obligation."

Stuart Wortley, the Artist, Dead.

LONDON, Oct. 11.—A. Stuart Wortley, founder and President ever since its foundation of the Society of Portrait Painters, died to-day. He was a brilliant marksman, and twenty years ago met the American crack shot, Dr. Carver, in a match at Hendon, when each dropped 86 out of 100 birds. Mr. Wortley painted many well-known pictures of shooting subjects. He was a pupil of the late Sir John Millais.

Obituary Notes.

JOSEPHINE ALTHANS, wife of Dr. Charles H. Althans of Brooklyn, died yesterday. She had lived in Brooklyn more than thirty-five years. She was a member of the Lafayette Avenue Presbyterian Church. Two daughters survive her.

Major DANIEL KEOGH, an old employe of the Dock Department, died yesterday at his home, 118 West 135th Street, after a long illness. Major Keogh is the father of Ross F. Keogh, who was chief clerk under Mayor Van Wyck, and later Secretary of the New York City Commission to the St. Louis World's Fair.

Two aspects of motoring—seeing a beautiful foreign land under the best auspices, and the romantic adventurous side—have been the especial work of Mr. and Mrs. Williamson, whose new book, "My Friend the Chauffeur" is—well, you just read it.

PLAGUED BY A DARK MAN.

He Orders Delicacies C. O. D., and Even Funerals for Roosevelt Hospital.

A tall, dark man, dressed in black with a white slouch hat and a belt from which hang two tassels, has been worrying Supt. Grimshaw of Roosevelt Hospital.

The man went into a candy store yesterday morning and ordered fifty boxes of bonbons to be sent to the hospital. Then he ordered fifty boxes of flowers from a florist. He visited a fruiterer, a baker, a wine merchant, and others and left an order with each. All were to be sent to Roosevelt Hospital C. O. D.

When the first half dozen delivery wagons had arrived and departed Supt. Grimshaw telephoned to the West Forty-seventh Street Police Station and Capt. Daly sent out detectives.

Late in the afternoon an undertaker's wagon drove up to the hospital and a man sitting with the driver said he had been sent for a body. Mr. Grimshaw told him there had been a mistake. A few minutes later another undertaker's wagon drove up. A light broke in on Mr. Grimshaw.

"Who sent you here?" he asked the driver.

"The boss," was the reply. "I was in the shop when the boss got the order from a dark man with a belt that had two tassels and a white slouch hat—"

"That's enough," cried Mr. Grimshaw, and made another trip to the telephone. "I want that man caught," he yelled, "and I'll prosecute him to the limit."

A general alarm has been sent out.

HARPER'S BOOK NEWS.

Rebecca Mary

Motherless little Rebecca Mary lived with her aunt—a situation which Annie Hamilton Donnell has developed into something that is quite out of the rut of everyday fiction. The story of this amiable, singular little girl and her unusual quest for affection, with its sweet pathos and delicate humor, is sure to prove a revelation to all men and women.

Deep affection for the little girl gradually takes possession of her aunt's stern heart and Puritan sense of duty. How it all came about—the part the big white rooster played in the little drama, and other novel incidents are charmingly described. The illustrations by Elizabeth Shippen Green add a distinctive touch to this beautiful volume.

Pole Baker

Pole Baker will be remembered as a humorous character in Will N. Harben's former novels. A shrewd, wayward, shirt-sleeves philosopher, in this new story he occupies the center of the stage, with some capital yarns to tell and a genius for meddling in other people's affairs to their own ultimate good. Without him the romance of the young lovers would not have ended so happily. The characters and scenes are again those of Georgia, as in "Abner Daniel" and "The Georgians," and the same good-humored, delightful narrative winds leisurely through this story as in its popular predecessors.

AUTO RACERS ANGRY AT AMERICAN DRIVERS

Foreigners Complain That White Steamer Blocked the Road.

MORRELL AS PEACEMAKER

Szisz Now Ranks Among Favorites—High Speed Records Doubtful Unless Sun Dries Up Course.

Automobile rivalry "broke out" yesterday on the Vanderbilt course to such an extent that serious international complications were at one time threatened. The trouble arose over what some of the foreign drivers have termed, although not in such polite language, the slow going tactics adopted by some of the American drivers while making practice rounds in the early hours of the morning.

Walter C. White, who drives the only steam car in the contest, was signaled out as "persona non grata" extraordinary to the foreigners, who are so deeply inoculated with the speed virus that an automobile seems useless unless it is reeling off miles at better than a sixty-second clip. White was accused of deliberately obstructing the road so that the speed annihilators could not smash each other's records. More than one Frenchman, and the Italians, too, as they related their woes in excitable language, told how out on the Guinea road, where the driving space is narrow and thick woods bang over on either side, they had seen the White steamer leisurely moving along ahead of them. The foreign machines approached it, the horns tooted, the loudest sibilants were uttered, but all to no avail; there was no room to pass and the procession had to move along at the steam car pace until a wider road was reached.

Szisz, whose name is somewhat expressive of the character of the language employed by the foreign drivers in protesting against this low (?) American act, Duray and the two Italians, Lancia and Nazarre, joined forces yesterday and went in a body to White's headquarters near Lakeville. It was impossible to ascertain exactly what the ultimatum was that the foreign delegation laid down to Mr. White, but in the various garages around the course it was reported later in the day that the threat was made to push White off into the ditch if he refused to make way for the big cars hereafter. It was a stormy meeting, and the language was more picturesque than refined, but verbatim reports are lacking.

This international squabble came to the ears of Chairman Robert Lee Morrell in course of time, and, while no formal protest was made to the head of the cup commission, it was very strongly implied that something ought to be done. Mr. Morrell, therefore, found the rôle of peacemaker thrust upon him. He questioned Mr. White regarding the trouble. The latter disclaimed any intention of purposely holding back the foreign cars, but admitted that certain sections in the back roads are so narrow that it is absolutely impossible for a car to pass the one ahead unless the latter runs off into the ditch and comes to a full stop. He always gave every possible assistance to machines to go by, he stated. Mr. Morrell was inclined to the same view.

racing Fiat was the second most important event of the day. It occurred early in the morning, when Sartori, its driver, was going around the Jericho turn. He had trouble with his transmission and broke his clutch, but Sartori had previously put on the brakes and stopped the car easily. A telephone message was at once sent to the Flat garage near Garden City, and an hour later a big touring car appeared on the scene and towed the crippled racer to the shop, where work began at once repairing it for Saturday's race. The accident is not serious, and the car will probably be in condition for practice over the route this morning.

Lancia made the best time of the morning for a single lap, covering the 28.3 miles in 25 minutes. Szisz added to the reputation he has already made as a wonderfully cool and consistent driver by making two rounds in about 26½ minutes each. This included stops of 1½ minutes on each round for practice in taking on water and gasoline. Szisz has made a careful study of every possible condition that may arise in the race, and, from a comparatively unknown man ten days ago, he has jumped close up to the favorites, Lancia and Hemery.

Foxhall Keene, who is getting his Mercedes admirably tuned up, made two rounds in fast time, 27 and 28 minutes respectively. Jenatzy made one round in 27:30, Nazzare went around in 27:10, Tracy in his Locomobile made his fastest round since practicing on the course, 27 minutes, and one of Walter White's rounds was said to have been equally as fast. The Christie car was driven by Robertson. Dingley watched the racers from his touring car, driving from one turn to another to observe the different methods of making the sharp curves. Wagner, Hemery, and Heath of the French team were out, but were content with conservative rounds.

Warden's cracked cylinders from his German car are in this city, where efforts are being made to repair them sufficiently to hold out through the race. It was impossible to state yesterday if this could be done, but the general impression is that the car will not start.

CHICAGO PRESS CLUB'S VISIT.

Nearly 100 Members Here—Called on President Roosevelt.

Nearly 100 members of the Chicago Press Club, many of them accompanied by their wives, arrived in this city at 9:45 o'clock last night in a special train over the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. They went to the Hotel Breslin, where they will remain for three days as guests of the New York Press Club.

The club has mapped out an elaborate programme of entertainment for its guests. This morning they will visit Ellis Island, where they will inspect the immigration depot as guests of the United States Government. In the afternoon they will visit Blackwell's Island. To-night they will be entertained at a banquet at the Press Club. To-morrow they will go sight seeing in automobiles in the forenoon, and, at noon will be received by Mayor McClellan at the City Hall. On Saturday they will visit the United States Military Academy at West Point. They start for home on Saturday night.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—President Roosevelt at noon to-day received a large delegation from the Chicago Press Club at the White House. Opie Read, who headed the delegation, introduced the members to the President as representatives of "that intellectual democracy, the Press Club of Chicago." He also said nice things about Mr. Roosevelt. The President responded briefly.

Jury on the Hopkins Killing.

A jury impaneled by Coroner Flaherty found last night that Mrs. Jessie Hopkins died as the result of a pistol wound inflicted by her husband, Denton H. Hopkins. The proceedings were purely formal. District Attorney Clarke of Kings County, who was present, announcing that he would not endeavor to go into the case in detail. Hopkins, his son, the latter's young wife from whom he is separated, and James W. Ridgway, their counsel, were present.

THE COMMERCIAL WORLD

WHEAT.—Speculative trade in wheat broadened out considerably yesterday, and the market had an advance of 1⅛ to 1¼c, mostly based on an improved cash demand both for domestic and export account, an advance of ⅛d at Liverpool, and more bullish home statistics. Sales of about 25 loads were reported on export account at various ports, while some dispatches noted a good export demand also for flour. Winnipeg dispatches, besides reporting prices up 2c a bushel since Monday, called attention to liberal export transactions. Clearances also picked up a good deal, the exports of flour being 49,000 barrels from seaboard points, and of wheat 240,000 bushels. Owing to receipts of only 605 cars at Northwest points the interior movement was 200,000 bushels smaller than last year. The leading bull interest at Chicago supported the market at times, and was also credited with selling considerable wheat on the bulges, although this was denied by the principal bull operator. The market advanced steadily throughout the day, closing at about the top. There was further gossip about the shortage of foodstuffs in Russia, which added to the bullish feeling on this side. Outside markets were all higher, and the Southwest bought considerable wheat at Chicago. Although world's stocks, according to Bradstreet's, showed an increase for the week of 9,249,000 bushels, it had little effect as a bear influence owing to the fact that in the corresponding week last year there was an increase of 9,198,000 bushels. The Minneapolis stock of wheat has increased thus far for the week 900,000 bushels. Continental markets were not so buoyant as Liverpool, although the Continent was reported a strong buyer of wheat at the former point. Paris closed 5 points higher, Berlin ½ mark lower, and Budapest 8 points down. Cash wheat was firm in New York, with No. 2 red 90⅝c elevator and 91⅝c free on board afloat; No. 1 Northern, Duluth, 93⅞c, and No. 1 Northern, Manitoba, 93⅝c, free on board afloat.

CORN.—The corn market was steady up to the last hour, without much change, but suddenly turned strong on a scare of shorts, and closed here ⅝ to ¾c net higher on the leading options. The frost in Western States did not appear to have much weight as a bull factor, as corn is pretty well beyond the danger line, but the export business of 55 loads all ports, together with seaboard clearances of 250,000 bushels, and the estimates of only 118 cars at Chicago for Thursday brought out a line of buying that quickly absorbed all the corn for sale.

COTTON.—Reports of frost in northwestern sections of the belt on Tuesday night, and predictions for frosts in exposed portions of the eastern belt and in parts of Arkansas and Mississippi, caused a good deal of covering yesterday, and the market had quite a sharp advance during the middle session, with prices at one time showing a recovery from lowest point of Monday of about 38 points. Yielding to realizing later, the market closed barely steady at a net gain of only 5@8 points. Sales were estimated at about 350,000 bales.

Liverpool was away above expectations, being influenced, apparently, by the frost talk. The local market opened 8@12 points higher in response, and worked up another point or two on the active months on covering and commission house demand. But local professionals had bought in anticipation of the cold weather, and as temperatures low enough to kill were only reported from two or three points in the territories, expectations that the cold snap would be followed by more seasonable weather caused considerable realizing and some fresh selling for short account. The market consequently reacted to within 1@2 points of last night's finals, but around midday was rallied again by the forecast pointing toward continued cold weather and a further demand through wire and commission houses. Advancing to a net gain of about 15@16 points, the market attracted realizing by early buyers, and toward the close the gain was cut down about one-half.

Southern spot markets were unchanged to 1-16c higher, generally higher, and the local spot market was advanced 5 points. Receipts for the day were heavy, but the estimated receipts for Houston to-day showed a considerable falling off and helped to confirm the private wires regarding a firmer tone among holders.

LIVERPOOL, Oct. 11.—Spot Cotton—Moderate demand; sales, 10,000 bales; speculation and export, 500 bales; American, 9,000 bales; receipts, 9,000 bales; American, 1,000 bales; middling upland, 5.35d. Futures opened steady, 9 points higher on near and 10 points higher on distant positions; closed steady at a net advance of 9@11 points; October and October and November, 5.28d; November and December, 5.32d; December and January, 5.36d; January and February, 5.39d; February and March, 5.41d; March and April, 5.44d; April and May, 5.46d; May and June, 5.48d; June and July, 5.50d; July and August, 5.51d. Manchester—Yarns and cloths quiet.

COFFEE.—The coffee market was again very quiet, but bullish crop advices caused some covering, and in spite of rather disappointing early cables the market ruled generally steady. Opening unchanged, there was an advance of a partial 5 points during the session, and the market closed dull, net unchanged to 5 points higher. Sales were reported of about 8,500 bags. A cable from Santos estimated that half of the Santos crop had been received. The amount received to date is 3,380,000 bags, thus pointing to a total Santos crop of about 6,750,000 bags, which with 3,500,000 bags allowed for Rio would indicate a total Brazilian of about 10,250,000 bags. Last season's yield was a little under 10,000,000 bags, and trade interests consider that a crop of only 10,250,000 bags this season would be followed by even a greater reduction in the world's surplus. The effect of this on prices would probably be governed to no small extent by the outlook for the coming crop. A few days ago there were complaints of damage from drought. These were followed by light rains. A cable received to-day stated that considerable more rain was required to bring the Santos yield to a favorable maturity. The European markets evidently paid no attention to the bullish Brazilian news. Hamburg was ¼ pfennig lower and Havre was ¼ franc higher on September, but generally ¼@½ franc lower. The rate of Brazilian exchange scored another advance, but Rio was 150 reis lower and Santos was barely steady. Receipts at the two ports were 85,000 bags against 57,000 bags last year.

The market for spot coffee was quiet, with quotations on the basis of 8 11-16c for Rio No. 7.

Less Insolvency Last Quarter.

The report of insolvencies for the third quarter of the year compiled by Dun's Review shows $20,329,443 as the total of commercial insolvencies during that period, as compared with $32,168,296 for the corresponding months in 1904. Commenting on this year's showing, Dun's Review says:

Classification of insolvencies for the third quarter according to branches of business shows that only four of the fourteen manufacturing occupations suffered heavier liabilities than last year, of which miscellaneous failures made the only striking increase. The other three were iron, chemicals, and liquors. On the other hand, there was notable improvement in machinery, cotton, lumber, glass, and earthenware, and smaller decreases in woolens, clothing, hats, printing, milling, and leather manufacturing.

BANKRUPTCY AUCTION SALES.

BY ORDER OF UNITED STATES DISTRICT Court, the assets of BERGER & WEISS will be sold at private sale to the highest bidder on Oct. 13th, 1905, at 3 P. M. Bids for the assets, which consist of two bakeries, at 71 Clinton Street and 40 Clinton Street, and a liquor saloon at 67 Riverdale Av., and two horses and wagons, all at Yonkers, N. Y., must be made by sending sealed bids to Henry M. Baird, Jr., 51 Warburton Av., Yonkers, N. Y., and 10% in cash or certified check must accompany each bid, and no bid will be accepted unless it equals the appraised value of the property; bids for each store separately will be acceptable. If no bid is accepted on the 13th, then the said assets will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder, under the rules of this Court, on the 16th day of October, 1905, at 11:00 A. M.

The stores will be sold separately. Sale of the liquor saloon will be held first at 67 Riverdale Av., and to be sold free and clear of all chattel mortgages, also to include the lease and license to the said premises.

If the sale does not bring a satisfactory price when sold in the above manner, the said property will be sold to the highest bidder, subject to a chattel mortgage, covering the fixtures, &c., held by the Ebling Brewing Co. amounting to $1,100. If enough is not realized, then all the right, title, and interest of the bankrupts in and to the property, lease and fixtures covered by the chattel mortgage, will be sold to the highest bidder: the assets not covered by the chattel mortgage will also be sold in lots to the highest bidders.

The two bakeries are free and clear of all incumbrances, liens, etc., of every kind and nature and will be sold separately, including the good will and leaseholds.

For further particulars address or call on the undersigned receiver, or his attorneys.

The above property can be inspected at any time on Oct. 11th, 12th, and 13th, 1905, between the hours of 9 A. M. and 5 P. M.

TRADING IN BALTIMORE.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 11.—Gottlieb-Bauernschmidt-Straus Brewing Company income bonds were the feature of the trading to-day. After the price reached 33 for an advance of a point the supply became liberal and the price sagged off until the closing, when it strengthened again.

The demand for Seaboard stocks was active and all the classes of the new issue advanced fractionally. Cotton Duck 5s which were attacked by a bearish room trader, recovered ½.

Atlantic Coast Line of Connecticut new 4s certificates sold ¼ higher, Charleston Consolidated Electric 5s sold down ½. After the recess the trading switched from Gottlieb - Bauernschmidt - Straus Brewing incomes to Seaboard securities. On the down grade Seaboard new first preferred rose to 90½ and then ran off to 89½; Seaboard new common receded ¼. Seaboard new second preferred declined ⅝. American Bonding advanced 5 points. The close was dull and steady.

Shares, 4,472; bonds, $289,000.

THE FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Break—Call Money Rates, 5@6 Per Cent.

Market Advances, Then Breaks—Mr. Vanderlip's Address the Factor—Demand Sterling Rises Sharply.

Stock market movements yesterday were influenced almost wholly by preconceptions of Mr. Vanderlip's address to the bankers' association in session at Washington, and by the actual terms of that address as it came over the wires to Wall Street. An extravagant and ill-founded notion existed in speculative circles early in the day that the tenor of Mr. Vanderlip's remarks would be unusually optimistic, and acting on this assumption there was rather excited upbidding of prices throughout the list, with the result that active issues at midday were a point or more above the closing quotations on Tuesday. This movement was helped by moderately heavy purchases by London, where American shares ruled higher at our opening. With the publication of the address it was found how unjustifiable had been the earlier and exaggerated conception of its trend and the speculators who had grounded their hopes upon it at once sought to dispose of their stocks. The declines which followed not only erased previous gains but substituted for them losses running from 1 to 2 points in the active stocks, while breaks of from 3 to 5 points occurred in high priced shares and specialties.

Mr. Vanderlip's periodical public utterances on business conditions and on the stock market position are received with deference by the financial community owing to their innate soundness and to the belief that they represent, naturally, the views of his business associates as well as his personal opinions. It is a matter of deepest interest that in the present instance opportunity was found to point out not only the exceptionally sound position of the country's business interests, but also to indicate how easily these interests might be jeopardized if, to quote the address, "a stock market speculation should start from the present high level of prices, in the face of the extraordinary demand for capital and money which crops and business alike are making." The hazard which existed in such a concurrence had been reasonably clear to every one, seemingly, save speculative interests, and Mr. Vanderlip's warning may now carry conviction to them.

The day's further developments included a rise of 25 points in demand sterling, which at the quoted rate of 4.8565 seems to preclude gold engagements for the moment, at least. Working toward the same end were the advances of ¼ per cent. in discount rates at Paris and Berlin, this marking the highest quotation of the year in the Berlin money market. The banks again fared well in their operations with the Sub-Treasury, adding only a trifling amount to the moderate loss sustained thus far in the week. The bulk of the day's loans was made on a basis of little more than 5 per cent., but late in the market session rates advanced to the highest point touched, where heretofore they have eased off at the end of the day. Pacific Coast Company Directors, having before them the annual report showing substantial increase in net earnings, advanced the quarterly dividend on the company's common stock ¼ of 1 per cent., thus placing the issue on a 6 per cent. basis. The Western Union Telegraph Company reported a decrease of some $700,000 in net revenue for the year, but, as this was due in part directly and in part indirectly to the abandonment of the company's racing news service, stockholders are not apt to complain.

INCREASES ITS DIVIDENDS.

Pacific Coast Company's Common and Second Preferred Pay 6 Per Cent.

The Directors of the Pacific Coast Company, at their meeting yesterday, following the annual meeting of the stockholders, declared increased dividends on the company's second preferred and common stocks, and the regular quarterly dividend of 1¼ per cent. on the first preferred. The dividend declared on the common and second preferred was 1½ per cent., an increase of one-quarter of 1 per cent. over the previous quarterly declaration. Thus these two issues are advanced from a 5 per cent. to a 6 per cent. annual rate. All the dividends are payable Nov. 1.

The report of the company for the fiscal year ended June 30 last showed gross earnings of $6,199,275, an increase of $296,303 over the previous year. The operating expenses were $4,866,160, an increase of $148,217, and the net earnings $1,333,115, an increase of $148,086. The increase in gross was divided equally between operating expenses and net earnings. The sum of $430,217 was expended on repairs of the company's fleet. In 1904, $403,929 was expended for the same purposes.

The stockholders re-elected the retiring members of the Board of Directors. The Directors elected James N. Hill, Vice President of the Northern Pacific Railway, a Director of the Pacific Coast Company, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Daniel S. Lamont. The board also recorded an expression of its sorrow at Mr. Lamont's death.

LONDON STOCK MARKET.

LONDON, Oct. 11.—Supplies of money were more plentiful in the market to-day and rates were easier on the condition of Continental exchanges. Discounts were fairly steady.

Operators on the Stock Exchange were occupied with the carry-over. Trading was inactive, but prices maintained yesterday's improvement. The monetary position was considered to be less menacing. Consols hardened, but closed below the best quotations of the day.

Americans opened irregular and moved to slightly over parity, reflecting the improved tone in other sections. They were steadily supported. Union Pacific was prominent and United States Steel was firm. Prices closed generally steady.

Canadian Pacific was buoyant and Grand Trunk was sympathetically firm, being helped by the traffic increase.

Gold premiums are quoted as follows: Madrid, 28.57; Lisbon, 4.50.

The amount of bullion taken into the Bank of England on balance to-day was £47,000.

SURFACE LINE LOSSES DUE MOSTLY TO SNOW

GAIN IN SUMMER MONTHS

City Railway Company Making Up in Short Hauls What It Lost in Long.

President Vreeland of the New York City Railway Company, in his annual report to the stockholders, made public yesterday, says it is still too early to reach a definite conclusion in regard to the ultimate effect of subway travel upon the earnings of the surface lines. The decrease in the company's gross earnings amounting to $596,881, according to the figures published some days ago, is attributed by President Vreeland to the unfavorable weather conditions of last Winter. The cost of removing the snow from the company's lines, owing to the very heavy fall, was $119,824 more last year than the year before.

The loss in gross earnings for the fiscal year was accounted for almost entirely by the smaller earnings in the Winter months. The decrease for December, January, and February amounted to $544,845.

The statement of income for the year shows a deficit of $2,796,942 from operation. It is pointed out that this deficit will be further increased by the special franchise tax. Concerning this President Vreeland says:

"The company's appeal to the United States Supreme Court involving the constitutionality of the special franchise tax law has been decided adversely to the company, and the constitutionality of the law upheld. Proceedings are now pending to secure reductions in the special franchise assessments for every year subsequent to 1900, and it is expected that very substantial reductions in the original assessments will be secured."

In regard to the effect of the opening of the Subway upon the New York City Railway's earnings President Vreeland says:

"While the Subway service inaugurated Oct. 27, 1904, together with the unfavorable weather conditions which prevailed during the Winter, materially affected the receipts from passengers for a few months, it became apparent by March of 1905 that the traffic was becoming adjusted to the new conditions, and that a considerable additional short-haul traffic was being developed which would, partially at least, make up for the long-haul business lost to the Subway. During June, July, and August of this year the receipts from passengers have shown a substantial increase over those of the corresponding months of last year, when there was no Subway competition. It is too early to reach definite conclusions as to the ultimate effect of Subway travel upon the earnings of the surface lines."

The general balance sheet of the company as of June 30 last gives the deficit carried in the profit and loss account as $782,585. It is explained that it is the policy of the company to charge "profit and loss" each year with the net deficits of its controlled companies and to credit the amount to the "reserve" account. The report says that for this reason it is necessary, in order to arrive at the net profit and loss of the system as a whole, to eliminate these duplicate charges.

In regard to the year's fixed charges this statement is made:

"The fixed charges include the first full year's charge of the guaranteed annual rental of 5 per cent. paid to the Third Avenue Railroad Company stockholders, as compared with but two months and seventeen days of this rental accrued during the previous year. This, together with interest on notes of the Central Crosstown Railroad Company, and bonds of the Third Avenue Railroad and Second Avenue Railroad Companies, issued for construction purposes, accounts for the increase in the fixed charges."

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 11.—There was rather free realizing in this market to-day, especially in Reading, United States Steel common, Erie, and Lehigh Valley, the result being a sharp setback in prices. The movement was in sympathy with New York, more than to the words of caution uttered in Washington by Mr. Vanderlip. Prior to the break in New York the local demand for stocks had come largely from commission houses, which had begun to feel the effects of the market's continued firmness. These buyers, however, were easily scared, and at the first sign of weakness threw their holdings overboard. The purely local stocks did not respond much to the decline because of dullness. It is understood here that the Lehigh Valley Directors' meeting on Friday will be to ratify the purchase of the Coxe Brothers & Co.'s anthracite interests. Total sales, 49,036 shares.

CHICAGO QUOTATIONS.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—New York exchange was at par. Time and call loans 4@5 per cent.

There was a quiet session in stocks on the local Exchange. Boxboard preferred showed slight irregularity around 14¼ down to 13½ during the morning. Swift's eased fractionally below 108, Western Stone sold at 36½, Northwestern Elevated common went at 24, and the preferred at 65. Biscuit issues were firm.

Subway shares sold off to 54½. A. G. Wheeler was called to New York to-day and at once the Street began to wonder if the journey had anything to do with the reported conflict of powers in the affairs of the Subway.

Boston and Maine Buys Trolleys.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Oct. 11.—The Boston and Maine Railroad stockholders to-day voted to purchase the Danvers and the Newburyport Railroads. Bond issues of $10,458,000 for purchase and refunding purposes and 42,037 shares of new common stock were authorized.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Anything by which a considerable number of persons are influenced either to buy or sell stocks has its consequence in the market, and those who remain uninfluenced or who deplore the effect may only say that the movement is irrational. As a Vice President of the National City Bank, Mr. Vanderlip has made several very timely and prophetic speeches, and Wall Street, with its fondness for subtle conclusions, has apparently made up its mind to take his prearranged utterances with an ulterior meaning. This cannot be helped, under the circumstances, because speculators are free to put what construction they will on utterances, and bankers now and then are called upon to make speeches. The curious phase of yesterday's attempt to anticipate the stock market effect of Mr. Vanderlip's speech was that nearly everybody went wrong on it. The impression, somehow, prevailed that the speech would be very bullish from a speculator's point of view, and all forenoon traders bought stocks with that idea. The speech was "released" at 1 o'clock, and its chilling references to speculation were so unexpected that all who had bought stocks in anticipation of something quite different unloaded hastily.

***

The declaration in Mr. Vanderlip's speech most disconcerting to the bull element referred to the unwisdom of trying to start a speculation from the present high level of prices, with so many other urgent demands for the money that would be needed to finance such a movement. Bull speculation has been running very largely to high-priced stocks. It is a question not of starting a speculation from this level of prices, but of continuing an unfinished speculation which began with cheap money. The speculator is notoriously impatient. He is prone to argue that if prices cannot go up they must go down.

***

The bull crowd made an aggressive demonstration in the forenoon. Advances of ¼ to 1 per cent. had occurred in the American quarter of the London market overnight, and the movement was continued here with an appearance of ease which was as disconcerting to the bear element as the subsequent decline must have been to the bull crowd. The extreme advance in London had taken place in Union Pacific, which was quoted 1 per cent. over New York parity, and it was the stock most favored in the speculative buying of the first hour. The trading element seemed suddenly possessed with a great enthusiasm for it, and the price advanced to 133¾, with London buying heavily and no great quantity of stock in sight. From this high figure the stock subsequently declined 2½ points. Along with Union Pacific, Southern Pacific was advanced in the forenoon to 70¼. It broke two points. These were by no means the most severe reactions. From the high prices of the forenoon there were numerous declines of 1½ to 2½ per cent.

***

Perhaps the most prominent feature of the market in the forenoon was the strength of the coal stocks as a group. Lackawanna, in which there is little or no speculation, advanced 28 points to a new high record price. Delaware and Hudson advanced 3½ points, to 222¾, on a rumor that the New York Central would guarantee 10 per cent. on the stock, and afterward declined to 118. It closed at 119, showing a net loss of one-quarter of 1 per cent. Of the speculative coalers Reading and Erie were the most prominent. Reading advanced on aggressive buying to 123¾, and subsequently fell back 3 points. Erie common advanced in the forenoon to 50 and closed at 48⅝.

***

The decline, which began at 1 o'clock and continued with scarcely an interruption to the closing of the market, was distinguished from any previous reaction of the recent past by the continuous pressure of stocks. It was a poor market on which to sell stocks. The support was far from what might reasonably have been expected after the demonstration which had been made by the bull crowd in the forenoon. Brokers all agreed in saying that in the selling after 1 o'clock there was more genuine liquidation of long holdings than they had seen for weeks. In the last hour there was a feeble sort of recovery, due to short covering, but the pressure was unrelieved and the selling continued right up to the end, so that most of the active stocks closed at or near the lowest eighths of the day. It was the most formidable selling movement that had occurred for some weeks, and the market withstood it poorly. The selling was fairly general. The heaviest selling coming from any one house was probably that of Pell & Co. It covered pretty nearly the whole active list.

***

Great Northern closed at a decline of 6¾ points from the high quotation made in Tuesday's session on the announcement of the new stock issue.

***

Certain banking interests are beginning to feel a little dubious about the amount of money that is being borrowed by pools to finance operations in so-called specialties, principally industrial specialties, some of which have already been advanced to prices at which banks lend money on them a little reluctantly.

***

To a friend who had asked him for his opinion of the market, a broker of the older school said: "I can best express my opinion by telling you a story. It happened long before your time in Wall Street. It was when we used to trade in gold. There were no tickers. Brokers brought in quotations on little slips of paper as the curb fellows do to-day. Joseph Mills, who was a very shrewd old customer, asked for a quotation on gold. It was quoted at 51½ bid, offered at 51⅝, and to the broker who brought in that quotation Mills said: 'Sell a million for me at 51½.' The broker went away with the order and was gone a long time. Other brokers came in quoting gold at 51½@51⅝, but no report from the broker having the order to sell a million at ½. Mills at length became impatient and sent for him. 'Why haven't you sold that gold?' he asked. 'Why, Mr. Mills,' the broker said, 'the very best houses in the Street are bidding ½ for gold. That's why I haven't sold it.' 'You fool!' said Mills. 'Do you want to wait until the very best houses in the Street are offering it at a half.'"

***

Bullish inspiration on the market has been coming chiefly from the Morgan leadership.

***

Brokers are beginning to complain more generally that the insurance investigation is keeping people out of the market and hurting the commission business. The adverse effect of the Equitable disclosures upon the market, or, rather, upon public sentiment, was not conceded in Wall Street until that affair was pretty well advanced.

***

The story from Milwaukee of a transcontinental alliance between the Erie and the Great Northern, connecting by means of the Wisconsin Central, was perhaps as effective in the market as could have been desired. Both Erie and Wisconsin Central advanced sharply on it. Wall Street, however, did not take it too seriously. It was not believed possible that anything more would be unloaded so soon upon the Erie.

***

The recovery of prices which culminated so very abruptly at 1 o'clock yesterday must have been unprofitable to those who engineered it. The demonstration made in the forenoon yesterday must have been particularly so, for the market fell away so sharply when the selling movement began that there was a very poor market for stocks. The violence of the decline was rather surprising, inasmuch as the only thing to which the selling could be directly attributed was the Vanderlip speech. The bull account must have been more sensitive than Wall Street has supposed. One thing the decline proved was that the strength exhibited in the market in the forenoon was largely artificial. The short interest was not large enough to support the market.

***

The Gates people became very bullish in their outgoing advices yesterday morning, declaring that the turning point in money had been reached, and that funds would be more accessible henceforth. John W. Gates was quoted personally as feeling extremely bullish on the Steel situation.

THE OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Trading in Great Northern Rights Lively on the Curb.

The sale of Great Northern rights was even more lively on the curb yesterday than the day before. The number of rights bought and sold was 8,700, the closing price being 35. Two hundred shares of Northern Securities sold at the uniform price of 185. Fifteen thousand Erie rights changed hands. Hall Signal sold at 92, its activity being stimulated by the news that the company was planning an addition to its factory. Interborough opened at 213¾, and fell off to 212¼ at the close. Greene Copper gained ⅛ and United Copper lost ½ in the trading. Standard Oil touched 671. American Tobacco was steady at 350. Mercantile Marine preferred closed at 34.

NEW TELEPHONE ISSUE.

Plan to Increase New York and New Jersey Capital to $50,000,000.

At a meeting of the stockholders of the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company on Oct. 25 the proposal to increase the capital stock from $15,000,000 to $50,000,000 will be voted upon. This announcement, coming close upon the heels of the formation of a new telephone company, seemed to be a result of the appearance of a new competitor, but an officer of the New York and New Jersey Company denied yesterday that it was a case of cause and effect reversed.

It is certain that only a part of the additional $35,000,000 capital stock authorized will be issued; at the present time only $13,770,100 of the authorized $15,000,000 is outstanding. How much will be issued has not been decided. The reason for the increase is said to be the rapid development in business and the resulting necessity for large additions to the plant.

Large stock interests in the company are held by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company and the New York Telephone Company. Charles F. Cutler is Chairman of the board of the New York Telephone Company and the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company. The latter is sole licensee of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company for Brooklyn, all of Long Island, Staten Island, and ten counties in New Jersey.

BANK OF ENGLAND RATE.

Rise Not Expected To-day, But Is Likely to be Necessary Soon.

LONDON TIMES—NEW YORK TIMES Special Cable. Copyright, 1905.

LONDON, Oct. 11.—The Times in its City article to-morrow will say:

"A rise in the Bank of England's rate is not probable to-day, but it is becoming more and more evident that the forces tending to raise the value of money in all centres of the world's business are very strong, and that nothing but prudence and good management can save us from a further rise in the official minimum, though there is still a possibility that it may not be needed."

NEW 'FRISCO-GULF ROUTE.

Santa Fe to Build Connections Giving Shorter Line.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 11.—E. P. Ripley, President of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé Railway, has decided to build a new road to give San Francisco another and shorter rail route to Galveston. The Gulf, Santa Fé and Northwestern Railway has been incorporated to build 350 miles of road from Brownwood northwest to Texico, on the Texas-New Mexico boundary.

Texico is on the North and South Pecos Valley line of the Santa Fé. From Texico to Rio Puerco, on the Santa Fé and California Overland line, thirty miles west of Albuquerque, the distance is 275 miles, and a road is being built there by the Eastern New Mexico Railway, a Santa Fé company.

IRON OUTPUT LARGER.

The production of pig iron in September showed an increase over the output in August according to the figures compiled by The Iron Age. That paper says in its issue of to-day:

Our monthly blast furnace returns show that production in September in spite of the fact that it was a short month was 1,898,873 gross tons, as compared with 1,843,673 gross tons in August and 1,741,935 tons in July. Returns from all the steel companies make their pig iron product 1,262,033 tons in September, against 1,186,050 tons in August, an increase in spite of the fact that the Pittsburg district produced only 449,632 tons in September, as compared with 488,119 tons in August. The returns indicate that the merchant furnaces did not do as well in September as expected, their production having been 657,623 tons, while they made 636,840 tons in August.

The capacity at work has increased in September and stood on Oct. 1 at 445,468 tons per week, as contrasted with 412,563 tons on Sept. 1.

There is the promise, therefore, of an increased production which the country needs so sorely.

There has been a good deal of buoyancy in the pig iron markets in all parts of the country and prices have been further advanced. A growing number of furnaces hesitate about committing themselves heavily for the future in view of the considerable rise in costs.

While the buying of Bessemer and basic iron in the Central West has been rather light during the past week, it is known that two large steel interests are figuring on the purchase of some large blocks for the first six months of next year.

Some further goodly orders have come to the rail mills, including 45,000 tons additional from the Northern Pacific, 35,000 tons from the Great Northern, 29,000 tons from the Minneapolis and St. Louis, and 13,000 tons from the Kansas City, Mexico & Orient. Manufacturers of frogs and switches have ordered between 10,000 and 12,000 tons, and it is reported that one of them has been forced to place a small order for girder rails abroad in order to secure prompt delivery. Another maker in this branch is studying the question of drawing a very considerable supply of girder rails from Germany. A fair proportion of the New Haven order has been allotted, but the whole of it has not yet been given out.

A good deal of business is pending in bridge material, fully 60,000 tons being under negotiation.

Reports from Europe continue very encouraging. There has been a smart advance in the price of plates, structural material, and bars in England, and the revival there is reflected by quite a pressure upon our producers here to sell material. This, however, they decline to do beyond certain well-defined lines.

IRON TRADE CONDITIONS.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Oct. 11.—The Iron Trade Review to-morrow will say:

"The danger of a runaway market is disappearing and conditions are thoroughly sound. The outlook is that while there will be special excitement in the near future, all plants will continue fully as active as they have been for some time.

"The greatest activity in pig iron has been in the Chicago district, where the International Harvester Company purchased 50,000 tons, 30,000 tons of which were placed with the Sloss-Sheffield Steel and Iron Company at about $12.75, Birmingham, for No. 2 foundry; 7,500 with the Virginia Iron, Coal and Coke Company at $14, furnace, for No. 2, or $16.55, Chicago, while the remainder, 12,500, went to Northern furnaces, of which the Iroquois Furnace Company of South Chicago got a large portion. There is now only one important company in the South quoting $12.50, and very little iron can be purchased at less than $13.

"It is confidently expected that the $13 basis will be established this week. Coke continues an important factor. Many contracts have been made for furnace coke, some for the first half of next year and others for the entire year, at from $2.50 to $2.75 for standard, Connellsville.

"The buying of steel rails, which had not been very active for several weeks, amounted to fully 240,000 tons last week, not including the large purchase made by the New York Central, of which details are not announced. The principal sales were as follows: Northern Pacific, 80,000 tons; Louisiana Railway and Navigation Company, 5,000; Great Northern, 35,000; Minneapolis and St. Louis, 29,000; Ocean Shore, 8,000; Kansas City, Mexico and Orient, 15,000.

"The demand for structural material continues unabated, and efforts to enthuse life into the strike of structural workers seem to have had little effect. Among the recent large orders for bridge material was one for 16,000 tons from the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé Railroad."

GREAT NORTHERN STOCK PLAN

Holders of Northern Securities Shares Must Yield Them to Subscribe.

Notice was issued yesterday by Fourth Vice President W. P. Clough of the Northern Securities Company to the stockholders that to participate in the subscription to the new Great Northern stock they must surrender their Northern Securities certificates and exchange them for the securities to which they are entitled. It is pointed out in the notice that the Northern Securities Company is enjoined from subscribing to the Great Northern preferred stock, and that the only way in which the holders of Northern Securities can obtain the new Great Northern stock is by turning in their stock for conversion.

The notice is issued to all holders of Northern Securities certificates issued on or prior to April 18, 1905, and to the holders of certificates numbered B7933 and B7935, issued April 19, 1905.

N. Y., S. & W. R. R. EARNINGS.

Gross earnings of the New York, Susquehanna and Western Railroad Company for the fiscal year were $2,743,135, an increase of $83,344 over the previous year. The expenses increased $230,314, so that there was a decrease in net earnings of $146,969, or 13.24 per cent.

The income account shows that the balance to the debit of profit and loss for the year was $22,687. This, deducted from the total balance on June 30, 1904, leaves the credit balance carried forward on June 30, 1905, $1,240,815.

F. D. Underwood, President of the Erie, is also President of the New York, Susquehanna and Western, which is a part of the Erie system.

Financial Notes.

William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., has been elected a Director of the Oneida (Electric) Railway Company of Utica.

Henry Sproul & Co., brokers, will move from 30 Broad Street to 74 Broadway next week. S. W. Farrington will become a member of the firm.

At the annual meeting of the Boston & Maine stockholders it was voted to issue $10,000,000 bonds to pay and refund matured bonds; also, to increase the capital stock to pay for additions, improvements, and new equipment.

The Central Leather Company has sold to Kuhn, Loeb & Co. $3,000,000 of its first lien twenty-year 5 per cent. gold bonds. The proceeds will go toward the purchase of N. R. Allen's Sons Company, L. Beebe & Co., and Cover & Drayton.

The Pacific Gas and Electric Company, with a capital of $30,000,000, has been incorporated in California. This is the company formed by N. W. Halsey & Co. of New York, to take over the California Gas and Electric Corporation and the San Francisco Gas and Electric Company. The Directors include John Martin, Frank G. Dunn, E. J. De Sabla, John A. Britton, Cyrus Pierce, George W. Levis, and L. Foster Young.

SAYS GREENE WAS WRONGED.

Tustin Makes Peace Overtures—Consolidated's Annual Meeting.

Negotiations are under way between Col. William C. Greene and Col. E. B. Tustin which, it is said, may result in the settlement of the differences that arose between them as a result of the statements made by Col. Tustin concerning the Greene Consolidated Gold Company, one of Col. Greene's properties. Late last night Col. Tustin sent the following letter to Col. Greene:

My Dear Sir: Referring to my recent conversation with Mr. Borden, your assistant secretary, I wish to say that through false representations that have been made to me I feel that you have been wronged, which I very much regret, and I desire to state that many of the statements made regarding you and the corporations you represent as coming from me are absolutely without foundation and unauthorized—all of which I deeply regret. Yours very truly, E. B. TUSTIN.

It was said that Col. Tustin would go with Col. Greene at 10:30 o'clock this morning to the Mercantile Safe Deposit Company, at 120 Broadway, and show him by sheets, books, &c., that financiers who are short of Greene Copper were responsible for the reports.

At the annual meeting of the Greene Consolidated Copper Company yesterday Eugene N. Foss, H. C. Hulbert, Thomas P. Wilson, Gov. W. A. Woodbury, L. D. Baldwin, and A. Bleecker Banks were elected Directors to fill vacancies and replace James Phillips, Jr., W. V. S. Thorne, and Col. Tustin, who retired from the board.

According to the annual report the number of stockholders increased in the year from 3,219 to 5,226. The product for the fiscal year ending July 31 last was 64,211,895 pounds, valued at $9,468,733.

WANT FEWER COTTON CALLS.

Those at 12 and 2 o'Clock Interfere with Business, Brokers Say.

Brokers who think the 12 o'clock and 2 o'clock "calls" in the Cotton Exchange interfere with business are sending around a petition asking that they be abolished. Already there are many names to the petition and it is said there is a good chance of its being granted.

"I am not a disinterested party," said Supt. King of the Exchange yesterday, "because I make the calls. I think they are a good thing, and ought not to be abolished. But there are many that differ with me. They say it is a serious interruption of business. Each call takes about five minutes, as I have to call out each of the twelve months of the year, and then ask for bids and offers."

Another petition circulated a few days ago asks that the Exchange be closed on Monday preceding election day.

"Because this is a busy season of the year," said Supt. King yesterday, "it is not likely that the Board of Managers will grant the request."

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

French Local Taxes Not a Part of Dutiable Value—Other Decisions.

In a decision by Judge Somerville, the Board of United States General Appraisers yesterday sustained a claim filed by La Manna, Azema & Farnan of New York, it being held that French local, or "droit de ville" and "octroi" taxes are not properly elements of market value for American customs officers to levy duty upon. The action of Collector Stranahan and Appraiser Whitehead in including the taxes in the dutiable value of alcohol imported by the firm is adjudged illegal, and the Collector is directed to reliquidate the entries in accordance with the finding of the board.

Judge Waite wrote a decision for the board, partially sustaining a protest by P. Ouwerkerk of New York regarding the customs classification of a variety of trees and shrubs. The merchandise was assessed by the Collector at the rate of 25 per cent. ad valorem, whereas the importer contended the duty should have been at the rate of $1 per thousand plants and 15 per cent. ad valorem.

T. S. Sharretts wrote a decision reducing the duty on so-called steel point ornaments used principally for trimming women's hats. The goods were imported by William Maas & Co. of this city, and were assessed at the rate of 60 per cent. as "jewelry." The importer's claim for duty as manufactures of metal, 45 per cent. ad valorem was sustained. A protest filed by C. A. & E. Meyer of New York was sustained.

The board partially sustained claims filed by J. S. Plummer & Co., Elmer & Amend, Albert Lorsch & Co. and others, William Maas & Co., Maas, Blum & Co., A. & H. Veith, New York; O. G. Hempstead & Co., and E. K. Tryon, Jr., & Co., Philadelphia.

A protest by D. Catzulis of New York was overruled.

RECEIVER FOR C. C. LAPHAM.

Creditors Say They Cannot Find the Cooperage Stock Dealer.

Judge Holt, in the United States District Court, yesterday appointed Charles L. Brookheim receiver of the assets of Charles C. Lapham, who was in the cooperage stock business at 150 Nassau Street under the name of N. Lapham & Co. A petition in bankruptcy was filed by A. G. Bailey & Brother of Luray, Va., creditors for $1,910. Included is a draft for $179, which went to protest last Monday.

Archer G. Bailey of the petitioners called at the Lapham office yesterday. He says he was met there by a man who said he was a creditor for $10,000, and had attached Lapham's property in Virginia. They were told, he said, that Mr. Lapham had been at his office only once since early in September and that his present whereabouts were unknown.

The Baileys charge that Mr. Lapham has transferred part of his assets to favored creditors and has concealed another part. The creditors, they say, are fewer than twelve. J. C. Guggenheimer, who applied for the receiver, says that the only asset in sight is the office furniture, and that he, too, does not know where Lapham is.

Charles C. Lapham two years ago was supposed to be worth $184,000, of which $149,000 was in real estate. His property included a sawmill, starch mill, and box factory interests in Lapham, stave mill interests in Virginia, copper property in Minnesota, and mineral rights in Clinton County, N. Y.

N. Y. Central Officers for Minor Roads

Directors' meetings of a number of the New York Central's subsidiary companies were held yesterday at the Grand Central Station for the election of officers. The only changes were in the officers of the Terminal Railway of Buffalo and the Syracuse, Geneva and Corning Railway Company. These roads elected W. H. Newman, President; W. C. Brown, John Carstensen, and W. J. Wilgus, Vice Presidents; Dwight W. Pardee, Secretary, and E. V. W. Rossiter, Treasurer. These men are the officers of the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad Company.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Oct. 11.—The local money market is unchanged. The usual tables of rates, &c., follow:

Call loans, 5½@6 per cent.; time loans, collateral, 4¾@5 per cent.; time loans, mercantile paper, 5 per cent.; Clearing House loans, 5 per cent.; New York funds, 15 cents discount. Boston clearings, $29,404,015; balances, $1,160,539; Sub-Treasury debit, $119,318.

The Boston market remained quiet but firm during the morning. New features now every day. Old Dominion was the card to-day, and moved up a point or so. While there is no news on this stock, the buying is said to be good. The other copper shares were irregular, some making fractional gains and others losing a fraction or so.

In the afternoon selling orders made their appearance following the weakness in the New York market, and prices dropped off about a point, closing heavy.

Complete list of transactions follows:

EDWIN G. LAWRENCE, Esq., New York.

My Dear Mr. Lawrence:

Your suggestions and rules seem to me extremely wise and valuable. You do not overrate the importance to a good orator or a public speaker of a good voice. You truly say that this is the most important part of an orator's education, as well as the part most neglected.

I am, faithfully yours.

INTERNATIONAL POWER AS LEITER TELLS IT

In No Pool with Judson When the Crash Came.

SAYS HE LOST $300,000

This Includes $120,000 He paid for Stock, on Hoadley's Advice, Just Before the Balloon Went Up.

The story of how the stock of the International Power Company was inflated like a soap bubble and burst after hitting the cold atmosphere of Wall Street was told yesterday by Joseph Leiter of wheat corner fame. He took the stand in the Supreme Court to testify in the suit brought against him and Joseph H. Hoadley by the brokerage firm of Franklin, Scott & Co.

The brokers are trying to recover $65,800 which they lost on April 30, 1902, while operating in the stock for Cyrus Field Judson, who, the plaintiffs declare, was acting in behalf of a pool in which Hoadley and Leiter were interested. Leiter says he lost about $300,000 in the deal and Judson went "broke." Just how Hoadley came out is not known.

George R. Scott was recalled yesterday and cross-examined by the defendant's counsel. The first question asked was, "What is a pool?"

"A pool," said Mr. Scott, "is a number of men who get together and accumulate stock at low prices, get their friends interested, and bring out true or fictitious values, marking the stock up. When the profit's big enough they sell out."

Much laughter followed this.

Mr. Leiter said that he and Hoadley had had a verbal agreement that neither would sell any stock because they wanted to keep control of the company. Judson, he said, had nothing to do with this agreement. It continued until Dec. 11, 1901, when the pool was wound up.

In the Fall of 1900, the witness said, he met Hoadley in Paris, and Hoadley said he had lent 1,000 shares of Power stock to Judson, as Judson wanted money. Hoadley said he had left the market for the stock entirely with Judson, and that Judson had cabled that the Cramps had unloaded their stock, and more money was needed.

"On our arrival home from Europe," Mr. Leiter said, "Hoadley and I were met at the Cunard pier by Judson. Judson said he had not enough money to carry the stock. He did not say for whom he bought the stock, but he did not buy it for me. Judson went downtown after telling Hoadley the mess he was in, and Hoadley and myself separated. We met again that evening at dinner. Hoadley said he would make the Cramps take back the stock sold by them at the same price as they had sold it, and compel them to live up to their agreement. In the meantime, he said, it was our business to fish Judson out of his difficulties, as we were more interested than any one else in the stock of the company, and we could not afford to have Judson discredited, even if he had acted foolishly, as it would hurt our stock. I told him I would be perfectly willing to do anything I could, but that I thought the arrangement suggested by him an extremely foolish one."

"Well," said counsel, "did Mr. Hoadley suggest the terms of the agreement to be entered into with reference to the 600 shares of stock sold by the Cramps?"

"Yes," replied Mr. Leiter; "he suggested that we should take the stock of which Judson was long, which was that unloaded by the Cramps, and that he would get them to take the stock back. I took over 550 shares still held by the Cramps, and 1,180 shares were put in the pool. That was the only pool in which I was interested with Hoadley and Judson, to help Judson out of his difficulties."

It was agreed, the witness said, to give Judson one-third interest, providing he was of service to the other parties to the arrangement. There had been a written memorandum concerning it, but Mr. Leiter said this had been left with Hoadley. The share that was to go to Judson Mr. Leiter referred to as "a share of the pie." This remark made Justice Amend laugh outright.

In telling of a second deal, Mr. Leiter said that by Dec. 11, 1902, they had accumulated 6,800 shares of stock, for which they had paid $30 a share.

"We found we had lost considerably," said the witness, "as the stock was not fetching anything like $30 a share. Judson wanted to come in anyhow, and I said that if he was such a darned fool as to come in in a losing deal he could do so. He said he would, and we arranged that each of the three of us was to take 2,300 shares of stock and pay up the losses. The pool was dissolved at that time and we held the 6,900 shares individually."

Mr. Leiter said that Judson had not advanced one cent for the 2,300 shares which he was to receive. He declared he had advanced about $200,000 to pay for the stock which he had received and that he had left enough money with Hoadley to clean up his 2,300 shares, but didn't get the shares from Hoadley.

"He told me," said Mr. Leiter, "that it was because Judson had not been able to take up his shares. Judson came to Hoadley's office on April 30, 1902. Hoadley told me that John R. Drexel and Judson were running the pool at par. I called Judson into the next room and told him what a fool he was. I was very angry indeed at the time, and damned him properly for being such a fool as to push the stock up to a point which was absolutely fictitious, and that I would sell my stock and clear out of the thing entirely unless he desisted. I told him he would only bring disrepute on the company; that we had got it in good shape, had securities in the treasury, and had got some good prices, and that to bring it into disrepute was absolutely idiotic. He told me that John R. Drexel had put up $1,000,000 in cash and that they had a lot of people in the Street short of stock whom they were going to squeeze and make a lot of money.

"After he left the room I said to Hoadley: 'J. H., what does this mean? Why did you make an arrangement with Judson of this character?' Hoadley said he had an arrangement with Drexel and Judson to let them have the shares we owned jointly as they were necessary to carry out the booming transaction. I asked him what had become of the 6,900 shares, and he said he had disposed of them to Judson and Drexel, and gave me the approximate average price. I figured it out and it made a profit of about $125,000 each."

The next day Mr. Leiter called at Hoadley's office. Judson happened in. Mr. Leiter told Judson that he would not stand by the deal, and Judson replied that they were making a lot of money, at the same time turning over to Hoadley a lot of checks and papers.

The crash in International Power came on April 30, 1902. On the following day Mr. Leiter said he received a telegram from Hoadley asking him to resign as a Director. He replied thus:

Mr. Joseph H. Hoadley: I refuse to be made a scapegoat of. I shall not resign, for I have done nothing that calls for it. Every act of mine as Director has been straightforward and honorable. I am not responsible for the mess, and I will not resign.

On the day before the crash Mr. Leiter said he was in Chicago, and received a telegram from Hoadley in which Hoadley advised him "to get aboard," as Drexel and Judson were "boosting" the stock. On this advice, Mr. Leiter said, he bought 1,000 shares of the stock on the very day the balloon burst. This alone had cost him $120,000. Subsequently he settled with Hoadley for $117,000. His total loss was about $300,000.

The trial will be continued to-morrow.

Doctor's Wife a Suicide in His Office.

In a fit of depression, due to neurasthenia, Mrs. Matilda Klinker, wife of Dr. Louis T. Klinker of 309 West Fifty-first Street, committed suicide yesterday morning by drinking carbolic acid. She drank the poison in the doctor's office, and he, missing her, found her dead there. She had not uttered a sound despite her pain. Mrs. Klinker leaves three children.

GIRL FEARFULLY ABUSED.

Assaulted by 14 Men in a Stable—Mr. Wormser on Their Trail.

A revolting case of brutality was disclosed yesterday in the West Side Court, when five men were arraigned before Magistrate Wahle, charged with having ill-used Annie Thornton in a stable in West Sixty-fourth Street on the night of Oct. 6. The girl is employed in the house of Isidor Wormser, the banker, and in court Mr. Wormser reiterated what he had said the night before in the West Sixty-eighth Street Station.

"I will spend $100,000," he said, "if that should be necessary, to have the perpetrators of this crime arrested and sent to prison."

The five men arraigned were members of a gang of fourteen who ill-used the girl. According to her story, she was knocked down by two men, dragged into the stable, and after being kept there was thrown into the street. She was still so weak from her experience that in court she had to be assisted several times in telling her story by the policemen. The police said last night that they hoped soon to have the rest of the gang.

According to the girl she received $50 on Oct. 6, her birthday, from Mrs. Wormser, and was told to take the day off and buy some dresses for herself. That night, she said, she went uptown on an Amsterdam Avenue car to see a friend. She got off at a street she thought was Seventy-fifth, and was walking through the street toward Riverside Drive when the two men seized her.

Detectivss Lynch, Murtha, Levins, and Coleman found witnesses who easily proved the truth of the girl's story. She had been taken to a stable in West Sixty-fourth Street, in what is known as "San Juan Hill" district.

Catherine Downey of 52 Amsterdam Avenue says she saw the girl dragged into the barn. Hearing her scream, she ran to the barn and kicked on the door, but as everything was quiet then she thought the victim might have got away. Henry Shackle of Sixty-sixth Street and Amsterdam Avenue saw the woman with the first two men, and knows who some of the gang were. Both witnesses were sent to the House of Detention.

The prisoners are James Finn, who lives over the stable; William H. Fuller of 251 West Sixty-fourth Street, Lawrence Falk of 250 West Sixty-eighth Street, William Nitzel of 65 Amsterdam Avenue, and Louis Wolf of 134 West Sixty-third Street. They were held in $2,000 bail each for examination to-morrow.

Mr. and Mrs. Wormser, in whose home the girl is, say she is truthful, industrious, and trustworthy, and Mr. Wormser said last night that he intended to press the matter until every one of those responsible for the girl's condition is in jail.

Not long ago a policeman in plain clothes returning from a theatre with a young woman and the woman's brother was attacked in West Sixty-fourth Street by a gang of roughs who tried to drag the young woman away. The policeman drew his revolver and captured several of the gang himself. He said afterward that without his revolver or some other weapon he would have been powerless against the gang.

DELANY ON GOOD HABITS.

His Bad Ones Could Have Been Corrected, He Says, When Young.

Corporation Counsel John J. Delany, addressing the students of the City College yesterday morning in the college chapel, told them that the purpose of education was to develop character. Three influences, he said, combined to form character—Heredity, environment, and the efforts of the man himself to use the opportunities offered to him.

"Heredity," said he, "can be overcome by a man's efforts. Environment can be bettered by education. That is the beginning of culture. But it is the purpose of education, and of a college to teach a man how to make efforts, and how to use the opportunities offered to him.

"The entire purpose of scholarship is that a man can walk out of his Alma Mater, able to do good deeds, and having been bettered himself to improve his associates. It is easy enough to do good while you are young, and if the habit of doing good has been instilled in a youth, it will cling to him throughout his life.

"In speaking thus I appear prosaic as do all speakers when addressing younger people. But I know that all my evils might have been corrected had I acquired only good habits when I was young."

MATHEWS TO BE TRIED HERE.

His Stay Vacated and Application for Change of Venue Refused.

Barring some unforeseen interference, the trial of Armitage Mathews on the charge of looting the Welsell estate to the extent of $92,000, will begin this morning before Justice Davy, in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court, the first step being the selection of a jury from the special panel of 200 talesmen empaneled for that purpose.

A body blow to further efforts of the counsel for the defense to delay the trial longer was delivered yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Stover when he denied the motion made by Black, Olcott, Gruber & Bonynge on behalf of Mathews and issued an order vacating the stay granted by Justice Maddox of Brooklyn. The decision of Justice Stover was brief and contained only a declaration that the applicants had failed to show cause why a change of venue was needed.

Mr. Olcott, who is to act as chief counsel for the defendant, with the assistance of Abraham Gruber and Terence McManus, said yesterday that he would be ready for trial this morning.

GREEN GOODS MEN HELD.

The Police Have $700 in Real Money That Belonged to Them.

Henry Allen, James Wilson, and Frank Clark, the three old-time gold-brick and green-goods men arrested in Brooklyn on Tuesday by Post Office Inspectors Boyle and Myers and Detective Sergts. McConville and Duncan, were arraigned yesterday before United States Commissioner Shields.

The police got hold of a circular sent by the green-goods artists to an out-of-town man. They set a trap and Detective Duncan acted as the "come-on." They got the prisoners and $700 in real money, which figured in the transaction.

When the men were arraigned Assistant United States District Attorney Houghton, who had prosecuted Clark before, said to him:

"Hello, back again?"

"I am afraid so," responded Clark.

"He is so fond of us he won't keep away," interposed Marshal Henkel.

The men were held in $5,000 each, and Clark furnished it.

REWARD FOR A BANK OFFICER.

Relatives of Abraham Schiffer of Alamosa, Col., Fear Suicide.

A reward of $500 has been offered by the relatives of Abraham Schiffer, through their attorneys, Cooke & Forsch, of 50 Pine Street, for information as to his whereabouts, whether living or dead. He was one of the officers of the defunct bank of Alamosa, Col.

In announcing the reward yesterday, the attorneys said Mr. Schiffer's relatives were convinced that he had ended his life. According to information given in the announcement, Mr. Schiffer came to New York about two weeks ago to secure assistance from his relatives. At that time he was without funds and borrowed money to take him home. On Thursday, Sept. 28, Mr. Schiffer expressed his intention of leaving on the 4:55 P. M. Pennsylvania train for Chicago. He was last seen about 3:30 o'clock on his way to the station. A telegram that had been received for him was sent to the train, but he was not aboard.

COOPER BANK WILL PAY DEPOSITORS IN FULL

Directors Ask Permission to Go Into Voluntary Liquidation.

LOANS GOOD, EXAMINER SAYS

Police Rushed to President Gotthelf's House on a False Report That a Mob Was Gathering There.

The Directors of the Cooper Exchange Bank, which was compelled to close its doors on Tuesday, held a meeting yesterday afternoon and at the close Morris H. Hayman, counsel of the bank, was instructed to send a petition to Supt. Kilburn of the State Banking Department asking permission to wind up the affairs of the bank by voluntary liquidation. The petition was sent to Albany last evening.

Mr. Hayman, who is also a stockholder in the bank, said that this was done to save the expense of a receivership. He expressed the opinion that the petition would be granted because such a course was generally followed where a banking institution that had been compelled to suspend business upon investigation had been found solvent.

It was said authoritatively by several of the Directors yesterday that the depositors would be paid in full.

"There are enough assets to pay the depositors and the stockholders of the bank," said Julius Lichtenstein, one of the Directors. "In any event, the depositors will not lose a cent of their money. The Directors have resolved unanimously to go down into their own pockets if necessary to make good any shortage, but no such action will be necessary. Had we had the slightest intimation of the condition of affairs a day or two in advance of the closing up of the bank, its doors would have been open to-day. We had complete confidence in President Gotthelf, and were taken as much by surprise as anybody. We are the largest depositors. One member of the board deposited $25,000 with the bank as late as Saturday."

Meantime Samuel Gotthelf, President of the bank, was reported too ill at his residence, 22 Convent Avenue, to come downtown to assist State Bank Examiner Judson and the expert accountants working under his direction in their labors. Mr. Gotthelf is said to be suffering from nervous prostration, following the sudden death of Cashier Krapp a week ago yesterday and successive events at the bank.

From the bedside of Mr. Gotthelf came a statement yesterday that he knew the condition of the bank, and that there was $1.47 for every $1 of the depositors' money. He said he believed the run on the bank was caused by the jealousy of other east side banks.

While everything was quiet about the quarters of the bank yesterday and the Roundsman and four policemen sent there by Capt. McDermott of the Fifth Street Station to maintain order had nothing to do, there were all sorts of rumors of disturbances about the home of Mr. Gotthelf. Early in the forenoon Sergt. Coleman of the Detective Bureau received a telephone message from somebody who said he was the son of President Gotthelf.

"A mob of 500 is in front of our house at 22 Convent Avenue," said the man. "The mob is hurling rocks at the windows and trying to wreck the house. Send police quick."

Sergt. Coleman notified the West 125th Street station and the reserves were rushed to the Gotthelf residence. A few minutes later Sergt. Coleman received another message, this time from a woman who said she was Mrs. Gotthelf.

"Why did you send the police here?" asked she. "There is no trouble. Please tell the officers to go away."

The reserves were withdrawn. It was learned later by the police that the only visitors to the house were two women, who asked to see the bank President.

Examiner Judson said last night that he thought most of the loans made by the bank were good.

OFFERED MACHINE FOR SALE.

Witness Meant Evidence, Say Plaintiffs in Asphalt Suit.

More testimony was taken yesterday before United States Commissioner Gilchrist in the Federal Building in the suit of the Venezuelan Government against the New York and Bermudez Company for $10,000,000 damages because of the company's alleged participation in the Matos revolution of 1901.

Letters alleged to have been written by the defendants' witness Miller to Charles Y. Baldwin, former secretary of Gen. Greene, President of the National Asphalt Company, were recorded, subject to objection by counsel for the defense. Baldwin has alleged that the witness Miller offered to sell to him for $5,000 facts in his possession which had an important hearing on the case. One of the letters reads:

Dear B.: Since conversing with you on Monday evening there have been important developments, and it seems to me your friends should move more quickly if they intend to neutralize what is being done. There is no doubt in my mind they will be expelled unless they take prompt action. My proposal to you is my final one.

Another letter reads:

Since receiving your special delivery I wired you. Destroy this and all notes.

In another letter this appears:

I would prefer to sell machine for lump sum. Please let me know about lumping it or contracting it.

It is asserted by Lawyer Dupignac for the Venezuelan Government that by the word "machine" the writer meant evidence he proposed to sell.

An outline of the evidence which Miller, according to Baldwin, agreed to sell was introduced at the last hearing. It includes correspondence showing the relations of former Minister Bowen with the asphalt company, and letters written to President Roosevelt by one "A. D." The hearing was adjourned.

THE ASTOR BARRED HIS WIFE.

Now Mr. Brown Is Suing Proprietor Muschenheim for $10,000.

William C. Muschenheim of the Hotel Astor is being sued for $10,000 in the United States Circuit Court in this city by William S. Brown, an exporter, who alleges accommodation at the hotel was refused to Mr. Brown and his wife on Aug. 6. Mr. Brown's complaint says that the refusal was made "in such a manner as to insinuate and charge that the plaintiff was intending and attempting to harbor in said hotel, to the injury of the regulation of the defendant as an innkeeper, a person who was not the lawful wife of the plaintiff."

The case, which grows out of a visit of Mr. and Mrs. Brown to the hotel to attend a dinner, has aroused considerable interest among lawyers because of the widespread discussion as to the rights of hotel keepers to refuse accommodation to those who ask for it. The dinner which Mr. and Mrs. Brown attended was late, and as their home is in Westfield, N. J., they decided to stay in town overnight rather than get home early in the morning.

The complaint says that the Hotel Astor's clerk allowed Mr. Brown to register and then kept him waiting for a while. Of course they had no baggage. The complaint says that the clerk at last refused to assign a room to them because of that. Then Mr. Brown offered to pay. According to the complaint, the clerk thereupon expressed his doubt as to the propriety of admitting Mrs. Brown to a room. To overcome this objection, although several persons had gathered near the desk to listen to the dispute, Mrs. Brown showed her wedding ring.

"We don't do business that way," said the clerk, according to the complaint.

He then suggested that the couple bring somebody to identify them. Mr. Brown had got tired of disputing, however, and he and his wife went to another hotel.

Here's a plain fact.

In the last few years we've had in stock several sorts of white shirts, trying to find the very best shirt to offer at $2.

When we showed them side by side, not caring which sort we sold, we found that one make outsold the others by many times.

The buyers found it so satisfactory a garment, in wear as well as looks, that it has become a sort of specialty with us.

We now have this $2 white shirt in no less than seven styles, and must believe from our experience that it's the finest thing of its sort to be had.

WRIGHT OUT, SAYS LOEB; UNTRUE, TAFT REPLIES

White House Statement Surprises War Secretary.

DENIES FRICTION AT MANILA

Gossip Laid Trouble to Corbin and Wood—Governor Coming to Inspect Railroad Bids.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Secretary Loeb, at the White House early this afternoon, announced that Luke E. Wright, Governor General of the Philippines and President of the Philippine Commission, had resigned and would leave his post in December, on returning to this country. He has six months' leave of absence, recently accorded him.

Secretary Taft was astonished by the announcement. He got his first news of the matter when the White House statement was reported to him, and he was called on to explain it.

Late to-night, several hours after the official statement, Secretary Taft declared that it was not true that Gov. Wright had resigned. He also made it emphatic that it was not true that Mr. Wright had encountered friction with Gens. Corbin and Wood and on that account had decided to quit his post.

Secretary Taft added to his denial a contradiction of the story, which appeared at the same time as the White House official statement, that the President and the Secretary already had fixed upon the man to be appointed in place of Gov. Wright, and that this man would be some one not at present connected in any way with the Philippines Commission.

The word that Gov. Wright had resigned stirred no end of comment in Washington, and the manner in which Secretary Taft took the White House statement only increased curiosity as to the true inwardness of the affair. It was recalled that once before within a week Mr. Taft had taken it upon himself to go to the President with a matter over which there seemed to be misunderstanding in some quarters.

The Secretary's standing in absolute confidence of the President was evidenced by the fact that he came away from the White House in that case with exactly the billet that he wanted. That was the declaration that the Secretary of War was the undisputed head of all matters pertaining to the Panama Canal, and as such ranked superior in all things to Mr. Shonts, the President's appointee, "to make the dirt fly." Very soon after the clarifying of that situation came the undoing of Mr. Shonts's biggest piece of work so far—the letting of the $50,000,000 Markel contract for feeding and caring for the canal employes.

Secretary Taft has just returned from a protracted absence abroad. Many things have had to be done in his branch of the Government while he was away. To some matters of the highest importance the President has given his personal attention, but others have gone through the hands of subordinates in the department. It is regarded as natural that the Secretary should make his first business on his return to review in some degree the acts in his absence.

Mr. Taft is not the man to hesitate to tell the President his ideas, and the President so highly regards Mr. Taft as an adviser that the Secretary's recommendations seldom fail of adoption. Secretary Taft is the chosen representative of the Administration. He especially represents the policies which the President upholds in opposition to the attacks by Foraker and others, who would make political capital in advance of 1908. This it is surmised may explain the confidence with which the Secretary to-night declared that an official statement from the White House was untrue; that Mr. Wright would return to Manila as Governor after the completion of his special mission to Washington in December.

The Secretary said that he was just from the Philippines, where he saw Gov. Wright the last moment before sailing, and he had no word or suggestion as to a resignation. In fact, when a report went back from the United States that Gov. Wright intended to resign after coming home on six months' leave, the Governor denied any such intention. Mrs. Wright also said that she was content with life in Manila, and there would be no reason on her account for the Governor to resign.

It had been thought that Gov. Wright might yield to the wish of his son that the Governor General come home and enter the Memphis law firm in which the son is the leading member. But even this proposal Gov. Wright did not entertain.

Secretary Taft said that Gov. Wright would be in Washington on Dec. 15 to assist in considering bids for the railroad concessions in the Philippines. When that duty was performed he would take his leave and in due time return to Manila.

MEMPHIS, Oct. 12.—Eldridge Wright said to-day that the news of his father's early retirement came entirely unexpected to him. He would not discuss the report of Gen. Wright's probable entry into State politics.

CLOSES FRIAR LAND DEAL.

Government to Pay the Dominicans $3,050,000 This Month.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Secretary Taft has approved a settlement arranged by the Philippine Government which completes the purchase of the friar lands. After the contracts were signed it was found that a mistake had occurred by reason of a difference in the Spanish and English surveys. The Spanish version made the price $200,000 more than the English version. It also was found that the titles to eight tracts were defective.

While Secretary Taft was in the Philippines he effected a compromise by which the titles were to be made complete, and the purchase money paid according to the English version, while the $200,000 in controversy was to be submitted to arbitration. Since his return the Secretary has received a cable from Gov. Wright, saying that the friars' agents have offered to compromise by accepting $50,000. Secretary Taft to-day cabled Gov. Wright approving the compromise.

The total amount to be paid is $3,050,000. The money will be paid in New York about Oct. 20.

KING NAMED IN WATT CASE.

Witness, Who Admits Perjury, Says Monarch Wanted Affair Hushed Up.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—To-day's proceedings in the case of Hugh Watt, the ex-Member of Parliament who is charged with attempting to bribe a private detective named Marshall to assist him in murdering Watt's former wife, were marked by the sensational withdrawal by the cattleman, Norman Battle, of the evidence which he gave on Sept. 22, when he alleged that he had overheard a conversation between Marshall and another man in which Watt was threatened.

Battle to-day said his real name was Lightfoot and that Watt, accompanied by a man describing himself as an equerry of King Edward, met the witness in Hyde Park on Aug. 24 and informed him that the King wished the case to be withdrawn. At Watt's dictation, Battle (or Lightfoot) wrote a letter to Watt's lawyer saying he could clear Watt. Watt also dictated the evidence which the witness gave on Sept. 22.

Battle added that he had received about $200 from Watt and the equerry. They advised him to go to Canada, and promised him $25,000 and a Government position for life.

Replying to further questions, Battle said the supposed equerry was introduced as "Lord Kinloch." The latter said the case was to be "hushed up" by order of the King, who was a friend of Lady Violet Watt.

The other evidence was merely an unilluminative amplification of the previous testimony.

The case was adjourned until Oct. 27.

Lady Violet Watt, wife of Hugh Watt, is the daughter of the late Earl of Roden. In 1880 she married Sir Reginald Beauchamp, Bart. He divorced here in 1901. She was named as co-respondent in the first Mrs. Watt's suit for divorce.

MARKEL GAVE UP CONTRACT.

Omaha Man Saw No Profit in $50,000,000 Panama Concession.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The Government will feed its employes and laborers on the Isthmus of Panama—at least, that is the present intention. This is the general principle of administration adopted by the Canal Commission after visiting the Isthmus in company with the consulting engineers from abroad. An incident of this decision is the cancellation of the Markel contract for the eating concession on the Isthmus. This was done by consent of both contracting parties.

Mr. Markel visited the Isthmus before he made his bid for the concession, and thought he saw where he could make a good profit. He accompanied Mr. Shonts and the Canal Commission to the Isthmus, and there found Gov. Magoon, who is an old friend of his, and Chief Engineer Stevens prepared to report on the facilities of the Government Supply Department to cope with the commissary problems on the Isthmus.

After a study of the situation and fully taking into consideration the necessary organization required for the satisfactory performance of his contract, Mr. Markel was quite as willing to be released from his agreement as were various members of the commission to have him.

The commission now will go forward with the commissary work on the Isthmus as it has with the sanitation problem. Within the last few days large orders for lumber have been placed, and it is proposed to build ample quarters for men and officers. The commission will not try to push any constructive work on the canal until it has carried out the present plans of preparation for housing and feeding large numbers of men.

The plans contemplate the care ultimately of 31,000 men. It is said that there will be no trouble whatever in getting laborers when the preparations are made for comfortable care of those who go to the Isthmus. The Supply Department of the Canal Commission will take charge of all hotels and boarding houses in the zone and run them under rules that will guarantee satisfaction.

Secretary Taft was not consulted in the matter of canceling the Markel contract, and the commission acted entirely on its own responsibility. He approves what has been done, and to-day said that, notwithstanding statements to the contrary, there was now, as there always had been, entire accord between himself and Mr. Shonts. He saw no reason why this relation should not continue permanently until their work should be completed.

MR. TAYLOR QUITS NEWPORT.

$1,000,000 Assessment Leads Him to Register at Portsmouth, R. I.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, Oct. 12.—As a result of the largely increased tax against him this year, Henry A. C. Taylor has had his name taken from the voting lists of this city and become a citizen of Portsmouth, where he owns a large property, including the Glen Farm, in the vicinity of Oakland Farm and Sandy Point, owned, respectively, by Alfred G. and Reginald C. Vanderbilt.

Mr. Taylor has been a citizen of Newport for many years, paying a tax until this year on $100,000 personal property. This year his assessment was $1,000,000. Mr. Taylor asked for a reduction which was refused, and paid the tax under protest.

In Portsmouth he will pay at the rate of $8, instead of $12.50, on each $1,000. It is possible that others will purchase farms and establish legal residence in either Middletown or Portsmouth, the tax rate in either town being very much less than in Newport.

FORTY HITS IN FORTY SHOTS.

World's Record Claimed for the Colorado's 6-Inch Gun Crew.

NEWPORT, Oct. 12.—The remarkable success which attended the recent target practice of the new cruiser Colorado was shown in the figures announced to-day by an officer of the ship. It is declared that the record never has been equaled by any other warship in the world.

With the six-inch breech-loading gun at a range of 3,500 yards, the target being a triangular canvas, forty shots were fired and forty hits were made. The percentage of accuracy was .98. Ten shots were fired from each of the four eight-inch breech-loading rifles, and only three missed were recorded.

W. M. IVINS FOR MAYOR; NOTIFIED AND ACCEPTS

Best Man We Could Have Chosen, Lauterbach Calls Him.

REPUBLICANS JOYFUL AGAIN

Mr. Ivins Promises to Make the Campaign of His Life—Believes the Time Ripe for Success.

William M. Ivins is the Republican candidate for Mayor. He was chosen by the Republican Committee on Vacancies at a meeting held yesterday afternoon at the Republican Club, and was notified of his nomination at his office in the Lord's Court Building, in William Street, last evening. He accepted, and said later in a talk with the reporters that his acceptance was given with the profound belief that conditions were ripe for a successful campaign against Tammany.

The Committee on Vacancies has not yet decided who shall take the place of Richard Young as the nominee for Controller. Last night these names were under consideration: Abraham Abraham, Charles E. Teale, George R. Howe, and R. Ross Appleton. They are all Brooklynites. James L. Wells has already accepted the nomination for President of the Board of Aldermen.

After the meeting of the Committee on Vacancies at the Republican Club, at which it was decided to offer the nomination for Mayor to Mr. Ivins, Edward Lauterbach, who first suggested Mr. Ivins as a man who would make an excellent candidate, said:

"This is the best day's work I have ever done in my life. Mr. Ivins is the best man we could have chosen."

County Chairman Halpin was elated over the fortunate ending of his long search for an available man who would accept. He said: "Mr. Ivins is a magnificent campaigner, and I believe he will be a winning candidate. He is a man who has done a great deal for the city, understands municipal problems thoroughly, and will make an excellent impression upon every audience he addresses."

The opinion was generally expressed that an excellent selection had been made, and the doleful countenances seen at the Fifth Avenue Hotel during the search for candidates brightened.

Notifying Mr. Ivins.

The committee to notify Mr. Ivins of his nomination assembled at his office at 5:30 o'clock. Mr. Halpin was Chairman, and Edward Lauterbach, William Berri, and Samuel Strasbourger were among its members. Mr. Ivins was notified in his private office. Besides the members of the Notification Committee there were a dozen or more reporters and half a dozen photographers. When the newspaper men and the photographers filed in Mr. Ivins said:

"This looks formidable."

"It's inevitable when we have a notification," said Mr. Halpin.

"They didn't do this when I was in politics in the old days," remarked Mr. Ivins good naturedly. Then he added, "But I have been out of politics for a good many years."

The committee took its place and the photographers adjusted their instruments. Mr. Ivins seated himself at his desk and Mr. Halpin, stepping forward, reached into the inside pocket of his coat and took out the speech he had prepared. While he was fumbling over it those present had a good opportunity to study Mr. Ivins.

What the Candidate Looks Like.

Although he gives his age as 55, the casual observer would take him to be older. His hair is decidedly gray and rather scanty on top. He has good features. The most striking characteristic of his face is his eyes, which are remarkably keen and piercing. Yesterday Mr. Ivins wore a brown business suit and low-cut tan shoes. He looked what he is—a successful man of affairs, and while his countenance might indicate that he is older than he really is, his manner is that of a much younger man. He is alert and quick in movement and incisive in speech. He has a well-knit frame, is fond of athletics and outdoor sports, and keeps himself in prime condition always. He is not afraid that the vigorous campaign he intends to wage will tax his strength. He remarked with a laugh when asked about that:

"I am an old campaigner and a hard one, and I expect to make the campaign of my life this time."

Halpin's Speech.

When Mr. Halpin had found his manuscript and looked it over, he made this address:

On behalf of the committee appointed by the Republican City Convention to fill vacancies in the nominations of that convention I am pleased to inform you that you have been unanimously chosen by that committee as the candidate of the Republican Party for Mayor of the City of New York.

Your selection has been determined by the same purpose as was evidenced by the nomination of Mr. Charles E. Hughes by the Republican City Convention: To offer the people of this city as a candidate for Mayor a man of honorable and distinctive achievement in behalf of our people, one of unblemished repute, and with a proved capacity and ability to properly meet the responsibilities of the office of Mayor of this city.

Aside from the general interest you have always taken in municipal affairs, your official position in the government of the old City of New York during the terms of three Mayors has afforded you the experience to intelligently deal with the problem of our government, and the repute you acquired during the same period as to the character of your achievements will afford to the people of this city assurance of the faithful care all their interests will have in your administration as Mayor.

Our platform maintains the traditions of our party, giving expression to the evils which menace the interests of our city in the self-should have your first care.

evident working arrangement between the present city administration and some of the public utility corporations; it offers a complete remedy for the exactions and injustice imposed upon the city and its inhabitants by the lighting trust and pledges the administration to secure the enactment of laws which will best safeguard the interests of the city as to all future subway franchises; it declares that the government of this city shall be maintained without regard to partisan considerations.

Your candidacy for Mayor in the present political situation will give hope and encouragement

NEW 'PHONE COMPANY RIGHTS

Its Franchise Granted Before the Bell Company's, Finucane Says.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 12.—In a statement given out here to-day by Thomas W. Finucane, President of the United States Telephone Company, relative to the terms of that company's franchise in New York City, he says:

"Our franchise is an operating property, and has been for more than ten years. It was granted by the Board of Electrical Control, which at that time was the franchise-granting body of the city with respect to telephones."

Mr. Finucane says that the Bell franchise was granted July 9, 1896, and the New York Independent franchise was granted June 29, 1894. He continued:

"Our franchise was granted originally to the Mercantile Electric Company and by papers filed with the Secretary of State and County Clerk on the 7th inst., was merged into the New York Independent Telephone Company, the stock of which is controlled by the United States Independent Telephone Company.

"The Mercantile Company began the construction and operation of its system throughout the subways of the Empire City Subway Company and subsidiary conduits constructed for its own account, which it owns. These cables and wires extend through portions of Broadway, Wall, Cortland, Cedar, Pine, Nassau, and Broad Streets. The system now centres in 120 Broadway, where its switchboards are located.

SKIPPER DIMMERS HAS QUIT.

A Centenarian Canalboat Admiral Hauls Down His Flag.

Capt. Charles Dimmers, fearing an accident because his eyes are growing dim with age, retired yesterday from his "seafaring life," as he terms it. He has just passed the century mark, and is the oldest canaler around New York.

When he was younger he owned a fleet of canalboats that went to ports all along the Atlantic Coast. As he grew feeble with age, and the cares of business became too weighty for him, he sold them one by one, till none but his flagship, as he called it, the H. H. Baker, was left. On that he had lived seventy-nine years, and on it he expected to die.

He had had a little admiralty suit in the New Jersey courts, and after its settlement he drifted up river on the Baker, and was tied up at Albany when word was brought to his son, in Jersey City, that his father was down with fever. The son hastened thither, but to find the old man nearly recovered.

"But, father," the son said, "you must give up the boat."

"No," the old man answered, shaking his head.

"But you are too old. You may have an accident. Remember, you have never had an accident in all your life. It would be too bad to keep at it till one happens."

The old man meditated for a moment.

"Well," he said, "there's something in that. I guess this is a good time to stop."

Arrangements were made for the sale of the flagship, and the old boatman picked out a top floor room in his son's house in Washington Street, Jersey City, from which he can see the passing river craft.

"It's the first time in seventy-nine year," he said, as he sat by the window yesterday, "that I have trod any deck but my own."

LEBAUDY AIRSHIP A SUCCESS.

Goes 28 Miles an Hour—Officers in It Inspect Forts.

TOUL, France, Oct. 12.—The huge Lebaudy dirigible balloon, constructed under the patronage of the War Office, made its first successful ascent to-day with some chief engineers and a party of officers, who made an extensive reconnaissance of the military defenses from Toul to Nancy, near the German frontier.

The balloon ascended about 655 yards, passing over Fort Vendreville and the defensive works in the Haye Forest. On reaching the barracks at Blandan the balloon turned back and went directly to Toul, where it descended in the midst of a crowd of enthusiastic engineer officers and soldiers. The distance covered was about thirty miles, at a rate of twenty-eight miles an hour.

The officers made inspections of the forts and took photographs of them, thus establishing the merits of dirigible balloons for war purposes.

CHINA WANTS TO SHOW OFF.

Troops Urged to Do the Country Credit in the Manoeuvres.

PEKING, Oct. 12.—Much curiosity is felt regarding the forthcoming Chinese military manoeuvres. They will be conducted in the neighborhood of Pao-ting-Foo and will continue from Oct. 23 to Oct. 26. They will be on entirely modern lines, and upward of 40,000 men of all arms will be in line. The manoeuvres will be the first of the kind ever held in China.

Yuan Shi-Ki, the Commander in Chief of the Chinese Army, has issued a proclamation urging the troops to do their best and to avoid making themselves a laughing stock in the eyes of foreigners.

An imperial edict has been issued establishing a new board dealing with police matters, which have hitherto been left in the hands of local officials of the various provinces. They will henceforth be regulated from a central department.

FORGIVE THE PRESIDENT.

Delegation of Charleston People Call at the White House.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—For the first time since the appointment of Dr. W. D. Crum, the negro, as Collector of the Port of Charleston, S. C., a delegation of Charleston people called on the President at the White House to-day.

The delegation consisted of Mayor Rhett, ex-Mayor Smythe, J. F. Ficken, Aldermen T. C. Peters, R. M. Pinckney, Wilson G. Harvey, Samuel Lapham, and J. M. Seignious. They came to Washington to discuss with Secretary Bonaparte the presentation to the cruiser Charleston of a silver service and to thank the President for his interest in the Charleston Navy Yard.

The delegates warmly felicitated the President on his achievement in bringing about peace between Russia and Japan. The President received the delegates cordially, and later on his invitation Mayor Rhett and ex-Mayor Smythe took luncheon with him.

HEARST CONVENTION THE BIGGEST OF ALL

Nominee Says He Has No Misgivings About Winning Now.

GOT A 14-MINUTE OVATION

"Boos" for a Jerome Supporter—Ford and Stokes Nominated to Fill Out the Ticket.

At the Municipal Ownership Convention meeting last night in Carnegie Hall this ticket was nominated:

For Mayor—WILLIAM R. HEARST.
For Controller—JOHN FORD.
For President of the Board of Aldermen—J. G. PHELPS STOKES.

If enthusiasm counts for anything, the regular party organizations will have to reckon more seriously with the third ticket than they thought up to last night. The crowd at Carnegie Hall far exceeded the attendance at the Democratic or the Republican City Convention. At the hour set for calling the convention to order the hall was packed, and there were several thousand persons on the outside who could not get in. Overflow meetings were held for them.

In his speech to the convention after the nomonations had been made, Mr. Hearst said: "I am proud of my friends who will support me, and I am proud of my enemies who will oppose me."

He said that he had been reluctant to enter the campaign, but that the enthusiasm of the convention had done away with all misgivings on his part, and that he now believed the third ticket would win.

Mrs. Hearst occupied a box and Mrs. J. G. Phelps Stokes was there. There were many other women present, and during the demonstration for Mr. Hearst, lasting fourteen minutes, they were conspicuous in leading the applause.

The Crowd a Surprise.

The appearance and demeanor of the crowd in the hall was a subject of remark. It was by no means a "tin bucket" brigade entirely. There were hundreds of well-dressed and apparently well-to-do citizens on the platform and on the main floor of the hall. The two tiers of boxes were mostly filled with women, and there were a dozen or more women on the stage.

When J. G. Phelps Stokes, the first of the candidates to arrive, stepped upon the platform at 8 o'clock he was enthusiastically greeted. Then cheers for Hearst and Ford were called for and as enthusiastically given.

"Three cheers for Ella Wheeler Wilcox!" shouted a man in the gallery.

"What's the matter with Beatrice Fairfax?" shouted somebody else.

The convention was called to order at 8 o'clock by Max F. Ihmsen, who in behalf of the Executive Committee of the Municipal Ownership League, presented Thomas Gilleran as temporary Chairman of the convention.

Mr. Gilleran said the attendance not only far exceeded what the opponents of the Municipal Ownership Party had anticipated, but far exceeded what the leaders of the municipal ownership movement expected.

A Committee of Fifteen on Resolutions with Melvin W. Palliser as Chairman, was appointed. All suggestions for the platform were referred to the committee without debate. The temporary organization of the convention was made permanent.

Making History, Shearn Says.

Mr. Gilleran introduced Clarence J. Shearn, who is William R. Hearst's counsel, to address the convention while the Committee on Resolutions was preparing its report.

"It seems to me we are making history to-night," said Mr. Shearn. "It seems to me that something of that Missouri spirit which landed Joseph W. Folk in the Governor's chair is abroad in New York." [Cheers.]

When Mr. Shearn mentioned the name of Charles F. Murphy there were loud "hoos" all over the hall.

"The gas trust, the insurance trust, and the political grafters' trust are all against Hearst," said Mr. Shearn. "They don't like the plain talk in which he indulges in his newspapers about their doings.

"What would you say," continued Mr. Shearn, "if you knew positively that the gas trust was paying money to divers and sundry newspapers in this town for reading matter, advertisements, denouncing municipal ownership, and advocating the election of McClellan? I have in my hands here to-night two newspapers that have been called to my attention to-day; one is a paper of large circulation on the east side, known as The Jewish Daily Herald; another is a paper of large circulation and influence on the east side, known as The Jewish Morning Journal; and I find in these two newspapers identical articles, in the guise of reading matter, which were paid for at the rate of $160 a column per day by the Gas Trust, advocating McClellan and denouncing municipal ownership. [Hisses.]

"In The Jewish Morning Journal, which is a Republican organ, they could not quite swallow this thing without an explanatory statement, and they start out on their editorial page, saying that on Page 7 is printed an article about Mayor George B. McClellan and against municipal ownership and that the article is nothing but a paid ad. [Laughter and applause.]

"Now, then, this article in the other paper, the Tammany organ on the east side, which was not so entirely frank about explaining the matter, is identical however, and is headed in The Jewish Herald, 'McClellan's Great Business Capacity.'" [Laughter.]

The Platform.

The platform, which was read by Secretary John T. Oates, was similar to the tentative platform adopted at the Grand Central Palace meeting. It declares that public necessities and public values created by the people shall be owned by the people.

It demands the immediate establishment and operation by the city of a gas plant.

It declares for the construction of all future subways by the city and their operation by the city as soon as the city shall be legally and financially able to operate them. Meantime, it declares in favor of the granting of none but short-term leases.

Navy Orders One to Australia So Americans May See the Flag.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Orders have been cabled to Rear Admiral Train, commanding the Asiatic station, to detach a ship from his fleet for a cruise in Australian waters some time this Fall.

There are many Americans in Australia, some of whom have called attention to the fact that the American flag has not appeared in those waters for some time.

$6,000 PRIZE FOR A BOOK.

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—Dr. Richard D. Harlan at Lake Forest University announces that the winner of the William Bross $3,000 prize for the best book on a religious subject is the Rev. Dr. James Orr of Glasgow College.

In accordance with the will of William Bross, who died in 1879 and left a fund for the purpose, Dr. Orr will be required to come to Lake Forest next year and give a course of lectures. The competition is held every ten years.

VANDIVER WILL WAIT.

Missouri Official Will Not Act in New York Life Case Yet.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 12.—State Superintendent of Insurance W. D. Vandiver said to-day:

"No action will be taken at this time against the New York Life Insurance Company. When I served the original notice upon the company I agreed to give it thirty days in which to make reply, and nothing will be done until that limit expires."

Mr. Vandiver said this after a conference here to-day in which Gov. Folk, Supt. Vandiver, and Attorneys F. N. Judson and E. C. Crow, representing the New York Life Insurance Company, took part.

TENNESSEE INSURANCE QUERY

Commissioner Folk Sends a List of Questions to the Companies.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 12.—Indiana insurance companies received by mail to-day a long interrogation from Insurance Commissioner Folk of Tennessee. Mr. Folk is a brother of the Governor of Missouri. The President of each company is asked to answer in detail whether or not the company has subscribed directly or indirectly to any campaign fund of either party since 1896; whether the company has disbursed any sum of money at any time to influence legislation, State or National.

The inference is that any company failing to answer the questions satisfactorily will be forthwith prohibited from writing insurance in Tennessee.

PLATT'S SALARY RELEASED.

Omaha Court Sets Miss Mae Woods's Garnishment Aside.

Special to The New York Times.

OMAHA, Oct. 12.—In the District Court here to-day Mae Woods's garnishment of Senator Platt's salary as President of the United States Express Company was denied and the salary was released by order of the court. The salary was attached a month ago when Miss Woods filed a damage suit against Senator Platt.

The garnishment came to trial Monday, and testimony was heard at that time, but the decision was withheld until to-day. The suit itself still holds.

THREE-TRACK PLAN UP AGAIN.

Interborough Makes It the Price of an Improvement for the Bronx.

Attempts were made by the Interborough Company yesterday, at the meeting of the Rapid Transit Commission, to revive the old plan to three-track the Second and Third Avenue elevated lines. Vice President E. P. Bryan, replying to a request from the commission to alternate the Subway and elevated trains at 149th Street, so as to do away with the cumbersome transfer system, wrote the board that such a plan could not be considered by his company unless the board was willing to permit the three-tracking of the east side elevated lines.

The letter was ordered referred to President Haffen of the Bronx, from whom the complaint of present conditions in his borough emanated.

EARL SPENCER STRICKEN.

Suffers a Stroke of Paralysis—It Was Thought He Would Be Premier.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—Earl Spencer was stricken with paralysis to-day while at his shooting box at Faxenham, Norfolk.

He is still unconscious as this dispatch is filed.

It has been regarded as practically certain that Lord Spencer would be the next British Premier. The election of a Liberal House of Commons when the Balfour Government retires is supposed to be assured, and Lord Spencer is understood to have been the King's choice for Prime Minister.

Lord Spencer is now the Liberal leader in the House of Lords. He has held some of the highest Court and Governmental offices in the kingdom. He has twice been Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, twice Lord President of the Council, and once First Lord of the Admiralty.

He was born in 1835, and succeeded to the Earldom when he was 22 years old.

CUMMINS KEEPS AFTER SHAW.

Reopens Controversy Over Chicago Speech—For Tariff Revision.

DES MOINES, Ia., Oct. 12.—Gov. Cummins of Iowa to-night, in an address before the Polk County Republican Club, revived the controversy between himself and Secretary Shaw over the question of whether Gov. Cummins in an address delivered in Chicago several weeks ago, correctly quoted certain parts of a speech made by Secretary Shaw before the Des Moines Commercial Club. The Governor concluded with:

"I may say in passing that since I made my speech in Chicago and since the Secretary of the Treasury called upon me for my authority for the statement made there a dozen men who heard the speech have offered me their affidavits attesting the accuracy of the report made by the editor."

Gov. Cummins's speech to-night was in favor of immediate tariff revision and for reciprocity. He declared that all talk of harmony in the Republican Party on the tariff issue was idle until one side or the other had been honestly convinced of its error or utterly defeated.

OSBORNE IS CHOSEN INSTEAD OF JEROME

Tammany's Orators Call the District Attorney Erratic.

DOOLING FOR COUNTY CLERK

O'Sullivan for General Sessions, Gass for Register—Slate Made Late, But Cheered None the Less.

These nominations were made by Tammany last night:

For Judge of General Sessions—THOMAS C. O'SULLIVAN.
For District Attorney—JAMES W. OSBORNE.
For Sheriff—NICHOLAS J. HAYES.
For County Clerk—PETER J. DOOLING.
For Register—FRANK GASS.
For Borough President—JOHN F. AHEARN.
For Coroners—JULIUS HARBURGER, GEORGE F. SHRADY, Jr., PETER P. ACRITELLI, and PETER DOOLEY.

Tammany did not nominate Jerome. James W. Osborne was chosen for District Attorney without opposition, and his nomination was the signal for an enthusiastic demonstration.

Most of the interest in the convention was centred in this one nomination, which was the fifth on the schedule for the convention, and as the nominations were called for by the Chairman the dense crowd that packed old Tammany Hall until the girders creaked drew in a long breath and strained to hear every word that was spoken. Not once in the speeches that were made nominating and seconding for Mr. Osborne was Mr. Jerome's name mentioned, but frequent references were made to the present incumbent of the District Attorney's office. He was called by inference "sensational," "erratic," and "spectacular," and was abused for having in previous years turned his hack on Tammany.

The County Convention, with the Borough Convention, which followed immediately after, did not lack for enthusiasm. All of the old Tammany wheelhorses were on hand and spoke for candidates, and the greatest satisfaction was expressed on all sides with the ticket nominated.

Not until after the convention had been called to order by Magistrate Charles G. F. Wahle, as Acting Chairman of the Executive Committee, did the word get around that Mr. Osborne had been selected. That was at 8:25 o'clock, and the crowd which packed the hall had been waiting since shortly after 7 o'clock.

It Was Settled Late.

In the afternoon information had come from a reliable source that the chances were overwhelmingly against any indorsement of Mr. Jerome. Mr. Osborne was known to be most favorably under consideration, but there were several elements of doubt which complicated the situation. All day long Charles F. Murphy had been taking counsel from all sides on the situation, and just prior to the Executive Committee meeting the slate was completed. The district leaders were jubilant when they heard of the decision of the "upper council," and as they filed into the convention hall the word quickly was passed from mouth to mouth through the body of the delegates, but did not reach the galleries and the waiting crowds.

Bayne's Sixty-ninth Regiment Band had been doing its best with frequent playing of "Tammany" and other favorites to hold in check the growing restlessness. At last, when Magistrate Wahle called the delegates to order, the crowd eased off with its shouting and cheering and settled down to business. Magistrate Wahle presented the name of Charles H. Knox as the temporary Chairman of the County Convention, and then there was the usual fun as Secretary Thomas F. Smith called a rapid-fire roll. In taking the chair Mr. Knox lauded Mayor McClellan and his associates on the city ticket, and declared that the tickets named would win as surely as the sun would rise on Nov. 7. Frequent applause interrupted his speech.

Matthew F. Donahoe, leader of the Twenty-first District, offered a resolution making the temporary officers of the convention permanent, and Senator Grady was recognized to offer the resolutions constituting the county platform. These resolutions indorsed the city ticket, headed by Mayor McClellan, and indorsed the city platform as well. The concluding clause demanded from the Assemblymen named by Tammany public declaration of their support of such legislation as will stop incompetency and disregard of the benefit of policy holders in insurance companies. It was vigorously applauded.

The Justices Nominated.

At 8:42, on motion of Senator Frawley, the convention went to nominating. M. Warley Platzek nominated Justice Gildersleeve to succeed himself. Mr. Platzek lauded Justice Gildersleeve and his judicial record, and said that his renomination would be a further vindication of the principle that politics has no place on the bench. Thomas C. T. Crain, ex-Tenement House Commissioner, seconded the nomination, and then, in exactly ten minutes after Mr. Platzek was recognized, the Secretary had cast one ballot for Justice Gildersleeve, on order of the convention, and he was declared nominated.

Corporation Counsel Delany followed and placed Justice Ingraham in nomination, also to succeed himself. This nomination required but seven minutes from start to finish, as there were no seconding speeches. Assistant Corporation Counsel Arthur C. Butts was scheduled to second the nomination, but he did not show up when the Chairman called his name and the single ballot, as in the case of all the nominations made, was cast on Mr. Delany's motion. Col. Asa Bird Gardiner made the nominating speech for Judge Newburger.

"Tammany Hall always gives a business administration," he said. "When reform occasionally does come in taxes go up, trouble arises, and the people only too soon are glad to return to Tammany Hall. Our judicial nominations always have been especially creditable, and our judiciary is the peer of any in the land. Our Judges have been the most eminent in the State, but we never have put forward a name with more satisfaction or confidence than that of Joseph E. Newburger."

The demonstration which greeted Judge Newburger's name was more enthusiastic than any that had been made. Senator Jacob Marks seconded the nomination, as did City Judge Lewis J. Conlon, who had served on the City Court bench with Judge Newburger. One ballot was cast for the nomination, and it was declared made after occupying eleven minutes' time.

Senator Thomas F. Grady nominated ex-Senator Thomas C. O'Sullivan for the General Sessions bench, to succeed Judge Newburger. He said that Senator O'Sullivan always had been a consistent Democrat.

"Why, he even was a Democrat in Vermont before he came to New York," declared the Senator, "and any man who was a Democrat in Vermont would be a Democrat until the end of his days, no matter where he lives. Even in Vermont, however, Senator O'Sullivan's worth was felt by his party associates, for seventeen years ago he ran for Lieutenant Governor in that State.

"When he came to New York sixteen years ago his Democracy was so ingrained that he inquired the direction to Tammany Hall even before he located at a hotel."

Assistant Corporation Counsel Charles L. Guy, who had served with Senator O'Sullivan in the State Senate, seconded the nomination, and one ballot was cast as before.

McIntyre Names Osborne.

"The convention now will proceed to nominate a candidate for District Attorney," announced Chairman Knox at 9:30 o'clock, with a bang of his gavel. The crowd stirred, a murmured "hush!" went around, and John F. McIntyre was recognized. Everybody leaned forward to catch his words as he took the platform.

"Never before were the future prospects of the Democratic Party brighter than to-night," declared Mr. McIntyre. "This is due to the fact that the present Democratic administration in the city has been honest, efficient, conscientious, and faithful. The present enjoyment of public confidence can only be retained by a continuance in office of men like those now in control of the City Government. The people are impressed with the sincerity of Tammany Hall, and they know it is the only organization that affords a liberal and efficient government.

"No Tammany Hall man was involved in the insurance frauds that have horrified the civilized world. That was left for the Depews and the Schiffs, who for years went about dilating on reforms and assassinating the reputations of Tammany men. We must continue electing people of trust and confidence.

"On the first day of January there will be inducted into the office of District Attorney of this county a successor to the man who now holds that office."

At this, the first real indication to the assembled mass that Jerome would not be nominated, the crowd turned itself loose, howled, cheered, and shrieked so that it was several minutes before Mr. McIntyre could proceed.

"It has been mooted," he continued, "that there was not to be found in Tammany Hall a man of capacity and calibre to make him proper material for District Attorney. That is wrong. I will name you a Tammany Hall man who never was affiliated with a Fusion movement. There is no doubt of his Democracy, for he never has been outside the breastworks. The office he will fill is mighty, second to none in the land, and it should be filled with a man who is not a sensationalist, one of unimpaired intellect, and free from erraticisms, one who will not be a public persecutor, but one who will protect the innocent when accused as well as prosecute the guilty. The candidate I will name has been connected with the District Attorney's office for many years, and was its most famous trial lawyer. He prosecuted with zeal, but with fairness; he is free from sensationalism, and does not cater for notoriety at the expense of human happiness. I nominate James W. Osborne."

And the Crowd Whoops.

Then the crowd let out with one of those regular war-whoop cheers for which Tammany braves are famous. Flags, hats, and handkerchiefs were waved, and it was several minutes before order could be restored.

"And when Mr. Osborne is in the District Attorney's office," declared Mr. McIntyre, "every man will, in the language of our President, get 'a square deal.'"

George Gordon Battle made a short speech seconding Mr. Osborne's nomination, and the nomination was made, by the Secretary casting the single ballot of the convention. The rest of the county nominations were put through in short order. Abraham Levy nominated Fire Commissioner Hayes for Sheriff, with the remark that Hayes came from the Thirty-third District, where the people did not make much noise, but delivered the goods whenever Tammany Hall called on it. It was evident there were hundreds of Hayes enthusiasts in the hall by the noise that greeted the nomination. One man having a fire gong, such as is attached to the carriages of the Battalion Chiefs for use while racing through the streets. This gong did yeoman service during the Hayes demonstration. John F. Cowan, Aqueduct Commissioner, seconded the Hayes nomination.

Justice Winthrop Lynn named Senator Peter J. Dooling for County Clerk, and Alfred J. Talley seconded the nomination. Magistrate Wahle nominated Alderman Frank Gass of the Bronx for Register, and this wound up the nominations of the County Convention, which adjourned at 10:20 o'clock.

The Borough Convention was immediately called to order by James J. Martin, and Mr. Knox again was named for Chairman. Abraham Stern, who nominated John F. Ahearn for Borough President two years ago, did it again, and the seconding speech, as before, was made by Congressman William Sulzer. He occupied more time for his speech than was consumed by the entire County Convention. But he finished at last, and the nomination was made. By that time most of the people had left the hall, but those who remained gave Ahearn a hearty demonstration.

More delay resulted in the nominations for Coroners, but at last all four were nominated. Julius Harburger, who heads the list, is the Tammany leader of the Tenth District; George F. Shrady, Jr., son of Dr. Shrady, comes from the Twenty-second District; Peter P. Acritelli comes from "Tim" Sullivan's Sixth District, where he is a banker and real estate dealer, while Peter Dooley comes from the Nineteenth District. He was backed by James J. Hagan, the district leader. The nominations of the Coroners let loose another flood of Sulzer-like oratory, with the result that it was nearly midnight when the nominations were concluded and the Borough Convention adjourned.

AS JEROME HEARD IT.

His Friends, It Is Said, Opposed Choice of Osborne Hard.

Although nothing of the sort got out to the reporters at Tammany's convention last night, a report reached District Attorney Jerome afterward that James W. Osborne had been nominated for District Attorney only after a lively discussion. At least three of the men taking part in the conference were said to have fought Mr. Murphy's choice of Mr. Osborne to the last ditch, and with a fierceness of determination that made the Tammany leader pause. Putting it roughly, according to the report, it looked as if all the districts south of Fourteenth Street were bent on having Mr. Jerome on the ticket. But voices in his favor were heard from uptown as well.

The report also had it that one of the men that right along has stood out most energetically for Jerome was a Supreme Court Justice, who yesterday, it was said, went so far as to threaten to resign from the bench if Osborne was nominated for the District Attorneyship. The fight that began in the conference was carried over into the meeting of the Executive Committee and raged merrily until finally Mr. Murphy succeeded in whipping the last man into line. But even then mutterings were heard, it was said.

Things were very quiet last night around District Attorney Jerome's headquarters in the Gilsey House. What would happen at the Tammany Hall Convention was known there early in the day, the only uncertainty for some time being as to who would be selected by the Wigwam to make the run against Mr. Jerome. At one time rumor had it that Recorder Goff had been selected, but this was soon followed by authentic information as to the candidature of Mr. Osborne.

Mr. Jerome reached his headquarters about 4 o'clock in the afternoon and remained there till nearly midnight. Early in the evening he prepared a very brief statement, but later he changed his mind and refused to speak at all. His only response to the action of Tammany Hall was the giving out of the following schedule of meetings at which he will speak next week:

Wednesday, Carnegie Hall; Thursday, Murray Hill Lyceum, at Thirty-fourth Street and Third Avenue, and Grand Central Hall, at 90 Clinton Street; Friday, Zeltner's Morrisania Hall, at 170th Street and Third Avenue.

Late in the evening Mr. Jerome had a long talk with his principal lieutenants, including John A. Henneberry, who is the chief manager of his campaign. From this meeting the candidate emerged wearing his broadest smile.

Among the visitors early in the evening was Mrs. Jerome.

THE DEMOCRATIC NOMINEES.

Who Osborne and Hayes Are—The Supreme Court Candidates.

JAMES W. OSBORNE, the Tammany nominee for District Attorney, was an assistant in the District Attorney's office for eleven years. He left the office in 1903 to return to his law practice. District Attorney Jerome at the time called him "a most excellent man and lawyer."

A native of North Carolina, Mr. Osborne is now about forty-six years old. He is a graduate of Davidson College and the Columbia Law School. Soon after his admission to the bar he attracted the attention of District Attorney De Lancey Nicoll, who appointed him as one of his assistants. Col. J. R. Fellows, who succeeded Mr. Nicoll, made Mr. Osborne chief of the assistants.

Mr. Osborne has been identified with nearly all the famous murder trials of recent years, notably the Patrick, Molineaux, Dr. Kennedy, Dr. Meyer, and Dr. Buchanan cases. In the administration of Mr. Philbin he prosecuted Wardman Glennon, Wardman Bissert, and Police Capt. Diamond.

NICHOLAS J. HAYES, the Tammany nominee for Sheriff, is Fire Commissioner now, and for years has been the Tammany leader in the Thirty-third Assembly District. He was born in Troy on June 16, 1855, but has lived in this city for a long time. For fourteen years he served as clerk in the Superior and Supreme Courts of this city, and in 1898 became Deputy City Clerk. This office he held for six years, resigning to accept Mayor McClellan's appointment to be Fire Commissioner. As Commissioner he has allowed firemen more time off than ever before, established the paid department in Queens and Richmond, reorganized the fireboat fleet, and perfected the telegraphic alarm system.

GEORGE LANDON INGRAHAM, who was renominated for the Supreme Court, is now serving as a member of the Appellate Division in this department. He was born in this city on Aug. 1, 1847, was graduated from Columbia Law School in 1869, and was admitted to the bar in the same year. He served as a Judge of the old Superior Court from 1883 to 1891, when he was elected to the Supreme Court. Gov. Morton appointed him to the Appellate Division on Jan. 1, 1906.

HENRY ALGER GILDERSLEEVE, also renominated for the Supreme Court, was born in Dutchess County in 1840. He born in Dutchess County in 1840. He was educated in Poughkeepsie and at Columbia Law School, and was admitted to the bar in 1866. In the civil war he served as Captain and as Major, and was brevetted Lieutenant Colonel for gallant conduct. He is Secretary and Treasurer of the National Rifle Association and captained the American rifle team sent to Ireland in 1875. From 1876 to 1889 he served as Judge of the Court of General Sessions, and was Judge of the old Superior Court from 1891 to 1894, going on the Supreme Court bench on Jan. 1, 1895, when the old Superior Court was merged with the Supreme Court. Because of the age limit, Justice Gildersleeve will be able to serve only six years more on the bench.

JOSEPH E. NEWBURGER, nominated for the Supreme Court, was a Judge of General Sessions until last Monday, when he filed his resignation with the Secretary of State. He was born in this city. He worked his way through the Columbia Law School, working as a clerk by day and doing newspaper work at night. He was admitted to the bar in 1874. He was elected to the City Court bench in 1890, and became a Judge of General Sessions in 1895.

PETER J. DOOLING, nominee for County Clerk, is the present Senator from the Sixteenth Senate District in Manhattan and is the Tammany leader of the Thirteenth Assembly District. He was born in the district in 1857. For several years Mr. Dooling served as Clerk of the Court of Special Sessions, and he represented his district in the Board of Aldermen for two years. Subsequently he became Superintendent of Public Buildings and Supplies, and now is serving his second term in the State Senate. He is in the real estate business.

FRANK GASS, nominee for Register, is a Bronx real estate man. A Bavarian by birth, he is 54 years old and has been in this country since 1869. He has always lived in and around Unionport, where he is now. He long has been prominent in Bronx politics and is a close associate of Borough President Haffen and the other Tammany leaders of the Bronx. He now is representing the Forty-third Aldermanic District in the Board of Aldermen.

THOMAS C. O'SULLIVAN, nominee for Judge of the Court of General Sessions, was born in Michigan in 1857 while his parents, who were Vermonters, were out West. His education was received in Vermont, and he was graduated from the Burlington Institute in 1877, taking up teaching. Later he studied law in the office of S. E. Pingree at Hartford, Vt., and was admitted to the bar. In 1888 he ran for Lieutenant Governor on the Democratic ticket with no hope of winning, of course. The next year he removed to New York, and since has been identified with Tammany Hall. He has been one of the Wigwam's old-time orators, and has been elected by Tammany to the Assembly and to the State Senate, from which he retired in 1895.

JULIUS HARBURGER, nominee for Coroner, is the Tammany leader in the Tenth District. He now is Under Sheriff, having previously been Excise Commissioner and Assemblyman.

PETER P. ACRITELLI, nominated for Coroner, comes from the Sixth Assembly District, and, of course, had the backing of the Sullivans in that district. He is a banker and real estate dealer, with offices at 285 Elizabeth Street and at 135 Broadway.

PETER DOOLEY, nominated for Coroner, is a plumber and real estate dealer of the Nineteenth District, living at 22 Amsterdam Avenue. His office is at 302 West Fifty-fifth Street. He has lived in the district all his life.

DR. GEORGE F. SHRADY, JR., nominated for Coroner, is a son of the physician of the same name, and lives in the Twenty-second District. He is a political protégé of Commissioner Frank Lantry of the Department of Corrections. His sister is the wife of Edwin Gould, the second son of Jay Gould.

McCLELLAN'S CAMPAIGN PLANS

First Speech Next Thursday at Tammany Hall—Talks in German Later.

Mayor McClellan will make his first speech of the campaign next Thursday night in Tammany Hall at a ratification meeting in the Wigwam. Other candidates of the city, county, and borough tickets will speak.

The night after the Tammany Hall ratification the Mayor, accompanied by Herman A. Metz, nominee for Controller, will speak at four different points in Brooklyn. Two of his speeches are to be made in German. Beginning next Tuesday the Mayor will spend his late afternoons at his headquarters in the Bartholdi Hotel, and such evenings as will not be taken up by speaking engagements.

The staff of Tammany spellbinders is being completed. Chairman Thomas C. T. Crain of the Speakers' Committee has called all of the speakers on his lists to meet in Tammany Hall on Saturday afternoon to receive assignments and instructions

LAY IN BED AND HEARD A MURDERER AT WORK

Professional Acrobat First Learned Then What Fear Was.

AN ARREST FOR THE CRIME

After Irishman's Body Had Been Dismembered in Third Avenue House —Counterfeits in the Room.

T. F. Corcoran, an Irishman, who had boarded with his sister at 344 Third Avenue, was shot to death early yesterday while in bed in the room of Charles Bauer at 149 Third Avenue. Bauer is an elevator man at the Union Square Hotel. Corcoran's body was dismembered, and parts of it were found by the police not far from the house.

Bauer was arrested, charged with the murder. The Coroner has detained as witnesses George La Nole and H. C. Hillmer, who had rooms next to that in which the murder was done. La Nole, who is a professional athlete, and who declares that he never knew fear until Wednesday night, thanked the Coroner for sending him to the House of Detention.

La Nole, a clean-cut, athletic little man, ran into the East Twenty-second Street Station yesterday morning and said:

"Sergeant, some terrible crime has happened at 149 Third Avenue. There has been murder—what else, I don't know."

Policemen rushed to the house, met Bauer coming out with a suitcase containing parts of Corcoran's body and arrested him. The rest of the body was found in his wicker trunk.

Also in the room were many Confederate bills and six brass pieces made to look like English guineas. Four of these pieces were gilded and might have passed as genuine. The police say the counterfeits are such as are used to swindle immigrants.

This is La Nole's story as he told it to the police:

"I would not go back to that house for all the money there is in the world. I have been a professional athlete since I was a boy. I do not remember ever having been afraid before. I came here on Sunday from Danbury, Conn., where I appeared at a fair. One of the other performers told me that I could get for a reasonable price a room at 149 Third Avenue. While waiting for another engagement I went there. It had only a skylight for light and air, but I was hard up and took it. There was a good deal of noise at night in the next room. The men there quarreled with somebody about money.

"Last night I went to bed early. I was sound asleep when I was awakened again by the quarreling. As I turned over with the resolve that I would quit the place in the morning I heard some one say:

"'Well, you won't cheat me.'

"Then there was a shot. The smell of burned powder came into my room. The partition between the two is about as thick as tissue paper. I started to get up. Just then I heard a man in his stocking feet creep along the hall.

"An elevated train roared by. I was unarmed, and the fear came to me that if he thought me awake the murderer might kill me as a dangerous witness. The noise of the train had cheated me of knowing whether the man had gone down stairs or was just outside my door.

"I sleep with a dim light in my room when I am in strange places. I looked at my watch. It was 2:05 o'clock. The watch made a dreadful ticking. I shoved it under my pillow.

"I was terribly afraid and glad to hear another train come roaring by. It seemed as if the world might be awake. The next thing I heard was something awful. I knew what had happened and became ashamed of myself. If there had been a window I would have thrown it open and cried for help. There was nothing but the skylight and no ladder leading to it. I could hear the man in the next room breathing hard over something. I reconciled myself to my attitude, saying to myself that I could not help the dead man. Every now and then the murderer went out to the sink in the hall, where I could hear him washing things. Then I could hear him packing.

"I heard him pushing something into a wicker trunk. I knew it was a wicker trunk because we use them traveling, and I knew the squeak. I decided to cry out, but could not use my tongue. I did not dare move. He was always passing my door and stopping to listen if I moved.

"He was still at work when the black skylight grew sort of gray. At first I thought he might have crept up to the roof to look at me, but I heard him walk across his room. I trembled so that I feared he must hear me, when the gray turned to blue. Then there was a bit of sunlight that came through the skylight, and I thanked God that it was day.

"He went out, evidently carrying something that brushed against my door. I was in terror again. He was not gone long, and when he returned I heard him wrapping something up in paper. I could hear the paper crinkle as he tied it with string. Then he went out a second time with the second bundle. I dressed as quickly as I could, putting on a sweater instead of my shirt, and ran to the police station."

H. C. Hillmer listened with wide-open eyes to the story of his fellow-lodger, and when he was through said he thanked God that he had taken a sleeping powder before going to bed, as he had been sleepless for several nights.

TAFT TO SPEAK ON RATES.

His Address in Ohio to be an Exposition of the President's Views.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Secretary Taft has decided to make one speech in Ohio, and that will be at Akron and not at Cincinnati. His subject will be railroad rate legislation, and he will strongly argue for the President's position on the ruling issue of the hour.

The fact that alarming reports come from Ohio Republicans as to the possibility of defeat owing to the contradictory positions taken by the Administration and the Republican Party platform does not dismay Secretary Taft, and he will strive to state the President's case so clearly and forcibly that the voters may see their way clear to stand by Mr. Roosevelt without too slavish allegiance to party dictum.

Express Robbery Baffles Police.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 12.—The authorities are as much in the dark to-day as they have been since the disappearance of Edward G. Cunliffe, the Adams Express money clerk, and the $101,000 which he is charged with having taken. It is stated that a new plan to arrest the fugitive has been prepared, but particulars are not made known. The robbery, notwithstanding the simple manner in which it was executed, is pronounced by the police officials one of the most puzzling on record.

istration is denounced for not supplying accommodations in the public schools to all children of school age.

All city employes are promised the prevailing rate of wages and shorter hours if the Hearst ticket triumphs.

Seabury Presents Hearst's Name.

When nominations for Mayor were called for, Judge Samuel Seabury took the platform. The crowd cheered him lustily.

Simon Levy called for three cheers for the "Thomas Jefferson of the Twentieth Century."

Judge Seabury started in by reviewing Mr. Hearst's record as a "trust buster." "In this contest," said he, "we shall ask no quarter and we will give none. This is a fight between monopoly, corruption, and bossism on the one side and the people on the other.

"The time has passed when the street railways of this city should be permitted to run the Rapid Transit Commission with the same facility with which they run their cars."

The nomination was seconded by C. Augustus Havland, Simon Levy, Coroner William J. O'Gorman of the Bronx, and others.

"I hope Hearst will have such a vote as will put the fear of God in Tammany Hall," said Coroner O'Gorman as the crowd yelled.

Bernard Rosenthal, who seconded Mr. Hearst's nomination, said that he was a member of the Amsterdam Club, a Tammany organization, but that he had deserted Tammany because of its course in the gas legislation.

The nomination of Mr. Hearst was made unanimous, and the crowd stood up and cheered.

A. J. Boulton of the Citizens' Union nominated ex-Senator John Ford for Controller.

"To put the old gentlemen of the Rapid Transit Commissioners against Ryan and Belmont," said Mr. Boulton, "is like feeding tomcats with canary birds."

Timothy Healy, also of the Citizens' Union, seconded Mr. Ford's nomination.

An Interruption Came.

When an effort was made to close nominations, a man who had visited too many refreshment places on his way to the hall clamored for recognition so insistently that the Chairman asked the crowd to hear him, merely to carry out the idea that the convention was Democratic.

"Ladies and gentlemen," said the disturber, "if we are sheeps, let the wolves eat of us."

When the laughter at this remark subsided, the speaker repeated it. Then Mr. Gilleran tried to reason with him, but it was no use. A policeman led him out into the night.

Mr. Ford's nomination was then made by acclamation.

Nominations for President of the Board of Aldermen being called for, Prof. John Martin nominated James G. Phelps Stokes.

"Mr. Stokes," ssid Prof. Martin, "is known to every lover of romantic marriages. He has been as well advertised as breakfast food, but much more honorably. His philanthropy is known of all men."

A Jerome Man Hooted.

When Henry Clay Peters, a delegate from Brooklyn, in seconding the nomination of Stokes said that the Municipal Ownership County Convention should "add to the magic names of Hearst, Ford, and Stokes the name of Jerome" there were some cheers but more "boos" and cries of "No!"

The nomination of Mr. Stokes was made by acclamation.

A committee headed by C. Augustus Havland was appointed to bring the candidates before the convention.

Demonstration for Hearst.

When they were brought in there was great cheering, the demonstration lasting fourteen minutes. The crowd waved flags, sang, and fairly shouted itself hoarse.

Mr. Hearst told the convention that he would outline his principles and purposes in a carefully prepared letter of acceptance.

"I was, as you know, reluctant to enter this contest," he said, "but I am no longer reluctant. I am in it now, and I am in it to win. [Great applause.] I know I speak for you all when I say we are not here to make a showing, but to win this election, and we are not eager to win because we are politicians, scheming for place, but because we are citizens with principles, and anxious to put those principles into practical operation." [Applause]

After Mr. Ford and Mr. Stokes had addressed the convention it adjourned.

The Overflow Meetings.

In less than fifteen minutes after the doors of the hall were opened the place was filled. The police handled the crowd so well that there was no disorder. For the benefit of those who could not get inside overflow meetings were held. Opposite the hall, in Fifty-seventh Street, a flag-bedecked wagon served as a platform for the spellbinders, and on the Seventh Avenue steps of the building were more speakers. The 2,000 persons who were unable to gain admittance, rallied around the two stands and for a time vented their enthusiasm in cheering every mention of Hearst and municipal ownership. But whether the cold was too severe for them or they tired of the verbal fireworks, they gradually melted away until by 9 o'clock there were scarcely 500 remaining.

COLER JOINS THE LEAGUERS.

He Will Head the Municipal Ownership Ticket in Brooklyn.

Ex-Controller Bird S. Coler has consented to head the Municipal Ownership League ticket in Brooklyn. His acceptance of the offer of the nomination is on condition that a "good, strong" ticket be named in the borough.

Representatives of the league waited upon Mr. Coler yesterday afternoon and perauaded him to accept the nomination. They told him that the organization would meet his conditions regarding the other candidates and left, confident that Mr. Coler would head their ticket.

It was said last night that Coroner Michael J. Flaherty would be nominated for Sheriff and Alfred J. Boulton for Register of Kings County.

A TIGER FOR AHEARN.

Borough President John F. Ahearn received an enthusiastic greeting at the John F. Ahearn Association clubrooms, at East Broadway and Gouverneur Street, after his renomination last night. Five hundred representative east side citizens, headed by Alexander Finlite and Aaron J. Levy, marched to the club rooms, many of them carrying flags. They cheered loudly as they crowded into the rooms, and fireworks were set off in the street.

As soon as order was restored Finlite made a speech in which he praised the Borough President for his conduct of affairs during his administration. In the midst of the speech Levy handed a weighty object to Finlite, and the latter passed it on to Mr. Ahearn, with the remark that it was a trifling memento from his many friends. When held up to view this object proved to be a bronze tiger about a foot long.

Then there was more cheering, after which Mr. Ahearn said:

"I am deeply moved by the greeting of my friends, and sensible of all that the gift means. I am glad my efforts in office meet with approval. I can only say that I shall continue as in the past to be a friend to all."

Immigration Increase.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The report of the Bureau of Immigration, issued to-day, showa that 63,409 aliens landed in August, as compared with 59,777 for August, 1904. The greatest number came from Russia, with Italy second and Austria third. From China there were 215 landed, as compared with 520 for Auguat last year. Immigrants barred were 1,311, of which 930 were paupers.

WEBER

MANUFACTURING conditions in the piano industry to-day are such that prices cannot be reduced without a corresponding reduction in quality. Yet there seems to be a tendency even among high-grade manufacturers to put on the market pianos bearing their names at lower prices than ever before.

That this can be done without a lowering of standards does not stand to reason. It is well known that labor costs more, and practically all the materials that go into the making of a high-grade piano were never higher than now.

Contrary to the policy of certain other manufacturers (whose names in the past have stood for the best) is the policy of The Weber Piano Company. The Weber is selling to-day for more than ever in its history. And yet it has been necessary to double the output of the Weber factory in order to keep pace with the demand.

Of one thing the public may be assured: There will be no sacrifice of the quality of the Weber Piano in order to meet price competition. The prices of the Weber will be advanced when necessary.

ment to all our citizens who are opposed to the continuance of the present administration of our city, and I am confident that the great mass of the Republican constituency of this city will realize their responsibility and opportunity to drive out Tammany control of our affairs for the nsxt four years.

Upon you rests ths hopes of our best citizenship for an honest, intelligent, progressive, and capable administration of their affairs during the term of the next Mayor of the City of New York.

The Acceptance.

As Mr. Halpin finished, Mr. Ivins rose, and, picking up a typewritten sheet he had on the desk before him, fixed his eyes on the members of the committee for a moment, and then read his address with an emphasis that gave weight to every word he uttered. He said:

I have just returned from Europe and know nothing of the history of the campaign prior to the last few days. I have devoted many years to municipal affairs, but had no idea of again taking an active part in political life. Still, I am, as I have always been, a determined opponent of Tammany Hall and all that it stands for, and if you wish me to lead the fight for clean and efficient city government I shall do so energetically and fearlessly, upon the understanding that I am to conduct my campaign, and that I shall, in the event of election, be absolutely free at all times to administer the Government independently of all considerations except that of the public welfare.

I regard the nomination as an honor and shall at an early date take the opportunity, in a letter of acceptance, to formulate the issues as I see them and to declare more in detail the principles which will govern my administration if I am electsd. Meanwhile, gentlemen, our work will be to secure a full registration. This Will Make a Real Campaign.

The members of the committee all applauded as Mr. Ivins closed, and crowded about him to shake his hand. Congratulations over, Mr. Ivins was asked by the newspaper men what sort of a campaign he intended to make.

"I expect to do everything my health and business will permit to win this fight," he said, "and I want to say to you gentlemen that I enter the campaign with a profound belief that conditions are ripe for a successful campaign against Tammany."

"What do you consider the issue of the campaign?" was asked.

"I will make that known when I give out my formal letter of acceptance."

Career of the Candidate.

Mr. Ivins is a member of the law firm of Ivins, Mason, Wolff & Hoguet. He is in his fifty-fifth year. He was born at Freehold, N. J., and is the son of Augustus Ivins, an Englishman. His parents moved to Brooklyn when he was a year old, and he was educated at the Adelphi Academy there. Later he took the degree of LL. D. at Columbia. He began his legal career by becoming a member of the firm of Bergen & Ivins, which became counsel for the Brooklyn Surface Railway Company.

In 1876 Mr. Ivins was prominent in the Slocum movement to break up "the Brooklyn Ring." The movement was directed against Hugh McLaughlin, and was so successful as to compel the retirement of Mr. McLaughlin for three years.

Mr. Ivins was a member of the original Executive Committee of the Bar Association. He became a Major and a Judge Advocate of the Second Division of the National Guard, and on Jan. 1, 1885, was appointed Judge Advocate General of the State. Previous to that he had served as a School Commissioner in Brooklyn. He was City Chamberlain under the Grace and Hewitt administrations, and while serving in that capacity made a study of municipal conditions in the United States and Europe. When the Fassett Committee waa appointed by the Legislature to investigate the conditions of City Government in New York, Mr. Ivins was chosen Counsel for the Committee. His work in the Fassett Investigation gave him a reputation approaching that which Charles E. Hughes has obtained through the gaa and insurance investigations.

A Pioneer in Ballot Reform.

Mr. Ivins was the organizer of the Reform Club and the Commonwealth Club. Soon after he organized the Commonwealth Club the club, under his direction, began an agitation for the adoption of the Australian ballot in this country. Mr. Ivins is indisputably the pioneer in ballot reform in the United States. He wrote a book on the subject and drafted the Massachusetts ballot reform law, which was the first law of that kind passed in this country.

In 1887 Mr. Ivins published a book entitled "Money in Politics." He is the author of several law books. In the boundary dispute between Brazil and Argentina, he was retained by the Brazilian Government to argue its claim before ex-President Cleveland, who had been appointed arbitrator. Mr. Cleveland decided in favor of Brazil. Later Mr. Ivins was retained by Balmaceda to watch over his interests during the revolt of the Chilean Navy, which finally resulted in Balmaceda's overthrow.

He is the President of the General Rubber Company and has been interested in the importation of crude rubber from South America for several years. In this he has been associated with Charles R. Flint, the largest importer of crude rubber, and is Mr. Flint's legal adviser. A year ago Mr. Ivins made a trip to the source of the Amazon with Commodore Benedict.

His Republicanism.

When asked about his politics last night, Mr. Ivins said that he had always been a Republican, except during the period when Grace and Hewitt were Mayors of New York and during the administrations of President Cleveland.

Mr. Ivins lives at 55 East Twenty-fifth Street. He also has a Summer home at Narragansett. In 1879 he married Emma L. Yard. He has two sons and two daughters. He is a member of the Manhattan, Players, Lotos, Grolier, Barnard, Ardsley, New York Yacht, Accountants', New York Athletic, Larchmont Yacht, Columbia Yacht, Seawanhaka-Corinthian, St. Andrew's Golf, Riding, Lawyers, Reform, City, and Country Clubs, and the Bar Association and the Municipal Art Society. He owns the yacht Wayfarer.

NO CONTROLLER YET.

R. Ross Appleton, Abraham Abraham, and C. E. Teale Being Interviewed.

A candidate for Controller has to be found before the Republican city ticket will be complete, and there was none in sight last night. The committee to fill vacancies will meet at noon to-day at the County Committee headquarters, 1 Madison Avenue, and plan a searching expedition. It was content to rest on its oars last night and trust for a further continuance of the good fortune which had attended its search for a suitable head of the ticket.

Abraham Abraham, R. Ross Appleton, and Charles E. Teale, Brooklynites, are on the list of possibilities. It is the intention to get in touch with all three to-day. Mr. Appleton was the only one who could be found by reporters last night.

"All I know about it is that some of my friends in the Republican organization have been discussing my nomination," he said. "I have not, however, been approached by any one directly in regard to the matter, and so I cannot see how I can make any statement about it at present."

Mr. Abraham is the well-known dry goods man. Mr. Teale is an ex-Magistrate, and was Deputy Commissioner of Charities under Mayor Low.

While the efforts to find a candidate for Controller are being pursued the machinery of the Republican organization will be given over this afternoon to completing a county and borough ticket. The county and borough conventions take place at 8 o'clock to-night at Murray Hill Lyceum. The county convention will be called first.

Whether District Attorney Jerome will be nominated was not certain last night. After Tammany rejected Mr. Jerome the matter was in doubt. The suicide of Secretary Armitage Mathews also has a bearing on the situation.

It is a foregone conclusion that Thomas L. Hamilton will not run for County Clerk again. Nobody else wants, to very much, so far as that goes. Labor Commissioner P. Tecumseh Sherman is being talked of for the nomination for Borough President of Manhattan. He can have this place on the ticket if he will take it.

REPUBLICAN ASSEMBLYMEN.

Seven Adjourned Conventions Name Candidates—Freidel Renominated.

Adjourned Republican Assembly Conventions were held last night throughout New York County. In the Eighth, Assemblyman Louis Freidel, who blocked the scheme to make, by building an elevated railroad, "another Allen Street" in certain streets in his district, was renominated. Freidel won last year after one of the hottest fights in the city.

In the Tenth, Samuel Hoffman was nominated. The nominations in the other districts are practically honorary. These were nominated:

4. David Goldstein.	22. Thomas Rock.
7. Thomas F. Long.	26. Roger J. Brennan.
8. *Louis Freidel.	28. Carl Levine.
10. Samuel Hoffman.

THEY NAME HAL BELL.

Republicans Put Up for Bronx President Man McClellan Removed.

At the Bronx Republican Convention, held last night at the North Side Republican Club, 2,661 Third Avenue, Hal Bell, the lawyer, who was removed as a member of the Civil Service Commission by Mayor McClellan, was nominated for Borough President. Mr. Bell is now an Inheritance Tax Appraiser by appointment of State Controller Kelsey.

Dr. Robert F. McDonald of 760 East 140th Street and Albert F. Schwannecke of 781 Jackson Avenue were nominated for Coroners.

16. Frank J. Dotzler.	43. Thos. D. Dinwoodie.
17. John J. Farrell.	44. Thos. J. Mulligan.

For Assembly from Richmond.

The Republican Assembly District for Richmond Borough, meeting at St. St. George last night, nominated Richard Finch of New Brighton without opposition. He will be indorsed it is understood, by the independent Democrats and Municipal Ownership League. The Democrats of the First and Second Wards of Richmond Borough renominated Thomas Brown of Northfield for Justice of the Municipal Court, First District.

M'CARREN TICKET DENOUNCED

Metz Hears It Called a Disgrace at Democratic Club Meeting.

In the Brooklyn Democratic Club, of which he has been President and is still a leading member, Herman A. Metz, the Democratic candidate for Controller, heard a denunciation last night of Senator McCarren's borough ticket, which is headed by ex-District Attorney James W. Ridgway. The club indorsed the Democratic city ticket, but did not indorse the local ticket of the party, which one speaker characterized as a "disgrace to the Democracy of Kings County."

No mention of the local Democratic ticket was made until near the close of the meeting.

"We cannot ignore the candidates on the county ticket," said Robert M. Campbell, "but I do not believe they represent the highest kind of Democracy in Kings County. It seems to me that this ticket is a disgrace to the Democratic Party in this borough. It represents protection to gamblers in Brooklyn. It represents protection to the social evil in this city. And yet they ask us to indorse and vote for men of such character! I repeat that it is a disgrace to the Democrats of Brooklyn."

The Brooklyn Democratic Club has long been regarded as one of the most independent Democratic organizations in the city. Edward M. Shepard, Herman A. Metz, George Foster Peabody, Harrington Putnam, and J. Warren Greene are among its members.

Boys' 7.50 overcoats 3.95

BOUGHT the ordinary way, these coats would be 7.50, and they're worth it. When the manufacturer offers them to us at such a concession that we can sell them at 3.95, it seems almost useless to attempt to describe them—we know it is hard to believe that such an overcoat can be bought at that price. Second Floor.

You may come here to-day absolutely sure of finding exactly what we claim these boys' overcoats to be. Of course the lot is small—the manufacturer selling at half price to realize ready cash, sold as few as he could—but we have 1,000 for you to select from, and every coat in the lot is worth twice as much as the price we ask for it.

Sizes 2½ to 8 years—blue, oxford, gray and Cambridge—trimmed with beautiful combinations of colors—very stylish.

MEN'S NECKWEAR 25c

Value 50c to 1.00 Special to-day 25c

THIS special is for one day only, and we have two good reasons for putting a limit on this neckwear at 25c.

In the first place the value is so unusual that there won't be a necktie left at six 'clock this evening.

In the second place, no store can afford to sell 50c and 1.00 neckwear at 25c for more than one day.

It's the crowd we want—the volume of business—if there's any profit, it will have to come out of the other men's furnishings we sell, and they, too, are all specially priced.

Now, to get into the meat of the nut—these scarfs are made of pure silk, and the styles and quality are exactly duplicates of those in demand at the men's specialty shops at 50c to 1.00.

We have only four hundred dozen, including the French fold style, a number of wide English squares (these alone are made of last season's silks—all others are new.)

Three hundred new patterns and all the plain shades and black are here for your choosing to-day, one day only, at 25c. Don't miss this sale. They are ties men buy in half dozen lots.

Children's coats, 2.95.

WE have a number of values so good that mothers will thank us for giving details in to day's announcement. Second Floor.

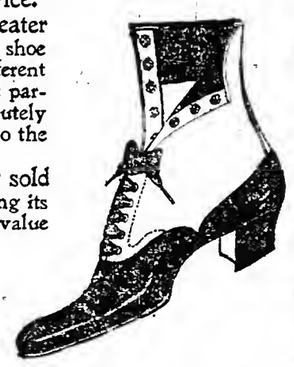
"QUEEN QUALITY"

AMERICA'S FOREMOST SHOE FOR WOMEN.

HAS enthroned itself upon the highest degree of favor with New York's stylish women because it possesses all the fine points of a high priced, bench made shoe, dictated by Fashion, comfort and wear.

CUSTOM GRADE 3.50 REGULAR GRADE 3.00

It is stylish from the first time the shoe is slipped over the foot to the last day of its long service.



It is manufactured in greater variety of shapes than any other shoe for women — seventy-five different styles—all represented in our shoe parlors, and the fit is assured absolutely correct, instead of fitting the foot to the shoe, as in other cases.

It is the most extensively sold women's shoe in the world, enabling its manufacturers to offer a better value than can be found in other women's shoes anywhere near the price.

Indeed, so much care is given to the manufacture of "Queen Quality," to the selection of leather, to the cutting and finishing, that it is difficult to duplicate its value in shoes at 5.00 and 6.00.

ARMITAGE MATHEWS A SUICIDE ON TRIAL DAY

Republican County Secretary Leaps to His Death.

DIED TO SAVE HIS FRIENDS?

That Is the General View of His Act—Counsel McManus Says He Was "True as Steel."

Within a few hours of the time set for his trial on charges of grand larceny and conspiracy in connection with the looting of the William Weissel estate, Armitage Mathews, Secretary of the Republican County Committee, committed suicide by plunging headlong from the bathroom window of his apartment at 335 Central Park West to a stone-paved courtyard below.

Some friends of the young lawyer and politician professed afterward to see in his tragic death an accident pure and simple, and pronounced it merely an unfortunate coincidence that it should have occurred on the eve of his trial. They express their firm belief in his innocence, declare that Mathews himself was confident of being acquitted, and scout the idea that he took his own life to save himself from going through the ordeal of facing a Judge and jury on criminal charges.

This is not borne out by a statement which came last night from a well-informed quarter. A person familiar with the case against Mathews and the evidence in the District Attorney's office regarding the ramifications of the plot to pilfer the assets of the estate of William Weissel and the legal tangle that followed, said last night:

"Poor Mathews! He died to save his friends and took the secret with him to his grave."

It was curious that most of the comments on the suicide were to this effect.

Mathews would do almost anything to help a friend in trouble it was said by all who knew him and lamented his untimely death. Terence J. McManus, a member of the firm of Black, Olcott, Gruber & Bonynge, the counsel for Mathews, who had been fighting tooth and nail to have his trial postponed from time to time, said this:

"Mathews was as true as steel. His friends knew it. He would stick to a friend through thick and thin."

Secret in a Letter.

It is the theory of the man who declared that Mathews had died to shield some of his friends, and it is also the theory of the police that the key to the secret of the suicide was contained in a letter which he received by special delivery about an hour before he plunged to his death.

This letter Mathews is known to have carried with him into the bathroom. After a diligent but futile search for the mysterious missive or some fragment of it, the police were forced to the conclusion that the young politician had taken pains to destroy it before he took his own life. They also searched, but in vain, through the apartment for some paper or letter left by Mathews of a nature to throw some light on the motive for his act. There was not a scrap to be found anywhere. The drawers of the writing table had been swept clean of papers.

Where the letter came from is not known. The police did not consider it within their province to trace it to the sender. As far as could be learned, no one save Mathews himself saw it at close quarters at his apartment. It was delivered to him personally by the postman.

That disclosures affecting several of the dead man's legal friends, and, it is said, a certain bank that figured in the news of the looting of the estate a year ago, would have been made, had Mathews been brought to trial, has been whispered about among those familiar with the great mass of evidence which District Attorney Jerome has in his possession regarding the embezzlement and the charges and countercharges that followed its discovery and the indictment of Mathews.

Miss Margaret Kane, the housekeeper, was the only person besides her employer who was astir in the apartment at the time Mathews killed himself. His sister Elizabeth and an invalid aunt, 75 years old, were asleep in other rooms, and did not know of the death until several hours later, when the news was broken to them as gently as possible by the clergyman of a church in the neighborhood.

The special-delivery letter arrived about 7 o'clock. As the postman insisted on a receipt for the message, Miss Kane took him to the door of her employer's bedroom. Mathews got out of bed to receive the letter, and the housekeeper at the same time handed him the morning papers. He returned to bed, asking the servant to let him sleep until 8 o'clock.

At that hour Miss Kane again rapped on his door. A few minutes later, while she was busy preparing breakfast, she saw her employer go into the bathroom, a bath robe thrown over his pajamas. He carried with him a morning newspaper and the special delivery letter he had received an hour before.

A few minutes later she heard a window opening on the courtyard go up with a bang, and a moment later she heard a thud, as she thought, from the pavement below. Running to the dining room window she looked down into the narrow stone-paved court and saw a prostrate body there. She did not recognize it as that of her employer, but thought some one had fallen from a window of the Alclyde apartment house at 2 West Ninety-fourth Street, which adjoins the house in which Mathews lived, and also has windows opening on the same courtyard. She ran to the bathroom door, rapped on it, and cried

"Oh, Mr. Harry, somebody has fallen into the yard."

She received no reply from within. The door was closed, but not locked, and she pushed it open. There was no sign of Mathews.

On the floor lay one of his slippers, the morning paper he had been reading, an Epworth hymnbook, and another hymn book entitled "Songs of Salvation." The newspaper had been opened at a page containing an article on Justice Stover's denial of a motion for a change of venue made in the behalf of Mathews.

The housekeeper rushed to the window and again looked down into the yard. Then she saw that the prostrate form on the pavement was that of her employer.

Dr. Charles A. Manson, a physician residing at the Alclyde apartments, reached Mathews first of all. He told the policeman that Mathews was dead. He had sustained, besides minor injuries, a compound fracture of the skull, which must have caused instant death.

It was found that the bathtub had been filled, but that Mathews evidently had not stepped into his bath. The lower window of the bathroom was raised, creating an opening less than two feet square. As Mr. Mathews was rather well built, it is thought that he could not possibly have dived through the window, but must have squeezed his way through and hurled himself backward to the court below. The fracture was at the back of his head and this seemed to bear out this theory.

The news of Mr. Mathews's tragic death created a profound shock among his many legal and political friends. In the neighborhood of his home in the Twenty-first Assembly District, where, as the chief lieutenant of Abraham Gruber, the district leader, he was personally known and liked by thousands of persons, the news spread rapidly.

At the office of the Republican County Committee, where he had occupied his desk and performed his duties as Secretary to the organizations the previous day, the suicide created consternation, for, according to all who had seen him Mathews had seemed in his customary cheerful mood when he left there for the day. The political gossip and discussion was hushed and the only topic of discussion was the tragic death of the young politician.

Congressman William S. Bennet, the close friend and political associate of Mr. Mathews, when he reached the Florence apartment house, a quarter of an hour after the suicide, seemed stunned by the news.

"I was with Mr. Mathews last night until 8 o'clock," he said, "when I left him with another friend, Mr. William H. Gray, with whom he dined. He was cheerful, and gave no indication of harboring thoughts of suicide. He knew of the denial of his motion for a change of venue, but appeared to be confident of a successful outcome of his trial. The idea of suicide must have come into his head this morning. I don't think, though, the letter had anything to do with it. I don't know what the nature of the letter was or who sent it, but as Secretary of the County Committee he was in the habit of receiving communications at all hours.

When the theory that Mathews had sacrificed himself to save friends was suggested to Mr. Bennet, he replied:

"Nonsense! There's nothing in that. Anyway, Mathews would have been acquitted in this trial, and he knew it."

William Gray, a wealthy carriage manufacturer of 63 Wooster Street, arrived a little later in response to a telephone message sent to his office, and was followed somewhat later by his wife. Mr. Gray said that while dining with him and his wife last even Mathews had appeared as cheerful as usual. Mr. Gray took charge of the arrangements for the disposal of the body, which was taken to the mortuary chapel of St. Agnes's Church after Coroner Brown had given a permit for its removal from the police station.

Mr. Gray would not comment on the suicide except to say that Mathews had been driven to commit the act by persecution.

"It is one of the worst outrages ever committed in a civilized community," said Mr. Gray. "This man was perfectly innocent, and yet he was literally hounded to his grave."

Only a few days ago Mathews remarked to some friends he met at the Fifth Avenue Hotel:

"Say, wouldn't it be tough if in my capacity as Secretary of the Republican County Committee, I would be called upon at the County Convention to cast a single ballot to indorse Jerome for District Attorney?" This remark was recalled yesterday by many of the friends who heard him utter it.

Some of the friends of Mathews have accused the District Attorney of pressing the case against Mathews "too vigorously" against him. When Mathews obtained an adjournment of his case last week he got up in court and openly accused Mr. Jerome of unfairness.

Too Bad, Jerome Says.

District Attorney Jerome was at breakfast in his home when he heard of the suicide.

"Poor fellow," he said. "It's too bad, but I cannot very well say anything further about the matter now."

A little later a scene full of dramatic interest was enacted in the Criminal Part of the Supreme Court, where Justice Davy with a courtroom full of prospective jurors were on hand to try Mathews. Long before the court went into session the news of his suicide had reached the Criminal Courts Building, and Justice Davy's courtroom was crowded to suffocation.

Justice Davy came on the bench at 10:45 o'clock. District Attorney Jerome and Assistant District Attorney Rand, who had held a long conference with the Justice in his chambers, were both in court.

The District Attorney sat with brow knit in thought at the counsels' table within the railing. You might have heard a pin drop in the hush that followed when Clerk Penncy of the court arose and called in a voice full of emotion:

"The case of the people against Armitage Mathews. Armitage Mathews to the bar."

The ticking of the clock could be heard for a few seconds, as plainly as though it had been claps of thunder. Then it was hushed by the voice of Assistant District Attorney Rand, more subdued on this occasion than usual.

"May it please your Honor," spoke the Prosecutor, "there is no longer any 'Case of the People against Armitage Mathews.' We have received word this morning of his death. I now move the discharge of the special jury that has been called to try this case, as well as of the bond given as surety for his appearance. At the proper time we will file with the court certificate of his death."

Terence J. McManus of counsel for Mathews, and his intimate friend, arose. He could scarcely keep on his feet or control his voice. With choked voice, barely above a whisper, he said:

"Those that knew him best—and his friends, who are legion—believed him innocent."

Mr. McManus then sat down. Up to this time and during the entire proceedings no reference was made to the tragic manner in which his life ended, his "death" only being referred to. Justice Davy, in a voice husky with emotion, said:

"The announcement of the death of Mathews which has just been made is very sad indeed."

"The motion of the District Attorney for the discharge of this jury is granted," added the Justice more formally. "It may be entered on the records of this court."

Mr. Rand asked that the June term of the court be continued until Oct. 18. In the meantime proof of Mathews's death will be filed and the $5,000 bond filed by John P. Randolph, the Republican leader, be vacated. At some future date the formality of dismissing the indictment against the man who has passed from human justice will be gone through.

Other Conspirators Get the News.

It was not until after the court proceedings that the news penetrated to the Tombs, where two men convicted of the looting of the Weissel estate are confined. One of these is David Rothschild, the convicted banker who wrecked the Federal Bank and promoted the Globe Security Company and was chief trustee of the Weissel estate. The other was John W. Wooten, the lawyer who assisted Rothschild in many of his criminal undertakings. The two convicts were expecting to appear as the principal witnesses against Mathews.

When Wooten, who has turned State's evidence against Mathews to obtain executive clemency, though Mathews testified in his defense at his trial, heard of the suicide, he turned pale and exclaimed:

"That's too bad, too bad."

Then he went to the back of his cell and would say no more. Rothschild when told in his turn, showed little emotion. He refused to say a word.

Both District Attorney Jerome and Assistant District Attorney Rand refused to discuss the case against Mathews. One of the other assistants who asked that his name be not used, said:

"The death of Mathews will save a whole lot of others who would have been likely to join the procession had his case been tried."

The prosecution of Mathews, Ferguson, and Wooten was begun after David Rothschild had made a confession in Sing Sing Prison, where he was serving his sentence. Indictments against the three men were found on testimony offered by Rothschild himself, who admitted that with the aid of the three he had been made administrator of the Weissel estate and had stolen from it some $91,000 worth of securities, which he had hypothecated, dividing the profits with Mathews and the two others. The confession in some mysterious manner got from Sing Sing into the hands of Abraham Gruber, who was the closest political and personal friend Mathews had. Gruber was called as a witness before the Grand Jury, and so were several of the Sing Sing Prison officials.

After Wooten's conviction he made a confession to the District Attorney. Ferguson has followed a similar course. May Trimble, a young stenographer who was employed by Rothschild and was called as a witness against Wooten to testify to certain agreements between Rothschild and the three lawyers which she had written from dictation at the trial, denied an affidavit she had made in the District Attorney's office, saying she had been induced to make it by threats of Assistant District Attorney Kresel.

When the District Attorney threatened to have her indicted for perjury, Miss Trimble finally made a statement to Mr. Jerome in which she declared that her affidavit was true and that she had been induced to give the testimony she did through representations of lawyers representing the three defendants.

The Trimble girl was at the Criminal Courts Building yesterday, waiting to be called as a witness against Mathews. Her testimony and an affidavit she had already made to Mr. Jerome will give the names of the persons who induced her to perjure herself and sensational details of the manner in which it was done.

Career of Mathews.

Armitage Mathews was thirty-seven years old. He was born in this city and was educated in the public schools and in the University of the City of New York. He was a lawyer by profession and had been active in Republican politics in this city for about ten years. He was an Assistant District Attorney under William M. K. Olcott and an Alderman in Mayor Van Wyck's term. Since then he had been Secretary of the Republican County Committee.

A special meeting of the Riverside Republican Club will be held to-morrow evening to take action regarding the funeral arrangements. The funeral will probably be held from St. Ann's Chapel, in the rear of the church, on West Ninety-first Street, on Sunday morning.

INCENDIARY SETS SEVEN FIRES IN SEVEN HOURS

Flames in Brooklyn Tenements in Rapid Succession.

ALL WITHIN TWO-MILE RADIUS

Two Blazes Started While a Detective Keeps Watch a Few Blocks Away.

Seven incendiary fires were set in Brooklyn within a radius of two miles yesterday between 9 o'clock in the morning and 4 in the afternoon. Deputy Fire Chief Lally, who personally visited every fire, said last night that it was his opinion that all were set by the same person The fires were all in tenement houses, and all in dumb-waiter or light shafts near stairways. The Fire Marshal was at work on the cases last night.

The location of the fires and the time of the alarms in each case are as follows:

186 and 188 Jay Street; double four-story brick tenement; still alarm, 8:58; box alarm, 8:59; second alarm, 9:03.

134 and 136 Park Avenue; double four-story brick tenement; first alarm, 12:33; second alarm, 12:42.

540, 542, and 544 Flushing Avenue; four-story frame tenements; first alarm, 3:41; second alarm, 3:49.

There were four other fires in the neighborhood, but Chief Lally decided that they were not of incendiary origin.

Police Have Slight Clues.

So far the police and Fire Marshal's detectives have two slight clues. After the fire at 25 Nassau Street, a little girl ran up to a fireman and said that she had seen a short, dark man, coatless, and with a slouch hat pulled down over his eyes, come out of the cellar and hurry away just before the flames were discovered. Acting under instructions from Chief Lally and Fire Marshal Beers, the fireman and detectives took the child all over the district, and even through an adjacent park, but she was unable to point out any one who looked like the man she had seen.

The house at 356 Park Avenue is owned by a contractor. He contemplated some repairs to the building, which is on a corner, with a saloon on the first floor. The contractor told Lally that when he went to the house yesterday, he saw a man, stout and smooth-shaven and wearing an automobile cap, standing between the saloon door and the entrance to the tenement. The contractor went up stairs, and when he came down eight minutes later, the cellar and upper part of the house adjacent to the light shaft were burning fiercely, and the man had disappeared.

The fires were set at the bottom of dumbwaiter or light shafts, where the flames would leap up the shaft and spread out when they reached the top. This sort of fire is very hard to fight, especially in frame tenements, for the blaze breaks through on all floors at the same time, and must be fought from the top and bottom of the building alike.

No Lives Were Lost.

In none of the seven fires yesterday was there any loss of life, and Chief Lally attributes this to the fact that the incendiary chose the daytime, when most of the tenants were out, to do his work. Had he set the fires in the night the record of casualties might have been awful.

This is particularly true from the fact that the fires were started so close together that second alarms were necessary to bring more apparatus from other stations, those in the near-by firehouses being already out. The incendiary kept the whole department in the district and on its outskirts hard at work all day, and in the seven hours there were employed continuously Engines 105, 106, 107, 108, 110, 111, 116, 130, 135, and 151, and Trucks 52, 53, 58, 68, and 69.

In a number of instances while Deputy Chief Lally was dashing hither and thither in his automobile, he was notified by citizens of the other fires in the neighborhood, and this was also the case with the fire engine companies. Few of them got back to the houses before they were called for other duty, and headquarters kept telephones busy as alarm after alarm came in in an endeavor to have persons near by head off the engines and send them to the next point from which an alarm had been sent in.

The incendiary worked with audacity and cunning. After the first three fires, Lally, noting the similarity, sent a detective through the neighborhood to be on the lookout for any suspicious person. He went up to Broadway, and while he was there the two Park Avenue fires were set, several blocks below.

In spite of the many calls made upon them the firemen subdued the blazes in short order, but there were some narrow escapes. At the fire at 132-134 Park Avenue a boy called attention to the smoke coming out of the roof, and James Lowrey, Jr., an employe of a plumber, who has a store on the ground floor, made his way to the top of the house, having meanwhile asked a bystander to turn in an alarm. There were six families in the building, and many children among them.

Firemen Thomas Shortell and Lowrey carried down stairs Mrs. Mary Downs and her three children. A number of the tenants got out by the rear fire escapes.

In the Jay Street building the flames broke through on the top floor into the rooms of Dennis Shea, who was asleep there. Shea, seeing his escape cut off by the stairway, stepped out on the sill of his room and tried his weight on the shutter of the window below.

Swung to Safety on a Shutter.

When he saw that it would bear him, he balanced himself and swung out to the roof of an adjoining house, which is a story lower. A shout went up from the crowd that watched the hazardous feat.

The worst fire was the last one, on Flushing Avenue. Chief Lally found that it had started in the end house, which is one of a row of three four-story frame tenements, and had shot up the shaft to thereof, where there was a space of three feet along the whole row between the top floor and the roof. In this space the fire was roaring. There were no partitions at the top of the house and the flames had full play. All three houses were badly damaged and one fireman was overcome by smoke, but he revived when brought to the street.

Fire Marshal Beers and Deputy Chief Lally incline to the theory that the person who set the fires is a pyromaniac, and that he first went over the ground and mapped out the places that were easiest of access. The estimated loss at all the seven fires was put down last night at $10,000.

URGE RAMSEY TO QUIT.

His Friends See Nothing to be Gained by Fighting Gould.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 12.—Joseph Ramsey, Jr., arrived in St. Louis to-day from Toledo, with Col. A. D. Parker, General Solicitor Wells H. Blodgett of the Wabash Railroad, Counsel Travous of the Wabash, and E. B. Pryor, assistant to the President of the road. The best of feeling prevailed on the train. Mr. Gould left Toledo this morning for New York, and it is understood that he will not come West on an inspection of the Guild lines for a week or more.

From a high official of the Wabash it was ascertained that the re-election of F. A. Delano to the Presidency of the road is a certainty. Gould proposes to make Winslow S. Pierce of New York Chairman of the Board of Directors. E. B. Pryer of St. Louis, assistant to the President and Assistant Secretary of the company, will be elected Vice President in charge of accounts.

Mr. Ramsey has plans for continuing his railroad career, he said to-night, but is unwilling to divulge them at this time. After conferring with his attorneys he will be ready to make an announcement of some kind. His only wish now is to have his acts at the previous annual meeting thoroughly understood. He insists emphatically that he did not know until several months ago that the Missouri Pacific and the Iron Mountain were holders of Wabash securities, and that he has never knowingly voted the proxies of these roads.

Friends of Mr. Ramsey are urging him not to prolong the fight. They argue that to continue an antagonistic course with Gould will result in nothing good.

MAY BE AN OLNEY CLUE.

An Anonymous Letter Causes the Arrest of a Father and Son.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, Oct. 12.—Chief Brinkerhoff received a letter to-day which may solve the Olney murder case. The letter evidently was written by a woman, and is as follows:

Otisville, Oct. 11.

Chief of Police Brinkerhoff, Middletown, N. Y.:

Dear Sir: While driving Friday between the hours of 4 and 5 P. M. my sister met two men with a white horse attached to a lumber box wagon, said box having been removed. She met the men between the Pierson and Otto farms. Upon her return she passed them between the latter farm and Otisville. They were walking by the side of the wagon, the horse traveling at a slow pace, thus giving the idea that they had traveled quite a distance. This evening I learned that their names were Conklin and that they live at Brownsville. Possibly they were in the neighborhood when the murders were committed and could give some information about the matter. Yours truly,

JUSTICE.

Chief Brinkerhoff drove to Brownville, Sullivan County, and found John Conkling and his son Arthur, 20 years old. These men are supposed to have been the ones who drove the gray horse and light wagon which were seen at the Olney house on the day of the murder. The two men were brought to Middletown.

A Man Can

influence the perfection of a thing only so far as he can govern and guide its production.

With his tape-string your to-order tailor begins and ends his personal influence. The initial steps and the tailoring are left to the free lance, serving this tailor to-day and another to-morrow. Such is the haphazard method, and it does not justify the cost.

Yet we owe much to the to-order tailorman, since his incentive is ours, though we arrive at our end by another method which is faithful to the principles.

It is evolutionary, demanding that every ready-for-service garment be tailored and cut individually, as though it were our only concern.

But, instead of free-lances we maintain an organization of master-tailormen who are versed in every phase of the craft. Yet each has his specialty, subscribing himself to the perfeotion of some given thing.

Whether it be a suit at fifteen dollars or one at forty, it is invested with a measure of character and distinctiveness that is wholly beyond the tailormen that ask less than fifty dollars for a suit.

FROST AIDS FEVER FIGHT.

Hopeful Situation in Gulf States—Natchez Needs Relief.

JACKSON, Miss., Oct. 12.—A good frost appeared here, in Natchez, and other parts of the State this morning. This is the earliest frost for several years, and its appearance indicates the early lifting of quarantinee in Mississippi.

Dr. Albright of the Tennessee Board of Health said that he would immediately issue orders curtailing the train inspection service in the northerly parts of Tennessee.

Five new cases of yellow fever were reported here to-day and one at Vicksburg. A general fumigation to wind up the fight against the mosquito will be ordered.

Except that open communication with infected points will not be allowed, Vicksburg has practically removed restrictions on trade and travel. This action was taken to-day on the advice of Surgeon Guiteras of the Marine Hoepital Service.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 12.—Still colder weather, the mercury going to 58 at New Orleans and under 40 in many other places, with frost in the middle section of the State, to-day increased the probability of the early extinction of yellow fever throughout Louisiana and Mississippi, the two States which have been infected since last August.

Dr. John Callahan and Dr. Beverly Warner are making a round of the schools in the city, and are giving brief lectures on the mosquito theory to thousands of school children.

Universal Approbation is the surest proof of supreme merit. Amateurs and professionals alike pronounce the Steinway the best piano produced; it is acknowledged the "Standard Piano of the World." Facts are stranger than fiction, and the mere fact that over $100,000,000 worth of Steinway Pianos are in constant use is proof positive that it is the most popular and esteemed piano in the world. In over 300 principal cities of the globe the Steinway Piano is sold as their leader by the very best piano houses, and it is appreciated alike in palace and cottage.

Owing to the fact that it is constructed on perfect principles, and that only the choicest material and the most skillful labor are employed, the tone of the is the most beautiful and its lasting qualities are unapproached.

The latest Steinway models, the Vertegrand, at $500, and the Miniature Grand, at $750, have revolutionized the entire piano industry, and they have brought the Steinway within easy reach of thousands of families to whom the price has heretofore been the only obstacle.

A critical examination of these new styles is respectfully invited.

KAISER WANTS ENGLAND AND FRANCE TO EXPLAIN

Report That Britain Was Ready to Fight Taken Seriously.

DIPLOMATIC ACTION STARTED

But No Formal Communication Has Been Made as Yet—M. Delcasse May Have Been Self-Deceived.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—Up to date there has not been any confirmation here or in France of the Paris Matin's statements as to the nature of the naval and military assistance which Great Britain would have been prepared to give France in the event of an attack on that power by Germany on account of the Morocco question, nor has there been any denial of those statements.

In Germany the belief seems to prevail that there was an impression in M. Delcassé's mind that he would have British support in case he should involve France in war through stoutly maintaining the position he had taken with reference to Germany's interference in Morocco. The German press demands information from France and Great Britain that shall show who persuaded M. Delcassé that Great Britain would fight for France and precisely to what the British Government was committed.

In Paris, according to the latest dispatches, considerable incredulity exists with respect to the statement that this country agreed to send 100,000 men across the Channel to be associated with a like number of Frenchm in an attack on North Germany. Nobody in Paris seems to doubt that if war between France and Germany had begun Great Britain would have been involved, and this view is also held in England. What Paris does not believe is that any pledge was given by the British Government to use its army or navy in France's support.

The Times in an editorial article on Monday expressed the opinion that in case an act of aggression had been directed against France by Germany "the English Government would have supported France, with the hearty approval of the Nation." That is the nearest approach to confirmation of the Matin's story that has been made on this side of the Channel, and certainly that stops a long way short of confirmation.

Conservative opinion here is that the story has no substantial foundation in any authorized communication from the British Government. Furthermore, it is doubted whether M. Delcassé will ever say that he received from the British Government such a pledge as the Matin's story implies.

COLOGNE, Oct. 12.—The Cologne Gazette prints an inspired dispatch from Berlin in which the Matin's revelations are discussed. The dispatch notes that the articles in the Matin have caused great embarrassment in France and Great Britain, and that those countries have a prime interest in clearing up the matter.

It is evident from the dispatch that the German Government assumes that M. Delcassé believed in good faith that France had Great Britain's promise of military assistance in case of war with Germany, and shaped his policy accordingly. Therefore, the dispatch points out, it is impossible to brush the Matin's story aside as chimerical.

If M. Delcassé were self-deceived, the dispatch says, still the practical consequences would have been the same, and war would have resulted from his passionate policy of revenge. M. Delcassé's belief that Great Britain's assistance was pledged formed the basis of his policy. It is declared that the attempt made in Great Britain to dismiss the matter as a ridiculous phantasy is insufficient, and that the story cannot be disposed of in this way.

The German view, the dispatch says, is that the story must be taken seriously until the British Government gives out a formal utterance in order fully to vindicate its position.

BERLIN, Oct. 12.—Inspired paragraphs indicate that the Matin's disclosures have produced a most unpleasant effect on the German Government.

The manner in which the statements attributed to M. Delcassé were received in England was far from satisfactory. Their prompt repudiation in an informal manner by the British Government was what the German Government desired.

The British Government, it is learned, gave Germany satisfactory assurances last June that no offensive or defensive alliance existed between Great Britain and France.

The Foreign Office says Germany has made no formal communication to Great Britain on the Matin's statements, but that they have been the subject of confidential verbal exchanges between the diplomatic representatives of the two Governments.

The one thing obvious to the German public is that hope of political co-operation between Germany and France must for the time being be given up.

BRITISH NAVAL SHIP ASHORE.

Repair Vessel Aground in Tetuan Bay —In a Critical Position.

GIBRALTAR, Oct. 12.—The British repair ship Assistance is ashore in Tetuan Bay, Morocco. Warships, steamers, and lighters have gone from here to her aid.

A heavy gale endangers the position of the vessel. She is lying in a critical position, and heavy seas are breaking over her.

The salvage steamer Rescue is taking on board life-saving apparatus, and will proceed immediately to the scene of the wreck.

The Assistance is a vessel of 9,600 tons displacement. She was built in 1901, and is fitted with a foundry, machine tools, &c. She carries a crew of 282 men, and mounts ten three-pounder quick-firing guns.

HELD FOR KILLING KING.

Paterson Man Caught at Marseilles Said to Have Been Bresci's Companion

It is alleged that he was implicated in the assassination of King Humbert.

Jaffei, who is 27 years old, went to Italy from Paterson, N. J., with Gaetano Bresci, the assassin of King Humbert. Shortly before the assassination Jaffei met Bresci in Switzerland, and, it was asserted took part in the plot to murder the Italian King.

A court at Milan in 1901 tried Jaffei in contumacy and sentenced him to solitary confinement for life. It was said that Jaffei had expressed the intention of murdering King Victor Emmanuel.

DEMOCRATS FOR ROOSEVELT.

Rhode Island Platform Indorses His Policies—Garvin Nominated.

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 12.—Interest at the Democratic State Convention here today centred in the platform declarations indorsing President Roosevelt on his tariff revision and rate law policies. One delegate from East Providence called for "less laudation of Roosevelt and more emphasis on municipal ownership and direct election of Senators." He was persuaded to withdraw his objection.

Ex-Gov. L. F. C. Garvin was nominated for Governor by acclamation, and the rest of the slate was quickly adopted, as follows: Lieutenant Governor—James E. Thurston of Providence; Secretary of State—Frank E. Fitzsimmons of Lincoln; Attorney General—Thomas A. Carroll of Providence; General Treasurer—Albert H. Olney of Providence.

The platform, in part, follows:

Desiring the success of Democratic principles wherever advocated rather than mere partisan success, we welcome President Roosevelt's promise to tariff reform and pledge the Democrats of Rhode Island to any measures he may recommend for an honest reduction of the tariff, with the sincere hope that he will take counsel of the people and not of official advisers who, under the guise of United States Senators, represent the selfish greed of the few and counsel delay.

As New Englanders we protest against the subornation of her interests by her Republican representatives in both Houses of Congress to the demands of the Middle West, and we join the Democrats of Massachusettts in demanding freer trade for our natural markets of sale and purchase across the Canadian border.

We congratulate the President that he has recommended legislation for the control of the railroads of the country, originally introduced in Congress by Democratic Representatives and advocated in Democratic platforms. Again we urge him to persist in the course he has laid out and not to be turned therefrom by the opposition of railroad representatives whether or not in public office.

The recent astounding disclosures of the use of funds held in trust for widows and orphans to aid in Republican elections emphasizes the necessity for State as well as National legislation not only to prohibit corporations from contributing to campaign purposes, but to punish any person receiving such contributions for such purpose, bearing in mind that "the receiver is as bad as the thief." The close relation between the Republican machine in Rhode Island and one of the large insurance companies now under investigation, a confessed contributor of trust funds to the National Republican Party, cannot fail to make our fellow-citizens reflect upon the probability of a similar embezzlement by that and other corporations for the success of the same party in our State.

On State questions the platform demands revision of the State Constitution, favors good roads, but opposes a bond issue for highway improvements, and declares for "such control of all public service corporations that they will first serve the people of this State."

HE KNEW CROOKS.

Slim Young Man Astonishes One of the Genus in a Subway Train.

At the height of the rush hour last evening, when the Subway trains were crowded to their capacity, a fair, rather slim young man was standing near the platform of a car in an uptown train when a smooth-shaven fellow, with shifty eyes, edged toward the slim youth. The next moment the latter made a grab at his scarf with the speed of one who had been waiting for just such a thing to happen. The hand was caught. It belonged to the smooth-shaven man with the shifty eyes.

"I know you," was all the young man said. "That don't go with me."

Then he turned the smooth-shaven fellow's hand loose. The man edged away. The other's eyes followed him and saw him edging toward a young woman who wore a watch on the outside of her jacket. In an instant the young man was beside her.

"Pardon me," he said, pointing a finger at the smooth-shaven fellow. "That man's a crook. I know him; you had better keep your eye on your watch."

The train was then entering the Times Square Station. The smooth-shaven fellow measured the distance to the door with a glance, and then made a spring for his accuser, grabbing for the scarfpin which had originally attracted him. The rush was met half way, and the next instant the smooth-shaven fellow was on the floor of the car with bleeding nose, the young man on top of him. When the train stopped he dragged the fellow up to the street and turned him over to Policeman O'Neill.

The smooth-shaven fellow was locked up in the West Forty-seventh Street Police Station on a charge of assault. He gave the name of Alfred Weise. He was recognized as a pickpocket with a record. The young man who caught him was a police reporter.

COLBY FOR A NEW PARTY.

His Friends in Jersey City to Cut Loose from the Machine.

At a meeting held at Elk's Hall, Jersey City, last night, in favor of Mayor Fagan, who is a candidate for re-election, Everett Colby of Newark, who was the principal speaker, created a surprise by announcing that he and his friends in Jersey City had practically decided to cut loose from the party leaders and establish a new organization. Both the great political parties of the day, he said, are parties of deceit.

"The insurance investigation now going on in New York shows that the companies involved contributed $846,000 to a campaign fund and to influence legislation," he said. "For what reason? Why, to produce results. The lesson is plain—if you want honest government you must elect honest men to office."

He was warmly applauded, as were Mayor Fagan and Corporation Counsel George L. Record, who spoke in a similar vein.

JAPAN IS ENTHUSIASTIC OVER BRITISH VISITORS

PEOPLE'S ANGER VANISHES

TOKIO, Oct. 12.—Vice Admiral Sir Gerard Henry Noel, commanding the British squadron now at Yokohama, accompanied by a numerous suite, arrived here this morning by special train from Yokohama. After an exchange of greetings the British Admiral and his party entered imperial carriages and were driven through streets lined by cheering thousands of people to Hibiya Park, where the Mayor of Tokio gave a garden party in their honor.

From early this morning Tokio was on the tiptoe of expectancy and anxious to witness the arrival of the Admiral representing Japan's great ally. It was a perfect Autumn day. The streets were decorated with flags and flowers to an extent which recalled the rejoicings over the Japanese victories at the Yalu River, Liao-Yang, Mukden, Port Arthur, and in the Sea of Japan, the difference to-day being that the union jack was everywhere in evidence.

The feeling of depression of the last few weeks had completely disappeared and had been replaced by buoyant good humor among the crowds which assembled early in the morning at all points of vantage around the Shimbasi railroad station and along the line of march. The special train with Admiral Noel and the other British officers arrived at the station at 11 o'clock. They were met by distinguished officers of the navy and army and others, who were drawn up in line on the platform. The many officials present included the Marquis Ito, President of the Privy Council, and the Cabinet Ministers.

The Admiral bowed right and left in reply to the ovations until the entrance of Hibiya Park was reached. There a magnificent triumphal arch with the word "Welcome," emblazoned with yellow chrysanthemums on a green background, had been erected. The park was packed with the guests who had been invited to the garden party. Among the high officials present was Prince Tokugawa, President of the House of Peers, who studied in England years ago and who on this occasion paid the most marked attention to Admiral Noel.

Pryor to the commencement of the programme the Mayor delivered a speech of welcome. He said he was honored and delighted to receive an Admiral of a navy with such a brilliant history and belonging to a country which Japan was proud to call her ally in guarding the peace of the Orient. The Mayor added that he regretted the fact that Tokio was unable to express more adequately the sincerity of Japan's welcome.

Admiral Noel replied briefly. Both speeches were enthusiastically applauded.

This ceremony was followed by a luncheon and the athletic sports.

Mikado to Decorate Mr. Dennison.

SEATTLE, Oct. 12.—Mr. Dennison, the American legal adviser of the Japanese Foreign Office, is to receive a high decoration from the Emperor for his services at the Portsmouth peace conference, according to a statement made by Mr. Nishimura, who is on his way from Tokio to Montreal, where he represents the Japan Central Tea Traders' Association.

CONFERENCE ON VENEZUELA.

Calhoun Gets Root's Advice on Report Which May Go to Congress.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Secretary Root, Assistant Secretary Bacon, Judge W. J. Calhoun, and ex-Assistant Secretary Loomis held a conference this afternoon for several hours on the Venezuelan situation. Secretary Root previously had a long conference with the President on the same subject. Secretary Root spent considerable time to-day in consultation with Mr. Calhoun and Consul Plumacher of Maracaibo regarding Venezuela. This consultation followed a talk with Ambassador Jusserand about the French cable complication.

Judge Calhoun has not completed his report on his special mission to Venezuela. He is consulting Secretary Root in its preparation, progress being made with great deliberation and care.

The overtures made by President Castro to the French Government and the refusal of M. Taigny, the Chargé, to entertain negotiations have in no wise modified the course to be pursued by this Government.

Judge Calhoun desires to embody in what will be a most important part of the record in the case only those facts coming under his observation which may be indispensibly pertinent to the complaint made by the United States and by France against the Castro Government. Ultimately the whole matter may be laid before Congress. It will have to be should the situation make it necessary for this Government to send an ultimatum to Castro.

HOTTENTOTS WIN AGAIN.

Capture a German Camp, with All the Stores—Another Garrison Flees.

CAPE TOWN, Oct. 12.—Morengo and Morris, chiefs of the rebellious Hottentots of German Southwest Africa, have captured Jerusalem Camp, between Warmbad and Scult Drift, after severe fighting.

Lieut. Surmand and five other Germans were killed and eight men were wounded. The Hottentots sustained no losses and captured all the stock and stores. Several Germans were made prisoners, but after being disarmed were allowed to return to Gen. von Trotha, commander of the German forces, with a letter from Morengo, saying that the Hottentots were now in a position to take the offensive and would fight to the finish.

The men of the German garrison at Kliplaats, hearing that Morengo was in their vicinity, burned their stores, deserted the post, and retired to Descondesdam.

The garrison at N'kaas has been strengthened by 900 men and a battery of artillery.

MEXICAN EDITORS ARRESTED.

Accused in Missouri of Libel and Inciting a Revolution.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 12.—The office of Regeneracian, an alleged revolutionary Mexican journal, was raided to-day by detectives, who arrested Ricardo Flores Magon, Enrique Flores Magon, and Juan Sarabia, editors and publishers of the paper, on the technical charge of criminally libeling Manuel Esperon y de la Flor, Governor of Pochutla, Mexico.

The warrants precede indictments for criminal libel, which, it is believed, have been voted by the October Grand Jury on the evidence of Manuel Esperon y de la Flor and wife, who came to this city to prosecute the editors. Behind the charge of libel is said to be a charge by the Mexican officials, including President Diaz, that the real purpose of the publication is to incite revolution in Mexico.

At the Four Courts the men admitted to Chief Desmond that they were members of a party opposed to the Diaz form of Government. They say they advocate a liberal Government, divorced from the church.

DUKE OF DEVIL-MAY-CARE
By HARRIS DICKSON

Duke, the dashing young owner of the Devil-May-Care plantation near New Orleans falls, in love with the daughter of a family with which he has a feud. He follows her to New Orleans, where her aunt is abducted. He is suspected of another crime and the suspicion of this one naturally falls on him. The ensuing complications are intense with interest, and the situations in the novel thrill the reader to the end of the last chapter.

GIANTS WIN BY 9 TO 0; ATHLETICS' PLAY RAGGED

McGraw's Men Now Have Two of the Championship Games.

MATHEWSON'S GREAT WORK

Philadelphians Unable to Stand Against His Pretzel Curves—Odds Favor New Yorkers.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 12.—The Giants to-day won the third of the inter-league series of baseball games from the Philadelphia champions by the top-heavy score of 9 to 0. It was the second victory for the New York team, and the manner of its achievement led to a comparison of notes as to the reason why McGraw's men have captured two of the three games played.

The uncertainty of horse racing is proverbial. Baseball is too modern to be made into a wise saw, but when it comes to supplying the unexpected, it can dispute honors with any four-legged contest. At the same time it admits of legitimate judgment upon both the exercise of brains and brawn in the performance of the game, and no one can gainsay that throughout the series the Giants have excelled in one quarter which ultimately figures highest—acute baseball intelligence.

Neither team, pitted as it has been, against the highest grade of the twirling art, has excelled in batting and the fielding of both have been more or less on a par, but in headwork New York has surpassed Philadelphia, and that tells the story of the Giants' conquests. That also to-night shifted the betting odds to a basis of 2 to 1 that the Giants would win the series.

In the aggregate a eulogy of to-day's play would point without discrimination to the nine men who did the work as a whole, but individually only to that professor of occult speed and pretzel curve, Christie Mathewson. When the Factoryville baseball genius won his game on Monday, Philadelphia admired. To-night they wonder. Considering his record for the eighteen innings of play in which he has officiated, it is not astonishing. During that performance he allowed only nine hits and no contender got beyond second base. His twirling to-day was mainly a fan-fest, and at all times in the situation he was complete master.

In contrast to the work of Coakley, one of the Athletics' pennant raiders, that of Mathewson was as the rays of the midday sun to the flickerings of a frost-coated firefly.

Christie was bumped for a total of only five hits, one a rank scratch; he fanned nine men, and gave only one pass. Coakley was rapped for eight hits; he gave five walks, and struck out only two. Collectively, the Giants played in a way that made the Athletics look fourth rate. Especially was this so in the fifth, when through a combination of hits by the Giants and a series of senseless and rudderless manoeuvres by the Athletics New York scored five runs. It was here that Philadelphia felt both sorry for and ashamed of its team, and also that New York demonstrated its unquestioned superiority.

The game on the part of New York was clean and admirable at all times; for the Athletics mostly ragged and rattlebrain. McGann proved a tower at the bat and Devlin a never-ending source of wonderment at third. The fans rubbed their eyes in amazement at the way Arthur annihilated everything that ventured his way.

"Bushel baskets barred," yelled a rooter in the bleachers when Arthur continued to make brilliant pick ups. Devlin laughed in approval.

A FALLEN IDOL.

And with the characteristic volatility of the baseball fan, who worships a hero to-day and destroys him to-morrow, all Philadelphia execrates Danny Murphy to-night. His play at second was conspicuously miserable, but he is consoled with the knowledge that he stands not alone among his associates.

New York made its runs in the first, fifth, and ninth innings. Philadelphia had men on bases in the first, second, fifth, seventh, and eighth rounds, but couldn't get them over the plate. Abbreviated grounds is all that prevented the score from being larger, for Donlin and McGann both lined bingles against the outer walls which, if allowed to roll, would have undoubtedly been home runs. As it was, the smashes rebounded from Philadelphia's auxiliary wooden fielders and prevented the sluggers from getting beyond the first sack.

It was a raw and cold day for baseball, the thermometer registering in the neighborhood of 65 degrees. Nearly all of the 11,000 fans wore overcoats and ehivered, and there wasn't enough excitement from the Athletics' point of view to keep real baseball blood in rapid circulation.

Four hundred of the faithful from Manhattan howled for their favorites throughout the game. They were kept busy answering the taunts of Philadelphia rooters.

Mathewson went out to warm up just before play began, and when the announcement was made that he would do the twirling for the visitors Philadelphia's heart sank. The crowd began to howl for Bender.

"Bring on the Indien; let's see the best that can be produced." But Mack declined the invitation and offered Coakley.

The Giants began business at the tap of the bell. It was Coakley's luck as it was Plank's on Monday to plant a twister in the small of Bresnahan's back. Roger tried to dodge, but was not quick enough. The crowd was inclined to be vicious, and when Bresnahan stood at the plate and curled up in pain the fans howled with delight. The blow was a severe one, but Bresnahan was game and walked to first and was soon dancing about ready for an opportunity to steal.

Browne, the next man up, tried to sacrifice, and after bunting two bad ones put a high foul into Lave Cross's mitten. Donlin, however, was equal to the occasion. The first ball presented to him he swung upon and the sphere went to the right field fence without touching the ground. Ordinarily the hit would have been good for four hases, but as Seybold raced for it the sphere struck the rail with a crash and bounded back into his hands. Mike was forced to content himself with a single base, while Bresnahan spiked it to third. McGann walked to the plate with an ominous frown upon his face. He had struck out three timee in Tuesday's game, and went at Coakley with blood in his eye.

OH! HOW HE HIT IT.

"Here's where it's coming to you, old boy," he taunting remarked to the Athletics' slabman.

And it was. McGann leaned back and caught an inshoot on the end of his bat, and it went even further than Donlin's smash, the ball crashing against the fence in right centre on a first bound. As in the case of Donlin's bingle, the leather rebounded, and McGann had to tarry at first. Bresnahan scored on the hit, however, and Mike, when the smoke had cleared, found himself perched on third. Mertes swung viciously on an outshoot when Coakley had resumed the box, and the ball went hurtling to Murphy. Dan tried his best, but the ball slipped through his hands. The fans groaned in pain, and Donlin took his time getting home. McGann going to second. Dahlen passed four bad ones, and walked, filling the bases. The New York faithfuls rose in their might at this situation and encouraged Devlin to line it out.

"Kill it, Arthur!" was the plaintive appeal.

But the best Devlin could do was to smash the ball to Coakley, who stopped it before he could get out of the line of action. Coakley threw to Schreck, catching McGann. Schreck then slammed the ball to Davis, who caught Devlin. The quick work retired the side.

In the Athletics' half of the first Hartsel hit safely and stole second, but he got no further. Lord struck out; Davis hit to Matty, who with rare presence of mind threw to Devlin to catch Topsy, who started for third on the play. Devlin and Dahlen ran down Hartsel. This destroyed Philadelphia's chance to score.

Both sides were retired in one-two-three order in the second. Gilbert hit a fast one to Lave Cross, who executed a beautiful scoop, and hurled the ball to Davis in time to retire the batter. Mathewson flied to Davis, and Bresnahan drove a liner to third. The ball was driven with lightning speed about ten feet to the left of Cross, who barely had time to fall over and catch the sphere with one hand. It was a sensational out, and the crowd howled with delight.

It was in the fifth that the two teams showed their real metal. In this inning five of the Giants crossed the plate, and the game was safely bundled up and tucked away in the Manhattan bat bag. Mathewson, the first to face the rubber, was retired by the Monte Cross-Davis route. Bresnahen, however, did better and walked after contemptuously passing four evil ones. Browne then smashed a wicked one to Murphy, who was apparently suffering from a bad case of rattles. Danny clawed at the spheroid but it evaded him, and Bresnahan, quick to take advantage, beat to third. Murphy hurled the ball to Cross to catch Bresnahan, but wes too late. Browne chased to second on the throw, and was obliged to soil his broadcloth by sliding. O'Day called him safe, and the crowd threatened to destroy the umpire.

GAVE HIM REBATES.

With men on third and second Coakley preferred to teke no chances with Donlin. Schreck stood five feet to the left of the plate, and Coakley lobbed four wide ones over. Donlin walking. It was then that Murphy came in for a substantial share of worldly troubles for McGann, the next one up, pasted one to him, and the second baseman allowed it to percolate through his fortifications. The crowd roared, the general opinion being, volcanically expressed, that Murpny was quite an objectionable and undesirable person, acquiring money under false pretenses.

Bresnahan scored on the error. Mertes saw one that he liked and dispatched it to the right field fence. It should have been at least a three-base hit, but he got only a single. Browne, however, scored. Dahlen then hit to Murphy, who had come out of his trance. Murphy grabbed the ball and touched Mertes and tried for a double, but feiled, Donlin scoring on the play. Coakley then performed a somnambulistic feat, and while walking about the box with the ball in his hands Dahlen ran to second. He was there before Coakley regained presence of mind. Devlin next flailed a liner to Monte Cross, who dropped the ball, McGann scoring. Monte sent the horsehide to Lave, who acted more like a trance medium than a ball player. Dahlen was too rapid and gained the bag. Devlin then essayed the old inducement of permitting himself to be caught by slowly wandering in the direction of second. Schreck threw to second and Dahlen started for home. Dahlen raced back and regained the bag when Murphy threw to Cross, and by the time Lave had the ball in Davis's hands Devlin was also safe on the first sack. On the next ball pitched Devlin tried the bluff again, and this time successfully, for as Schreck threw to second Dahlen raced toward home. Murphy returned to the plate very slowly, and Dahlen was safe, as was Devlin, who ran to second. That ended the run getting, however, for Gilbert flied to Lord.

The Giants scored two more in the ninth, thanks very largely to McGann's magnificent stick work.

To-morrow and Saturday's game will be played in New York, beginning at 2:30. McGinnity will probably make a second attempt at a victory to-morrow, and Mathewson will go in on Saturday probably against Bender.

SOUTHERNERS HONOR NEGRO.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 12.—The funeral of Amos Rucker, a negro, took place here this afternoon, and the members of Camp Walker, United Confederate Veterans, followed the body to the grave as an honorary escort. Rucker was a member of the camp. Gen. Clement A. Evans, Division Commander of the United Confederate Veterans, officiated at the funeral, and among the pall bearers were ex-Gov. Allen D. Candler, Gen. A. J. Weet, Judge W. Lowndes Calhoun, Dr. Amos Fox, and R. S. Osborne.

Rucker followed his master, "Sandy" Rucker, through the civil war in the Thirty-third Georgia Infantry, and has been a familiar figure at Confederate reunions for years.

Columbus Day.

The four hundred and thirteenth anniversary of the discovery of America by Christopher Columbus was celebrated yesterday by the Italian societies in a parade, followed by a charity festival and ball. The parade etarted early in the afternoon from 106th Street and Second Avenue and passed through the principal streets of Harlem's Italian colony. It stopped at the Harlem River Park and Casino, where 5,000 Italians, representing thirty-two societies, held their charity festival. Earlier in the day a wreath was placed upon the statue of the navigator in Columbus Circle.

CHURCH WOMAN OWNS THE BON TON BUILDING

But Her Son-in-Law Takes Whatever Blame There May Be.

THOUGHT IT WAS ALL RIGHT

Until Schmittberger Raided It—Mrs. Loutrel of Orange Owns No More in the Tenderloin, He Says.

The police have found that the buildings at 118 West Thirty-first Street, into which Inspector Schmittberger and Capt. Dooley rushed some two weeks ago like a pair of Kansas cyclones to raid the negro Bon Ton Club, is owned by Mrs. Harriet A. Loutrel, widow of Col. Cyrus F. Loutel of 157 Raymond Avenue, South Orange, N. J.

Mrs. Loutrel was until recently one of the society leaders in the Oranges. She is a prominent church worker. Hers is one of the handsomest houses in South Orange. She lives at the Raymond Avenue address with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Johnson.

Mr. Johnson acted as Mrs. Loutrel's agent in renting her property. She acquired the Thirty-first Street building in 1902. In the hearing now going on at Police Headquarters, the avowed purpose of which is to ascertain if Inspector Schmittberger and Capt. Dooley used undue brutality in raiding the place, Commissioner McAdoo sought to find out from his men who owned the property. Schmittherger said he didn't know; so did Capts. Dooley and Cottrell.

At last, at the suggestion of a lawyer, Mr. McAdoo got the Title Guarantee and Trust Company to get the information. Johnson, the son-in-law, called on the Commissioner and told him that both he and Mrs. Loutrel thought that all their property, including the Bon Ton house, was rented to respectable persons.

If, however, the Bon Ton Club was but a sham for a gang of poolroom men and gamblers, as the police declare, Mr. Johnson went on, then the tenants would ho dispossessed. Already, he said, Johnny Jones, the head and front of the Bon Ton, had been ordered to vacate on Nov. 1, when the lease expires. As the police had required two years to learn the character of the Bon Ton, it wasn't unreasonable. Mr. Johnson said, that he should think that the tenants were clean and law-abiding.

Special to The New York Times.

ORANGE, N. J., Oct. 12.—Mrs. Loutrel was not at home to-night when a TIMES correspondent called to ask her about her connection with the Bon-Ton Club property. Her son-in-law declared with much warmth that Mrs. Loutrel knew nothing whatever about the matter, and that he, as her agent, was solely responsible for the property. Mr. Johnson is well known in the Oranges. He is Village Assessor of South Orange, and is in the real estate business, having an office at 1,265 Broadway, New York.

"I purchased the property as Mrs. Loutrel's agent about three years ago," he said, "and I cannot recall if that colored man named Jones was in possession at that time or not. I rather think he was not, that he came in later on. I had the collecting of the rents, but I never entertained the slightest suspicion that there was anything wrong with the place. It seems to me that if the place was as bad as it is reported to have been, the police would have found out all about it. They cannot dodge the issue on the plea that they couldn't find the owner. They could have found out with the greatest ease by simply consulting the public real estate records. However, Jones has been told to get out by Nov. 1."

Mr. Johnson was asked if Mrs. Loutrel owned any other property in the Tenderloin district. He replied emphatically that the property at 118 West Thirty-first Street was the only piece of property, except a small parcel away up town, which Mrs. Loutrel owned in all New York.

Mrs. Loutrel is a woman slightly past middle age. Her husband was a wholesale dealer in etationery, his firm being that of Francis & Loutrel, with headquarters in Vesey Street, New York. He was a vestryman of the Episcopal Church of the Holy Communion, South Orange, and an organizer of Christ Church, East Orange. Mrs. Loutrel is a member of the Woman's Club of Orange, and a Director of the South Orange Free Library. Since her husband's death, about four years ago, she has withdrawn almost altogether from active social life.

PAPER TRUST DEFIES COURT.

Witnesses Appeal from Fine and Jail Sentence for Contempt.

ST. PAUL, Oct. 12.—C. I. McNair, B. F. Nelson, and A. S. Boesard, who were recently ordered by Judge Vandeventer to answer certain questions and produce the hooks of their paper mills before Special Examiner Taylor of the United States District Court, to-day refused to comply with the order and were adjudged in contempt of court.

Judge Vandeventer sentenced each of the witnesses to pay a fine of $150 and to he confined in the county jail until purged of contempt. Immediate notice of an appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States was announced, and five days were allowed the defendants' attorney in which to prepare a writ of error. This acts as a stay of sentence, and the men were released on bail.

Their testimony was wanted in connection with the suit of the United States against the General Paper Company.

Dr. Deimel Underwear
(LINEN-MESH)
With the approach of cold weather we direct especial attention to this well known underclothing. After an experience of eight years we do not hesitate to recommend a trial even to those who have been accustomed to use only the heaviest Flannels.
It is far more comfortable than wool, because it is soothing, instead of irritating to the skin. It offers better protection because it keeps the body healthfully warm—not overheated or damp. People who wear Dr. Deimel Underclothing are comparatively free from colds which so often identify the wool wearers.
The number of those who appreciate the merits of Dr. Deimel Underclothing is increasing daily, and its most enthusiastic friends are those who formerly thought that their very lives depended upon wearing woolens.

BANKERS FOR SUBSIDY TO AID OUR SHIPPING

TALK BY A SCOTCH BANKER

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The American Association of Bankers to-day put itself squarely on record as favoring Government subsidies for upbuilding the merchant marine. On a rising vote three-fourths of the delegates supported the resolutions.

The report of the Currency Committee, which was received hut not acted upon, followed suggestions made yesterday by Secretary Shaw for an emergency currency.

This afternoon many of the bankers and their friends witnessed an exhibition drill of cavalry at Fort Myer. Others went to Arlington and Mount Vernon. The closing session comes to-morrow. The ticket reported by the Nominating Committee follows: President—John L. Hamilton, Hoopston, Ill.; Vice President—C. S. Whitson, New York City; Executive Committee—G. M. Reynolds, Chicago; Charles J. Edwards, Burlington, Iowa; J. J. Sullivan, Cleveland; Henry Wilcox, Baltimore, and Milton E. Alles, District of Columbia.

In the invocation opening the convention to-day the Rev. Dr. Teunis S. Hamlin deplored all lapses from the high standards of honor among those managing the financial interests of the country and prayed that consciences might be quickened and wills strengthened.

A history of the Scotch system of banking was presented to the convention by Robert Blyth, General Manager of the Union Bank of Scotland, at Glasgow. The first Scotch bank wae established in 1695. To-day there are but ten banke in Scotland, seven doing nine-tenths of the business. The chief characteristic of the Scotch system is the right of the banks to issue the one-pound note, as the result of which Scotland retains to-day her paper currency, almost to the exclusion of metal currency, while the reverse is true in England.

Mr. Blyth maintained that the one-pound note was the mainstay of the network of branch banks and encouraged the savings of the poorer classes. The aggregate of deposits of the ten Scotch banks is $600,000,000.

Another distinctive feature of the Scotch system is its cash credit account, whereby a trader or manufacturer is enabled to horrow from the hanks temporarily by executing a bond, to which he gets the signature of two or more friends with his own. The bank honors checks up to the amount named, obviating the pledging of securities. Interest is not charged except on the amount drawn. In the last half century there have been but two bank failures in Scotland.

An address by Walker Hill, President of the Mechanics' American Bank of St. Louis, on the practical benefits of membership in the American Bankers' Association, followed the remarks of Mr. Blyth.

A SUBWAY IN TWO WEEKS.

Through a Marsh, Too—Will Take Racegoers to the Trains.

Hundreds of laborers are hurrying to finish a subway through which thousands of racegoers will pass when entering and leaving the Metropolitan Jockey Club's Jamaica racetrack on snd after next Monday. The subway will be completed within two weeks from the time it wae started, although it is being constructed directly through a marsh.

The water rises around the subway at the rate of a foot an hour. The best engineering skill of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company was called in, and Theodore A. Schaffer, engineer of a system of water-proofing, was pressed into the service. It was necessary to complete the subway within two weeks that it might be ready for the Fall meeting at the Jamaica racetrack. When a considerable excavation had heen made it was found that the water rose faster than the men could dig. A five-inch pump wae started and considerable cement was laid but the pressure of the water was so great that it raised the cement, which was thickly laid, and cracked it like an eggshell. By the vigorous uee of pumps and the application of water-proofing the cementwork progressed, and the engineers eay the subway will be completed and ready for use on Monday.

The tunnel is being flanked by long platforms from which trains will receive passengers. Trains will stand at the east and weet ends of long platforms. After about 1,000 persone have rushed up the steps leading to the east end of the platform the next thousand will he diverted to the west end. By the time that group has reached the platform and boarded its train other trains will be backed into position, and the tide will again be turned eastward. In that manner it is hoped to handle the crowds easily and with entire satisfaction.

GETS NEW PAIR OF EYELIDS.

Gas Explosion Victim Had Skin Grafted from His Arm.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Oct. 12.—A remarkable surgical operation was recently performed at Mount Carmel Hoepital, by which W. L. Kerr got a new pair of lower eyelids. The operation promises to be entirely successful.

Last February Kerr was badly hurt in a natural gas explosion, his lower eyelids being almost entirely burned off. New lide were formed by grafting skin from Kerr's arm. The eyes were then sewed and bandaged. His eyesight has not suffered.

ASHBRIDGE'S DIRECTOR SOUGHT ON A WARRANT

Charges Against A. L. English, Former Philadelphia Official.

CONTRACTORS UNDER ARREST

Accused of Defrauding the City in Connection with a New Hospital—$40,000 Involved.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 12.—At the instance of James G. Gordon, counsel for Mayor Weaver, warrants were issued today for Abraham L. English, ex-Director of Public Safety; John W. Henderson and Henry E. Baton of the contracting firm of Henderson & Co., Limited; Philip H. Johnson, architect and brother-in-law of Israel W. Durham, and James E. Finley, a former Inspector, charging them with conspiracy to defraud the city in connection with the contract for the erection of the smallpox hospital. It is said that about $40,000 is involved.

All the men, except ex-Director English, who was reported to be in New York, entered bail before Magistrate Eisenbown in the sum of $5,000 each for their appearance to-morrow. It is declared that several more arrests in connection with other municipal contracts will be made within the next two or three weeks.

The arrests created little surprise. Ever since W. B. Powell, City Architect, made his report on the smallpox hospital, several weeks ago, arrests have been expected.

The prominence of the principals caused a great deal of comment, and there is a pressing desire to learn the exact charges and what the prosecution expects to prove. The affidavit which was made by Capt. Donaghy of the Detective Bureau, and a letter which Attorney Gordon sent to the District Attorney's office, threw little light on the case. It is known that a large number of witnesses have been subpoenaed and that the prosecution hopes to show that Durham and James P. McNichol are members of the firm of Henderson & Co.

The contract on which the charges are based was awarded to Henderson & Co. by Director English an Feb. 16, 1903. The work on the hospital began on June 1, 1904, under Mayor Weaver, and the building was completed one year later. The estimated cost was $150,000. On Aug. 10, 1904, Henderson & Co. got the contract to build the power house of the hospital at an estimated cost of $103,000. This was completed on Jan. 10 last.

Mayor Weaver and his counsel have been investigating the smallpox hospital contract for more than a month. City Architect Powell, in his report, asserts that the specifications were ignored in numerous inetances, and in a general way the construction of the building is not the best.

While the prosecution is keeping the nature of its investigations a secret, it is declared that conspiracy and collusion are the specific charges, and that the city is out $40,000 as a result of the alleged conspiracy. In other words, the prosecution will seek to prove that inferior work was paseed and that this allowed a profit of $40,000, which could not have been made had the specifications been strictly enforced.

Suits and Overcoats for Men, $20.
Whether the edict of fashion sanctions one style or another, the elemental principles of good tailoring remain unchanged. And those elemental principles are these: The fabrics must be of a class that will render service; the designing must be guided by trained minds, with a knowledge of true porportions and human form; the internals of a garment are the key to its shape-retaining qualities and must receive a treatment which insures a perfect exterior; and then, in the tailoring must be incorporated those subtle touches which make for grace, character and distinctiveness. These pivotal principles are all observed in the fashioning of this new series of suits and overcoats at Twenty Dollars.
The suits take form in a series of single and double breasted sack and English Frock models, fashioned of plain or fancy cheviots, cassimeres and exclusive designs in smooth surface worsteds and blue and black Thibets.
The overcoats involve a series of models in topcoats and medium length overcoats—the fabrics are coverts in the new shades, Oxfords, black Thibets and wide wale cheviots.
Other suits and overcoats $15 to $40.

DELCANTA'S STEEPLECHASE

"Mr. Cotton's" Clever Young Jumper Won the Harbor Hill Cup Easily at Belmont Park.

It was almost a relief to racegoers at the Belmont Park track yesterday when a programme was finished without any breaking of either world or track records. The rain of the night before had prepared the crowd for just ordinary, every-day racing, but at that there were apprehensions that records still might fall when the early arrivals at the course found a crew of men watering the track on the first turn, so quickly had the rain run off the grades, which the sun and wind dried to the point of dustiness.

The sport was fairly interesting, but there were drawbacks in the results, in spite of the fact that three post favorites were first, for two of these were at prices that prohibited backing from the general public, while the third, Red Knight, was favorite only through the weight of stable money bet, and supplanted the popular choice, Spring, as favorite after Red Knight had been backed from 3 to 1 down to 2 to 1, while Spring went back from 6 to 5 to a starting price of 11 to 5.

In the races where the favorites were beaten the results were about as unexpected as could be imagined, long-chance horses at odds of 25 to 1 in one case, 15 to 1 in another, and 6 to 1 in a third, being the victors. The surprise of the day came in the running of the feature event, the Ramapo Handicap, at one mile and a furlong, for three-year-olds, in which seven horses ran, with Bedouin the top weight at 120 pounds. Merry Lark opened favorite, with Glenecho the second choice and Coy Maid the next in favor. As the betting progressed, however, Glenecho succeeded Merry Lark as favorite and finally started at 9 to 5, with Merry Lark the second choice at 11 to 5. Coy Maid, Sir Brillar, and Bedouin were the first three to show out of the crowd when the start was made, Bedouin promptly going to the front and setting a stiff pace through the back stretch and around the turn, where Merry Lark made an attempt to head him. At the head of the stretch, beginning the run home, Bedouin shook off Merry Lark and drew clear again and into the last furlong galloped easily in front, seeming to have the race safely won until Merry Lark and Coy Maid went after him a second time.

All the three were hard ridden at that point, and there still seemed a chance that Bedouin might last it out, when the lightweighted Cedarstrome, at odds of 25 to 1, went up with a rush from fourth place, and just inside the furlong pole got up to Bedouin. Shaw on Bedouin at once made a final call on his horse, and Bedouin as promptly quit and began to fall back, Cedarstrome then passing him easily, and, drawing clear, winning in handy style by a length from Merry Lark, who also caught the tiring Bedouin in the last strides and beat him a neck for the place.

In the second stake feature nine three-year-olds ran over a two-mile steeplechase course, with Delcanta, winner of the first of the cross-country races for three-year-olds, run last week, as an odds on favorite. Delcanta, carrying the colors of "Mr. Cotton," started at 5 to 3 on, a price which made him run for the hookmakers, as the public could not be tempted by any such price against a horse that had never been over a steeplechase course but once. Delcanta, however, justified the betting by racing well up in all stages of the race, and fencing in perfect style, won with an ease that caused the cross-country experts to predict that Delcanta will be one of the stars through the field next season. Four horses fell in this race, and a fifth threw his rider, but was remounted and went the course.

Klamesha, the filly that tied the world's mile record, won the closing race at 5 to 2 on, but there is just a chance that Israelite might have beaten her had he not been all but left at the post, for he closed a lot of ground, and had the filly fairly straight at the end. Summary:

JOCKEY MILLER'S BIG DAY.

Lightweight Boy Rode Four Winners at Big Prices at Belmont Park.

The most sensational feat achieved by a jockey this season was accomplished at the Belmont Park race course yesterday by the light-weight Miller, attached to the stable of W. A. Stanton. In the riding of four winners without a losing mount. It was a record that fell short of the best day's riding of some of the old-time stars—Sloan, Maher, Griffin, and in the West Dominick—but it was by long odds the most spectacular riding triumph that has been the lot of any of the riders in the past few years. Though Miller has had a following of his own since early in the season, even his most enthusiastic admirers were astonished at the results he brought about yesterday. As is the custom when such things happen, one backer of Miller, who bet on three of his mounts, bemoaned the fact that he had not followed the boy through, and estimated that at the odds against the horses Miller rode a single dollar bet straight along through, with its winnings, would have amounted to $8,190.

Miller's first mount was on Congressman, T. D. Sullivan's D'Arkle, whom he took to the front at the start and won with all the way at odds of 6 to 1. The second race was a steeplechase, and of course the boy had no mount in it. In the third race he rode George Odom's Cassandra, at 15 to 1, and, leading all the way with her, won about as he did on D'Arkle. His next mount was Cedarstrome, at 25 to 1, in the Ramapo Handicap, and this race called for real jockey's skill, but Miller was equal to the occasion, and, bringing Cedarstrome up with a rush at the end, he won a sensational race by a narrow margin. In the fifth race he rode Red Knight, the only post favorite on which he was mounted in the course of the day, and again closed from the rear and won a good race in easy style. He had no mount in the last race.

Miller is a Harlem boy, who can ride at weights under 90 pounds. He had his first experience as a jockey on horses owned by George Forbes and was trained in the stable of the late "Pittsburg Phil" by William Smith. His first winning mount was landed last season, when he attracted some attention by his successful riding of the two-year-old filly Consuello II., owned by F. Calhoun. Miller is under contract to W. A. Stanton for three years, and as the Stanton stable soon is to be dispersed it is probable that there will be lively bidding for the boy's contract should his employer decide to sell it.

Ex-Jockey George Odom, a star among the riders of the East for nearly ten years and now a trainer, saddled his first winner yesterday at Belmont Park, when he sent his own filly, Cassandra, to the post for the third race, and then saw her gallop in an easy winner before a big field. It was only the third horse that Odom had ever started, and he met with many congartulations on his early success in his new vocation.

After a jostle on the stretch by the horses leading in the finish of the fifth race at Belmont Park yesterday, Jockey Kunz, who rode True Wing, was called up by the Stewards and suspended for the remainder of the meeting for rough riding.

The victory of Congressman T. D. Sullivan's horse D'Arkle, in the first race at Belmont Park yesterday, resulted in a big winning for a select few persons, but it was said that the owner had no share in the profits, though several of his political friends made large winnings. The biggest winner was Joseph Cassidy, President of the Borough of Queens, who, it is said, took about $20,000 out of the ring.

Of the four jockeys who had falls in the steeplechase at Belmont Park yesterday all escaped injury except Houlihan, who had the mount on Herculoid. The latter fell just as he went into the lead and rolled over on Houlihan, who then was struck by one of the horses coming on from behind and was stunned by the blow. He was removed in an ambulance, but soon regained consciousness, and was able to go home, though badly shaken up.

The stakes opened for the Fall meeting on the Pimlico track at Baltimore, including the Pimlico Serial Handicaps and several other events with liberal added money, will be closed to-morrow. From the advance entries received, the stakes will fill well and will engage a number of the best class horses racing late in the season.

FAST SPEEDWAY RACES FOR CHAMPIONSHIP CUPS

INVADER LOST CLOSE RACE

Victory of Baron de Shay Strengthened Prospect of Match Race with Nathan Straus's Ida Highwood.

Stepping out in speedy fashion the trotters and pacers provided excellent sport yesterday in the first matinée of the Seedway's Autumn brushing. The competitions, all at a half mile, were held under the direction of the Road Drivers' Association for the valuable silver trophies offered by Miss Giulia Morosini, Dr. H. D. Gill, Walter M. Jermyn, Paul Dana, Luke A. Burke, and George H. Huber. There were five trotting and three pacing classes on the card, but the interest centred about the class A trotters because of the prospect of a match race with Nathan Straus's great mare, Ida Highwood. Only three horses got places in the class A division, and as J. E. Meyer's big bay gelding Swago was scratched the racing narrowed down to Andrew Phillips's Baron de Shay and Andrew Crawford's Invader. The latter was beaten two weeks ago in the Sunday morning brushing by Ida Highwood and the gelding fared as badly yesterday, for Baron de Shay took straight heats, getting to the half-mile mark each time about a head in advance of the old Seedway favorite.

Thomas B. Leahy's little black mare, Princess Pique, captured the Class B trot without splitting heats. The mare that accomplished such phenomenal work at the Empire City track matinées had to meet a fine lot in this event, and each time they all finished in a bunch, with only inches to spare.

An unfortunate break right at the finish on the part of Charles Brandon, William Cahill's bay gelding, resulted in the Class C trotting race going to William Scott's Kitty Wilkes. The latter took the first heat from among the six starters, while Charles Brandon, which broke badly, trailed along in sixth place. In the next heat Charles Brandon got off splendidly and Cahill kept him on his feet right up to the end. When the two horses came out for the final they started down the stretch, with Charles Brandon slightly in the lead. Kitty Wilkes nosed right behind Cahill's wagon, and as the leader reached within a rod of the finish he wabbled and broke, Kitty Wilkes just beating him to the wire.

There were also six starters in the Class B pacing race, which was won by the fine driving of J. W. Smith of his black gelding, Ogden Smith. Every heat found the horses compactly bunched at the finish, and each was pushed under much use of the whip and coaxing on the part of the drivers. F. G. Schmidt's Mercury Wilkes won the first heat, but in the following two Ogden Smith managed to show a fine burst of speed at the end, although there was but a small margin to spare between the first and second horses.

TIGERS ON THE TRACK.

Gamble, a Freshman, Proves a Surprise in Princeton's Fall Games.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 12.—The Princeton Fall track games were held this afternoon in spite of the unfavorable weather. An abundance of material came out from all the classes, but the sophomores showed up best, making 45 points; 1909 came next with 32, 1906 with 24, and 1907 with 12.

Gamble, a freshman, proved the surprise of the meet by easily winning the 100-yard dash in 0:10 4-5 and coming in first in the 220-yard hurdles. Summaries:

100-Yard Dash.—Won by Gamble, 1909; Connors, 1908, second; Bangs, 1907, third. Time—0:10 4-5.

220-Yard Dash.—Won by Runyon, 1908; Bangs, 1907, second; Burton, 1906, third. Time—0:24 3-5.

440-Yard Run.—Won by Runyon, 1908; Warford, seminary, second; Powers, 1908, third. Time—0:54 1-5.

One-Mile Run.—Won by Lingle, 1908; Parsons, 1909, second; Mulry, 1907, third. Time—5:05 2-5.

Two-Mile Run.—Won by Kallay, 1908; Rust, 1907, second; Carey, seminary, third. Time—11:23 3-5.

120-Yard Hurdles.—Won by Doane, 1906; Turner, 1909, second; Abbey, 1907, third. Time—0:16 4-5.

220-Yard Hurdles.—Won by Gambla, 1909; Surbrug, 1909, second; Doane, 1906, third. Time—0:23 3-5.

High Jump.—Won by Laird, 1906; Gilpin, 1909, second; Clark, 1908, third. Height 5 feet 9 inches.

Broad Jump.—Won by Keith, 1906; Conners, 1908, second; Barnes, 1906, third. Distance 19 feet 11½ inches.

Shot Put.—Won by Connors, 1908; Thompson, 1908, second; Fryer, 1909, third. Distance 38 feet 11 inches.

Pole Vault.—Lambert, 1908, and Leonard, 1909, tied for first place with 9 feet 6 inches; Vezin, 1909, third.

Hammer Throw.—Won by Rafferty, 1906; Scott, 1907, second; Waller, 1906, third. Distance 115 feet 5 inches.

BIG RUN AT BILLIARDS.

McLaughlin Nearly Overtook Gallagher In Balk-Line Match.

By a magnificent exhibition of play Edward McLaughlin almost overtook Thomas Gallagher last night in the fourth night's play in the match, 300 points a night, at eighteen-inch balk line, two shots in. No shot seemed impossible for McLaughlin, and difficult kisses and carom bank shots followed each other with wonderful frequency. His nursing and position play was of the highest order.

In his seventh inning he added 118 points to his score and pulled up very close to his adversary, who appeared at the start of the night to have so long a lead as to almost make a runaway match of it.

McLaughlin followed up his big run with another of 60, and added 30, 49, and 45 in later innings. Four times in the evening Gallagher appeared to find his stroke, and on these occasions he ran 36 twice, 37 once, and 43 again. The score follows:

McLaughlin—20 10 2 3 2 3 118 60 4 1 0 0 7 4 1 0 0 36 8 15 3 2 3 49 45 15 1 1 1 1. Total, 415. Average, 38 12-31; high runs, 118, 60, 49. Total score for four nights, 1,146.

Gallagher—2 86 26 0 1 5-11 2 4 0 1 1 8 15 36 1 0 37 18 10 5 2 0 0 0 1 15 18 2 0 0 43. Total, 300. Average, 9 12-32; high runs, 43, 37, 36. Total score for four nights, 1,200.

Mrs. Brooks Won Hunt Honors.

Special to The New York Times.

HEMPSTEAD, N. Y., Oct. 12.—Mrs. Reggie Brooks won the honors at the Meadow Brook fox hunt this morning. Only a small field appeared at Woodbury, the rendezvous, and half of these were women. After nosing around for half an hour the pack caught the scent and led the party a merry chase for over ten miles, when Reynard was run to earth in the Cold Spring woods. The route taken by the fox was over unusually stiff country, notwithstanding which all the riders got through safely.

Mrs. Brooke kept on the heels of the hounds throughout and, had not the quarry sought refuge in an old fox den, would have easily secured the brush. In the party were P. F. Collier, the master of hounds; Mrs. Brooks, Miss Bryce, Mrs. Louis Bliss, F. Ambrose Clark, Mrs. Stimson, and Miss Swift.

MR. IVINS FOR MAYOR.

If the gayety of nations is not promoted by the Republican Mayoralty campaign it will not bs the fault of WILLIAM M. IVINS. We can wsll understand why the Republicans nave named him, for had they searched the city with lanterns they could nowhere have found a candidate capable of putting such abounding life into their campaign. Literally, it falls to the lot of Mr. IVINS to kindle a fire under the ribs of death, and he can do it—none better. A deader thing than Mr. ODELL's Mayoralty canvass it would have been difficult to find outside the tombs of the Pharaohs. He has besought a dozen men, good men all, to bid the corpse get on its feet, and they have put him off. Who it was that suggested the name of Mr. IVINS we do not know, but it was an inspiration. For whatever may be said of the Republican campaign after it is over, no man will say that it was devoid of life and interest. Yet yesterday morning nobody would have risked his reputation by the prophecy that by any sort of nomination Mr. ODELL could impart life and interest to the Republican city campaign.

Why Mr. IVINS should consent to take the nomination is not so clear. For our part, we think it is his fierce joy in political strife, his old love of the chase flaming up afresh in his bosom, that prompted his acceptance of a mission which he and all his supporters must know is foredoomed to failure. To the present generation WILLIAM M. IVINS is a less familiar figure, but twenty years ago he was very well known indeed to everybody in New York politics, or who concerned himself with New York politics. As a member of the County Democracy and as City Chamberlain during the second administration of Mayor GRACE Mr. IVINS had an opportunity, of which he enthusiastically availed himself, to build up relations of lasting enmity with all the chiefs and captains in Tammany Hall. Knowing the machinery of the City Government as few men knew it, gifted with a mind that at once penetrated to the heart of every subject it took up, equally voracious and tenacious of all sorts of information, he easily became the custodian of a sufficient quantity of political dynamite to make his opponents exceedingly uncomfortable when he was afield, and heartily glad when he went out of politics and betook himself to the practice of law. Mr. IVINS was counsel of the Fassett Committee of Investigation into the private and public morals of New York, and he led his committee on a furious chase that presently brought them in view of such unexpected and monstrous game that they all took to their heels in fright.

What Mr. IVINS would do if really elected Mayor we cannot say. The thing baffles conjecture. Though he is an able lawyer and a first-rate political organizer and fighter, he might make a mess of it in a great executive office. In that field of human duty he is untried. The putting into his hands by such a leader as BENJAMIN B. ODELL of a standard which represents no cause save an attempt to keep the Republican organization together is one of the most reprehensible acts of derisory fortune. For Mr. IVINS in record and aspiration is so far superior to the organization that has named him that the incongruity is striking.

From any point of view the community is to be congratulated upon his candidacy. It will keep the Republican Party together, and it is in the highest degree desirable in this city that there should be a coherent Opposition. Besides, it raises to the point of effervescence a campaign that had become stale before it was fairly opened.

THE COLLEGIATE FIREBUG.

Throwing blazing wads of paper and buckets of water out of four-story student dormitories on the heads of those beneath, as befell in New Haven the other night, when the Yale freshman for some unexplained reason began to dilate with explosive student emotions, is not in the least a meritorious academic or civic or urban practice, being fraught with perils graver than the pyromaniac cubs overhead could have realized. No destructive consequences ensued on this occasion, though it might have resulted in wrapping the venerable university in flames, freshman and sophomore in multitude as the leaves of their overshadowing Summer elms roasting in fires of their own kindling. New Haven is justly proud of her great school and the student procession that passes through it from decade to decade and generation to generation, but it is hardly willing to bs burned up to make for the latter "a Roman holiday." What the youth have to learn with their other acquisitions is that in the very torrent, tempest, and, as one may say, whirlwind of their fun they should beget a temperance not only to give it smoothness, but keep it inside the line of a general conflagration. The boy, as THACKERAY somewhere remarks, is an ass, but that is no reason why he should burn up the stable that shelters, and the manger that feeds, and eke the thong which insufficiently whacks him withal. The freshmen of Pierson Hall took no glory from their late exploit, though they shed some irregular beams of it on the evening from their lit and flying flambeaus—

> As when a shower of meteors
> Cross the orbit of the earth,
> And, lit by fringent air,
> Blaze near and far.

Another time they may not have equal luck, but find themselves bracketed in memory with the aspiring youth who fired the Ephesian dome, an ill-result of all the educational pains taken to make something rational and useful out of them.

THE SURFACE RAILWAYS.

None of us escapes paying nickels to the city's surface railways, and if any of us could escape doing so many of us could help regarding their successive annual reports from the standpoint of civic patriotism as an excellent measure of the metropolis's progress. It is well to disentangle this aspect of the subject from the financial side. The New York City Railway Company's deficit of $2,796,943, as reported yesterday, may be deplorable from a stock market point of view, and yet admit of many compensatory considerations which are consoling to ths citizen, however inept they may seem to the operator who wants to know where the stock is going to sell to-morrow. Travel is so excellent a measure of population that it would be something like a calamity if it were necessary to conclude that a decrease of $596,882 in earnings reflected a check to the city's growth. A decrease of $704,845 in net earnings is of more limited interest since it corresponds merely to less economical management, and is therefore of concern chiefly to those having financial interest in the subject. The same remark applies to a floating debt of $23,605,775. The fact that only two of the constituent companies of the system showed a profit upon operation has a forbidding aspect at first glance. But upon second thought it appears that any one year's operation is a poor measure of a property's value. The true measure is the record and prospect of growth. A deficit due to overcapitalization, to an excessive burden of fixed charges, is something very different from a loss of business. Nothing can compensate for loss of business which seems likely or possible to continue. On the other hand a record and promise of growth may be relied upon to remedy that capitalization of future profits which too many seem to regard as increasing present intrinsic worth.

The report itself emphasizes these reflections, for it assigns specific reasons for the company's temporary set-back and gives no ground for expectation of its continuance. Outside the report may be found amplest reason for thinking that there is no reason for interpreting the company's business as implying a check to the growth of our population. That of course is only another way of saying that the company's revenues cannot continue to dwindle if travel increases in proportion to population. All that is required seems to be patience. The decrease in gross earnings given above is really small when it is considered that it is directly attributable to an exceptionally severe Winter and to the opening of the Subway. There can be no reliable basis of prophecy as to the sort of Winter 1905-6 will be, but the better guess will be that exceptional severity will be followed by milder weather. On the other hand it is quite sure that there will not be another subway opened for a long time to come, with an even chance that the next subway will swell rather than decrease the volume of surface travel. Already this is proving true when the existing Subway is under competitive management. The report informs us that during the Summer months the travel on the surface was larger with the Subway than before its operation. How much more will this be true when the next subway—as there is a fair prospect—is a feeder instead of a competitor. This prospect is both the weakness of the Subway and the strength of the Metropolitan system. The Subway is overtaxed although it has no east and west feedera. The elevated lines afford no help in this respect, and almost nobody rides in the Subway except those who reach it afoot, since few will pay a second fare. This opens an almost limitless prospect for the good fortune of a subway which shall both distribute and collect business by such feeders as the Metropolitan alone can supply. The Subway can make a profit on a long haul north and south where the Metropolitan would lose money. Another longitudinal subway would doubtless find business, but a longitudinal subway with latitudinal feeders and distributors would be a boon not inferior to the first tunnel. Interborough has little to fear and Metropolitan everything to hope from a new tunnel under Metropolitan auspices. From the investors' standpoint the outlook is not forbidding in such a prospect, while the mere nickel payers cannot but hope that the systems shall be distinct and competitive. Interborough is reaping a rich reward, which is not grudged its enterprise, but it would be a misfortune if it monopolized rapid transit.

The Metropolitan system's present deficit is therefore a matter of excessive capitalization rather than of deficient business. Alone it carries more passengers than the total carried by all combined elevated and surface railways before 1890, and it is certain of its share of an increase as sure as taxes. That its business is better than its finances is all that its best friends can claim. An overcapitalization of about half leaves no room for sympathy with original holders for their returns upon their original investment. On the other hand, sad as the fact that it is over half water must ssem to the conservative commentator, there is scant room for moralizing upon it. Overcapitalizing of street railways is the rule rather than the exception. The evil is least in Massachusetts, and greatest in New York, but practically universal. It is reprehensible from every point of view, and the Metropolitan system is an awful example of it. Having said so much, it must be added that even the Metropolitan is growing with the city and has yet to see its best days.

THE PHILIPPINES STORM.

The loss of life in the recent great storm in the Philippines, its outflying streamers striking destructively elsewhere, does not break old records, but in its way holds up the reputation of that tempest-breeding and extra hazardous locality. Two hundred natives killed, with some possible additions when the returns from the back districts come in, is not an overwhelming loss among a population of seven or eight millions, and nothing in the known character of the islanders, who have always shown a nimbis and enterprising aversion to race suicide, forbids us to expect that it will soon be restored. With the greater loss following the progress of the storm outside of our possessions the American eagle has a sympathetic but less direct concern. They were on a broader and more serious scale, and if the islands at the outflow of the Yang-tse Kiang, of recent formation and lifted but little above the normal level of the surrounding waters, have, according to the report, lost all their inhabitants to the number of ten thousand and upward, the occurrence must take its place, along with the Yellow River flood, among the most tragic happenings of its kind anywhere recorded.

The East is a land where giant calamity in many guises intermittently stalks abroad, and it has ever been so, as it is sure to continue, political and social ameliorations such as we may hope to have introduced in a part of it counting for nothing in turning aside its march. Only the other day, so to speak, Japan suffered the loss of thirty or forty thousand of her people by a climbing tidal wave which overswept almost her entire northward coast line, and not long before one of the most populous parts of the Indian Peninsula suffered in like degree and manner as China has just done. These happenings, with their tale of loss counted in tens and scores of thousands, repeat occasional experiences as old as the territories and oceans there. China figures out the destruction now and then by her great river floods in hundreds of thousands and millions. These deluges come about so often, perhaps once or twice in a century, and are beyond the power of incantations to avert or engineering expedients to control. The Filipinos' late loss is trivial in the comparison, and seems an expression of elemental moderation. It must, however, be considered significant aa a token of what is always going to turn up there, sometimes no doubt on a scale to make the Nation sit up and take notice what a tremendous storm centre and cave of tempests we have annexed on the antipodal bend of the world, to say nothing of what we have taken on nearer by in the Caribbean.

LOCAL REPRESENTATION IN RUSSIA

Probably the ungracious action of the City Council of St. Petersburg with reference to the reception of Count WITTE was incited by his enemies in the imperial city, but it is a curious indication of the changes that are going on in the means of expressing public opinion and in the influence of public opinion on the course of affairs that the Council should have been resorted to for such a purpose.

The Municipal Councils are for the towns practically what the Zemstvos are for the rural districts. They are composed of delegates elected by the land owners, the merchants, and the workmen. Their powers are rather limited, relating to the care of primary schools, of hospitals and sanitation, and, vaguely, of the streets. They have no control of the police or local judiciary, and only restricted power as to taxation and expenditure. When they were established some forty years ago, they were in considerable degree independent of the central bureaucracy, but they promptly manifested two tendencies characteristic of Russian representative assemblies. On the one hand they sought to enlarge their powers at the expense of the central authority, and on the other they notoriously neglected the duties actually assigned to them. This gave the bureaucracy, on the one hand, the opportunity to intervene and assume the functions neglected by the Councils, and, on the other hand, to obtain from the Czar an extended right of veto on the action of the Councils on the plea that they were seeking to weaken the autocracy. By a decree of 1890 these two purposes of the bureaucracy were greatly strengthened and the Councils as well as the Zemstvos were considerably restricted in their work.

Within the past ten years, and especially since the outbreak of the war with Japan, the local assemblies have been far more carefully attended by the more intelligent and liberal of their members, and have tended to become, slowly and imperfectly, but really, organs for the expression of popular opinion and sentiment, and also schools for training in the simpler activities of self-government. In the judgment of so acute an observer as Sir MCKENZIE WALLACE they have directly contributed to "great progress in political education." In the imperial Douma that is promised, we think it may be found that the experience of these bodies will aid greatly in carrying out the purpose of the Moderates, as announced by their leader, Prof. MILLIUKOFF, well known in this country, "to do their utmost to make the Douma a national representative assembly in the best sense of the word."

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Italians Who Need Instruction.

A calmness that is certainly curious and not to be explained at first thought, is preserved by both the police and the general public, despite the recent commission here of a long series of crimes that from their novelty as well as from their atrocity, might be expected to create a large amount of horror and excitement. We are referring no less to the assassinations, kidnappings, arsons, and blackmailings in which a minute fraction of our Italian population is indulging than to the actually more criminal attitude that has been assumed and is obstinately maintained by a much larger fraction of that population toward the brigands who are exploiting that larger fraction so ruthlessly and with such impunity. The general public remains almost indifferent to this situation because the brigands have just intelligence enough to deal only with their own countrymen and of those countrymen only with the part unable to appreciate that this is America, and not the Italy of yesterday or the day before. Were the attacks upon Americans or Americanized people of any origin, the whole system of robbery backed by murder would be destroyed in short order. As it is, we are confronted for the first time in our history with the amazing spectacle of associated bands, composed of men whose identity is perfectly well known to thousands of our citizens—and in many ways the thousands are good citizens, too—going almost openly about our streets, demanding tribute from carefully selected victims and deliberately killing the few of those selected who refuse the demands or are slow in granting them. Stories like that of the murder of GAETANO COSTA and of STEFANO DELLUVIO, both of which occurred this week, read as if they were taken, not from our own police court blotters, but from some medieval record of Italian cities where violent crime was a regular and almost respectable business—quite respectable when carried on by men of rank or their retainers, and merely romantic in the case of the unattached bandit. A few arrests may be made, but it is practically certain that nobody will be punished for these murders. Those who could bring about the arrest of the murderers and give evidence that would lead to their conviction are not cowards, as is said, and they are not cowed, as is also said; they simply do not realize that they are entitled to police protection, and can get it if they will. There are Italians who know this as well as other New Yorkers do, but the fact that many more of them do not is a very serious one, and it deserves much more attention than it has yet received. What should be immediately and strongly impressed upon the minds of the un-Americanized Italians is the gravity of such offenses as the compounding and concealing of felonies, and if a few scores of those guilty of those offenses were sent to prison for long terms a needed lesson would be taught.

Where Is the End of "Business"?

It is truly lamentable to observe that the charges filed by the Trustees of the Washington Heights Baptist Church against their predecessors in what may, to take a hint from the ad. writers, be called their near-holy office bear a close resemblance to the accusations now so freely bandied about in life insurance, railway, and stock-jobbing circles. A little executive group, it is asserted, engaged in expensive building operations without consulting the congregation whose money they were spending. Their Building Committee had a favored contractor, upon whom they imposed no limitations of time or cost, and he, in return, bought materials from firms in which members of the little executive group had a financial interest. As a result, the cost of the new church went far beyond expectations and a cruel burden of debt was created—a burden which, because of a more or less mysterious difference of opinion between the congregation and the Baptist Mission Society in regard to a mortgage, there is no present prospect of lifting. A particularly sad feature of the case is the fact that, owing to these and other troubles, whispered in churchly corners, the chance of getting $20,000 of good Standard Oil money out of the venerable Mr. ROCKEFELLER is now close to the vanishing point. About the truth of the charges, of course, we know nothing, and we will not believe them under any except the sternest compulsion, but their likeness as they stand to those which are coming so fast from a remote part of the city is strangely discouraging. Can it be that in churches—even in one church—"business is business," and defensible only by those logicians who say that, as all business is more or less crooked, talk about the particular crooks in any particular business is "hysteria"? We don't want to admit this and we won't.

Safety in Food Preservation.

A letter from Dr. P. BRYNBERG PORTER, Secretary of the Medical Association of the Greater City of New York, informs us that what we scolded Dr. WILEY for not saying in his address on food preservatives is exactly what he did say in parts of the address which did not get into the newspaper reports. Such things will happen, even in the best regulated journalism, and of course we keenly regret having indulged in criticism that was undeserved, but the criticism, fortunately, was of the kindest sort, and for once in such a case we have the consolatory thought that we were right in substance as well as wrong in form. Dr. WILEY, it seems, not only recognized the necessity for using food preservatives, but he discriminated carefully between those that are fraudulent and distinctly injurious to health and those which are honest and nearly or quite harmless. Among the safe methods of preservation he mentioned and commended cold storage—for reasonable periods—and the use of substances of a condimentary nature, such as salt, vinegar, wood smoke, &c., which always reveal their presence by odor or taste. What he condemned were the non-condimentary preservatives like borax, and salicylic and benzoic acids. These agents, he declared, are entirely unnecessary and are objectionable both because they are harmful and because their use is deceptive. Their presence is unknown to the consumer, and he is not permitted to use his own judgment or that of those in whom he trusts in determining whether he shall risk their perils or not. Whether small quantities of the non-condimentary preservatives are unhealthy or not is still an open question in some cases, but the element of concealment is always reprehensible. Dr. WILEY's conclusion was that all needs could be met by preservatives of proved harmlessness, and that even the demand for bright-colored preparations could be supplied without resort to dangerous artificial dyes. That leaves the situation just about as we desired, and our contentions are confirmed, even if the criticisms did go a bit astray.

POLITICAL BLACKMAIL.

From The Philadelphia Public Ledger.

It is a familiar observation that the demands of blackmail increase as they are yielded to. A first payment, which may even appear reasonable, leads to increasing exactions, and probably to public scandal at the last. There is a striking illustration of this in the "campaign contributions" of the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York as developed in the present investigation.

In the Presidential campaign of 1896, when there was very general alarm over the free-silver agitation, the company was induced to contribute $15,000 to support the cause of sound money. This was very easily justified, under the financial conditions then existing. It established a practice for which there is not the same defense.

In 1900, when the crisis was past and the gold standard had been effectively established, though Mr. Bryan still maintained his misguided agitation, the appeal was renewed for contributions to promote the election of McKinley, and the assessment upon the Mutual Life was increased to $35,000. It could not be claimed that the company was twice as much concerned as before, but the contribution was made.

Naturally, it did not end there. By 1904, all question of the gold standard had disappeared, and nobody believed that "values" would be disturbed by the election of Judge Parker. Nevertheless, the Republican campaign managers came back as usual to the Mutual Life, and this time "struck" it for $40,000.

This instance epitomizes the whole system under which the great corporations are made to contribute to party funds. The first contribution was doubtless voluntary. The officers of the company sincerely believed that the interests intrusted to them would be jeopardized by Bryan's success, and that they were only protecting their trust in helping to elect his opponent. Having once admitted the possibility of using the company's funds for such purposes, there was no point at which to draw the line. Though the exigency was past, the relations they had established could not be broken, and they had to keep on giving. The more they gave, the more was demanded of them.

It has already been shown that other companies made contributions corresponding with those of the Mutual Life, regarding them in the light of a legitimate financial investment. If we assume, then, that these contributions are generally proportionate to the interests supposed to be involved, we are confronted by the startling thought that the employment of money in Presidential campaigns increased in eight years in the ratio of 15 to 40.

No one can suppose that the legitimate expenses of a campaign have so increased. There was some honest use for money in a needed "campaign of education" in 1896, but no such need could be alleged in 1904. For what, then, are these great sums raised? Principally for what is known as "the party organization," which is another name for the secret and corrupt influences which use the party name for their own emolument.

The Hughes investigation can touch this subject only within a limited field, but if it can get below the surface even at one point, it will achieve a more important public service than in the exposure of high salaries and other forms of insurance "graft."

PORTO RICO'S COMPLAINTS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Porto Rico is preparing to remonstrate bitterly in Congress this Winter against her lack of self-rule for purposes of Government. Frequent complaints from native sources have made us appear before some people who are not familiar with the island's affairs as chronic grumblers, but the truth remains standing that our patience is marvelous and our faith unfailing. The American people are so much taken up with their own problems that they will not stop to consider for a moment the merits or demerits of the "colonial questions" on the checkerboard of the Federal Congress. The Washington Government is the sole arbiter of our destiny, and we look to it for the actual relief from the present situation.

The so-called "Foraker law," in force on the island, is a travesty of all political and economic ethics. Under its clauses the islanders are graced with the hazy, ludicrous title of "citizens of Porto Rico," as if our country were an independent entity, with its own flag and international life. Imagine a House of Delegates composed of 35 native members who spend two months of each year discussing bills which can be vetoed by the Executive Council, a sort of upper house—seven Americans to five natives—authorized to put their stamp of refusal to all measures that should not be in consonance with the centralizing tendency of the law in question.

Fortunately, President Roosevelt played a good card, pending the action of Congress, with the timely appointment of Mr. Beekman Winthrop for the Governorship of Porto Rico. It was, indeed, a good stroke of diplomacy, the naming of the present incumbent. He has rendered less intolerable the actual wretchedness. As soon as he took charge of the island's chaotic Government a new era of solidarity and moral peace evolved from the rancor and restlessness created by the rash official acts of Mr. Hunt, his partisan predecessor. The popular disgust with the latter Governor reached such a degree of aversion that in one instance he was approached by a committee of Porto Rican citizens with the special request to quit the island for the island's good. Not so with the present Governor, who is loved and admired by all social classes of Porto Rico. The meteoric career of Mr. Winthrop deserves more than a passing notice, as it seems to emphasize the fact of the great opportunities open in this Republic to men of ability and strength of character.

RAILWAY RATE REGULATION.

Practical Means Needed to Secure an Existing Right.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Will you permit a criticism of your attitude on railway rats isgislation from a constant reader? In your discussion of this burning question you seem to make the assumption common to most opponents of the project of giving rate-making powers to a Federal board, that the idea of a right on the part of the public to regulate rates of railroad transportation is an innovation. As you must know, this is not the case. The obligation on all common carriers, chartered as such and endowed with the right of eminent domain in furtherance of their operations, to make just and reasonable rates for the transportation of freight and passengers is as old as the most ancient decisions of the English common law, at least, and is, theoretically, enforceable by legal process to-day.

In point of fact, however, so slow is our judicial machinery, especially when it grinds such hard grist as this, that it takes more time and money to get relief through the present channels than to try a sensational murder case in New York. Justice is entirely beyond the means of the average sufferer from unjust rates, and in most cases he simply has to close his doors and go into bankruptcy or at best to continue at his work, though deprived of his legitimate profits.

The question then is, not "Shall the public be granted the right to have its transportation rates arranged on a basis of justice and equity to it, as well as to the carrier?" but "Shall practical means be adopted for securing this existing and fundamental right?"

ROSARY HILL APPEALS.

The Home for Cancerous Poor in Need of Assistance.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Since I last reported the gifts which have been received by the Servants of Relief for the purpose of painting Rosary Hill Home, Hawthorne, N. Y., (the country home for cancerous poor of both sexes,) we have received a few donations amounting to $135. The total which we have raised from our first appeal till now is, very nearly, $500, to which we add $250, previously set aside, making $750. We expect very soon to begin painting the outside of Rosary Hill Home with this aid, but cannot hope to include interior painting until more money is donated.

Simultaneously with the welcome fact of this kind answer to our anxious appeal comes the fact also that some of our ceilings are beginning to fall, and expert testimony declares that the laths in one part of the building are put up in such a way that the ceilings are unsafe. Under these are twelve of the patients. We have concluded that metal ceilings must be put up in the rooms where serious accidents might happen. Who will take pity upon us? As it was only by merciful good fortune that the most helpless bedridden patient we have was not killed by the falling of a large area of plaster in her room, we have begun to have arrangements made for putting up metal ceilings in the unsafe half of the hospital. May the strong assistance which characterizes public mercy come to us now in our increased dilemma!

McCurdy on Profitable Insurance.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

You are probably overburdened with communications in regard to insurance matters, but in view of Mr. McCurdy's statement in regard to the philanthropic character of life insurance I inclose this following, signed by Richard A. McCurdy, which I have copied directly from the back of the envelope containing my policy. When I read it, it did not strike me as just the sort of language one would use to describe an institution established for eleemosynary purposes. This is it:

"You are now a policy holder in the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York. Your interests are from this moment identical with those of your company. It is a purely mutual company, (not a stock company.) You share in its prosperity and profit in proportion to your pecuniary interest in it. * * * If you contemplate increasing your insurance, it is to your interest to place it in your own company, as thereby you increase its business and profits and directly promote your own interests."

Filtering Our Water Supply.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Considering the condition, as admitted, of the water furnished to the residents of Greater New York, it seems strange that the individual householders and apartment houses have not followed the Western plan of filtering for their buildings, not relying upon the city to furnish water clear of bacteria. It is said that it will require about seven years to erect filtering plants of sufficient capacity to purify the water for this city. In that time many epidemics may occur, and at the trivial cost at which filtering plants may be purchased and installed in private houses and apartments it does seem that the citizens should protect themselves.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Apropos of the world penny post agitation, in the name of conscience and common sense why advocate that while our postal clerks, carriers, and other officials are so shamefully underpaid? The trusts and unions have raised the price of living until the non-trust and non-union man hasn't any sort of a show nowadays. Between the upper and nether millstones of trusts and unions, what is to become of the rest—the common people?

KING AND KAISER QUARREL.

Politics and Tale Bearers Arouse Edward and His Nephew.

From The London World.

The existence of strained relations between the King and the Kaiser is now discussed with the utmost frankness by the German press. No good purpose can therefore be served by ignoring the fact that the two monarchs have quarreled seriously. Though their quarrel is in a large measure of a political character, and is due to the acts of the German Emperor, a large share of the responsibility for it must be ascribed to those who have systematically devoted themselves to carrying tales from one Court to another. Hostile observations regarding Great Britain and the British Navy on the part of the German Emperor were reported to London, where they were dismissed with the phrase, "Let him play with his navy"—a phrase which was promptly transmitted to Berlin by eager courtiers, where it produced a prolonged fit of ill-temper. If the two monarchs were to meet, those who know them best are certain that the clouds would speedily be dispersed and that they would again become the best of friends.

BLAME FOR "BLOODY SUNDAY."

Russian Lawyers Find Military Authorities Guilty.

From The London Times.

We have received advance proofs of a pamphlet to be published to-day in Berlin giving the results of an inquiry by the Institute of Barristers of St. Petersburg into the terrible events of last January, when a throng of strikers, headed by Father Gopon, endeavored to march to the Winter Palace to present a petition to the Czar in person and were shot down in hundreds by the troops.

The investigation was made by a committee of seven barristers, and a report is being issued in a German pamphlet of seventy-nine compact pages. Much emphasis is laid upon the statement that the attack by the troops was not only unprovoked, but unexpected. The text of the petition to be presented to the Czar and the plan of the proposed march were submitted beforehand to the Minister of the Interior, but the police gave no intimation of any kind that the procession was illegal and would not be allowed to take place.

A warning issued by the authorities was explained officially to the workmen's representatives to be intended only for such as might be guilty of a breach of the peace by disorderly conduct. The workmen, it is contended, therefore had the right to regard their procession as authorized, and they organized it almost as if it were a religious ceremonial. All were unarmed, even pocket knives being left at home, and women and children took their part in the great event which was to bring them into the presence of the head of the nation. After singing hymns the mass of unarmed people moved forward, "with untroubled minds and with pure intentions." In the hope of laying their woes before their sovereign as children tell their sorrows to their father.

The story of what followed is narrated from the evidence of witnesses at considerable length, but its orderly survey of the whole affair with instance piled up on instance can scarcely add to the horror that was caused throughout the civilized world when the broad facts of the butchery of unarmed people were told in the public press eight months ago. The concluding portion of the report deals with the means to preserve the peace.

A statement is given of the law of Russia regulating the employment of troops to repress civil disorders. It is pointed out that the civil authorities may call upon the troops only when they have themselves exhausted all other means to preserve peace.

On the other hand, the troops may resort to their weapons only in case of extreme necessity and after thrice giving a signal of their intention by means of trumpet, horn, or drum. In these respects, as well as in others, the civil and military authorities are found by the committee to have failed in their duty, and an impressive indictment is formulated in detail against the guardians of the law for the acts by which they were themselves guilty of its violation.

RUFFIANLY FOOTBALL.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As a disgusted witness of yesterday's alleged football game between Columbia and Wesleyan, may I be permitted a few remarks? It is always and invariably the umpire's explicit duty to see that men who play football and behave like prize fighters are summarily put off the field and not allowed to further participate in the game. As these players are supposed to represent in football, if not in gentlemanly behavior, the several colleges whose colors they wear, it behooves the authorities of these colleges to see that they are not disgraced by such cads and that a player who is once ordered off the field for ruffianly behavior remains on the side lines for the remainder of the season.

There were several men playing in yesterday's game who should have been ordered off the field by the umpire in the first half, and it was this official's vacillating and timorous interpretation of the rules that was directly responsible for the subsequent disgraceful scene.

CHARLES HAMILTON MUSGROVE.

ENGLAND SHOULD LEARN FROM JAPAN--ROSEBERY

Ex-Premier Says His Country Is Indifferent to Efficiency.

BLAMES PARTY GOVERNMENT

Declares It Is the Curse of Great Britain, but Admits That It Is an Ineradicable Evil.

Special Correspondence THE NEW YORK TIMES

LONDON, Oct. 5.—Lord Rosebery has written a remarkable and statesmanlike essay for publication as a foreword to Alfred Stead's "Great Japan," which is about to be published here and in New York by John Lane.

Mr. Stead's work is based upon the proposition that Japan's greatness is due to the efficiency that characterizes her people and her Government. Lord Rosebery maintains that because of her national inefficiency Great Britain has already come to such a pass that her pre-eminence among the nations of the earth is open to question and her future is far from being secure. There never has been efficiency in this country, Lord Rosebery argues.

"We won our empire and our liberties," he says, "by genius and daring in an inefficient world. Now that one or more nations are keenly striving after efficiency it will not be easy to maintain our heritage, for the inefficient nation must sooner or later go to the wall. We have muddled through so successfully by character and courage that we are indifferent to any other secret of achievement.

"Three things may move us: Obvious decline, sudden catastrophe, or some stimulating example. The last, at least, is furnished by Japan."

Lord Rosebery urges upon his country the desirability of taking Japan for her example. The great Christian British people, he thinks, would find it vastly to their advantage if they would pattern after the pagans whose administration and achievements are the wonder of the century. It is true, he says, that the Britishers cannot begin on absolutely new lines; they cannot, like the American manufacturer, throw all their old machinery into the scrap heap and start suddenly afresh; they cannot, like Japan, throw away everything but patriotism and begin on a new career.

But they can do something if they will. They have all the raw materials and they have courage and brains and strength. But there is a leakage somewhere, an immense leakage. Where is it? It is in the subversion of good administration by party government.

"Politically speaking," says Lord Rosebery, "we begin and end with party. We are all striving to put ourselves or our leaders into offices or expel other people from them. This is not from want of patriotism; quite the reverse; the habit of centuries has made us believe this is patriotism—this and no other. Do we ever stop to reflect what is the outcome of it all; the net result of millions of words, words, words; of great debates and incessant divisions and spirited Autumn campaigns? In truth, exceeding little.

"The fact is that party is an evil, perhaps, even probably, a necessary evil, but still an evil. It is the curse of our country that so many, especially in high places, should worship it as a god. Its operation blights efficiency. It keeps out of employment a great mass of precious ability. It puts into place, not the fittest, but the most eligible from the party point of view—that is, very often, the worst. Efficiency implies the rule of the fittest; party means the rule of something else—not the unfittest, but of the few fit, the accidentally not unfit and the glaringly unfit."

Lord Rosebery admits that the party system is in Great Britain to stay. It is, he says, as ineradicable as the British climate, so that it is quite clear that when the British people shall begin to aim at efficiency they will be handicapped by a formidable incumbrance. They may learn how to get the better of this incumbrance through a study of Japan, where parties apparently represent a nation determined on efficiency.

"That," says Lord Rosebery, "is where we differ. We are not a nation bent upon efficiency. The possibility of a directing and vitalizing government that shall do and inspire great things we seem to exclude with a sort of despair. We know too well that our Ministers, however great the ardor and freshness with which they set to work, will soon be lost in the labyrinthine mazes of parliamentary discussion, and that whatever energy they can preserve when they emerge must be devoted to struggling for existence on provincial platforms.

"And yet there is work to do—pressing, vital work, which does not admit of delay; work which would fill strenuous years even if Parliament were suspended and not a speech were delivered."

Great Britain must learn of Japan, Lord Rosebery says in conclusion, must learn how to obtain efficiency in spite of the party system. And yet nobody after reading Lord Rosebery's essay would consider it among the possibilities that Great Britain will make a serious attempt to learn efficiency from Japan or from any other source until she shall come to a better sense of her present position and her prospects than she now possesses. To put it in Lord Rosebery's own words, in the ordinary course of events Great Britain will be one of the last to strive for national efficiency unless she shall be subjected to some external pressure.

IT'S NICE TO BE A FARMER.

Dire Results of a Maine Man's Only Vacation in Ten Years.

Special to The New York Times.

BANGOR, Me., Oct. 12.—Ezra B. Phillips of Otis, a farmer near Maple Pond, came home yesterday from the first vacation he ever had in his life. He and his family took two weeks off seeing the county fairs. Phillips has made up his mind to either quit farming or stay at home in the future, for his farm was a wreck when he got home.

Deer, moose, and raccoons had trampled down and ruined all of his late corn. A bear had broken down the fence. All of his cabbages were gnawed and spoiled. Muskrats had taken a fancy to the beets and scooped them all out. There wasn't a turnip or carrot left.

The rabbits had girdled the young fruit trees. Feathers here and there showed where the foxes had eaten a fine flock of young turkeys. The squirrels had got into the granary and had carried off all of his choice sweet corn seed. The woodchucks had feasted on the celery until there was not a marketable bunch left.

Bears or dogs had killed five sheep. The promising five-year-old colt left in the pasture had collided with a barbed wire fence and was practically ruined. Tramps had dug several bushels of potatoes and used a part of the front yard fence to build a fire to cook them, and one side of his newly painted barn was plastered with circus posters after he had stood guard all Summer and threatened to shoot the first bill poster who stepped on the premises.

The windmill had been struck by lightning, and a telephone pole had been planted in the middle of his driveway.

NOT SO GREEN AFTER ALL.

The Farmer Was a Detective and Got Two Old Green Goods Men.

A bewildered and weary-looking man nailed the register of the Astor House to the desk with his left elbow yesterday morning, and painfully scrawled upon it "G. W. Chenault, Mount Hope, Alabama."

He looked as though he had just arrived from Alabama. His ill-fitting "best clo'es" were crumpled as though he had slept doubled up in a car seat, he needed a shave, and apparently the only breakfast he had had was a chew of tobacco.

He arose from his cramped posture to meet the eye of the clerk, who said:

"I'm afraid you'll have to wait a little while for a room. We have none vacant just now."

"All right, Suh," said the farmer. "Ah'll set down a while. Ah've trayeled a long ways."

The stranger turned to face a battery of grins from a dozen men who had heard him speak. One young man who had eyed him sharply from the moment he entered the hotel stepped up as soon as he sank listlessly on a chair and inquired:

"Is this Mr. Chenault?"

"That's mah name, Suh," replied the lanky one.

The young man handed him a slip of paper on which was written:

Come with messenger. He will bring you to me. L. M. SHAW.

The Alabaman followed his conductor to 153 Park Row, where he was introduced to William Gardner, whose other name is William Goodman. The guide then exhibited $3,000. It was good money, made from real Government plates, he said. Chenault could have the whole lot for $500.

Just then Detective Sergeant McConville and Post Office Inspector Boyle walked in, with revolvers ready, and arrested Gardner and the other man, who said he was Charles Barry. Having done this, the detectives told a secret: "Chenault" was Detective Sergeant Duncan. The prisoners, who are old hands at the game, were taken to Police Headquarters. Duncan had learned that the men with the "good" $3,000 were in communication with the real Chenault, and Duncan had impersonated him.

PLAN FOR PRINCE'S SHIPS.

Battenberg's Vessels Will Anchor Below Forty-second Street.

The battleship squadron of the North Atlantic fleet, under command of Rear Admiral Evans, sailed for Hampton Roads yesterday morning. The battleships will remain in the roads until Oct. 31 and will then go to Annapolis, where on Nov. 1 they will participate in the official welcome to the British squadron of armored cruisers under Rear Admiral Prince Louis of Battenberg.

The British and American vessels will remain in the Severn until Nov. 8, when the battleships will sail for New York, to be followed the next day by the British squadron. The British vessels will be escorted by the armored cruiser squadron of the North Atlantic fleet, under command of Rear Admiral Brownson. Price Louis's ships will remain in New York until Nov. 17, and will then sail for Gibraltar.

The programme for the entertainment of the British officers and jackies has been completed. In New York dinners will be given by Mayor McClellan, Gen. Frederick D. Grant, the Pilgrims and St. George Societies, the Naval Academy Alumni, the Chamber of Commerce, and Admiral Evans. The British officers will give several return entertainments, including a ball on the flagship Drake.

It has been arranged at last for the British vessels to anchor south of Forty-second Street in the North River. The American vessels will anchor in regular line to the north of them. The southernmost anchorage will be that of the British cruiser Cumberland, which will be off Twenty-second Street. The American armored cruiser Maryland will be at the other end of the line, which will be off 129th Street.

WHAT THE S. P. C. A. HAS DONE.

A Big Increase in Its Work—Gordon Knox Bell a Vice President.

At a meeting of the Board of Managers of the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, held yesterday afternoon, Gordon Knox Bell, for several years a member of the board, was elected a Vice President of the society. Henry Bergh, a nephew of the founder of the society; John Henry Iselin, Assistant District Attorney, and Evert Jansen Wendell were elected members of the board.

A report of the society's operations for the last nine months, compared with the same period last year, showed an increase in arrests and prosecutions of 4 per cent.; an increase in the number of animals suspended from labor of 25 per cent.; an increase in the number of small animals destroyed of 35 per cent.; an increase in the number of horses removed in ambulances of 25 per cent.; an increase in the number of cases investigated of 63 per cent., and an increase in the number of horses examined of 44 per cent.

Thirty-six new members were enrolled.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. William L. Davison, assisted by the Rev. George Adams, D. D. Miss Lillian A. MacLean was maid of honor and William MacLean Montgomery of Hornellsville, N. Y., was best man. The bride was given away by her granduncle, Adrian Denyse. The Thomas and Denyse families were among the earliest settlers on Long Island.

CITY PLANS A $2,000,000 TUBERCULOSIS HOSPITAL

WILL HOUSE 800 PATIENTS

Drawings Already Approved by the Commissioner of Charities and Work Will Soon Begin.

As soon as plans can be prepared and the contracts let work will begin on the New York City Sanitarium for Consumptives, which is to be built on Staten Island on a site already the property of the city. The preliminary drawings by Raymond S. Almirall, an architect experienced in hospital construction, have been approved by James H. Tully, Commissioner of Charities. Commissioner Tully announced yesterday that bids would be advertised for at once.

The sanitarium will be in the centre of Staten Island, where the city owns 130 acres of land. Part of this land was acquired by the annexation of Richmond County. The rest was purchased. The sanitarium will accommodate 800 patients, and will cost about $2,000,000, exclusive of site. Last Spring $200,000 was appropriated for beginning the work, and Commissioner Tully hopes before this is expended to have quarters for 100 patients.

"There is nothing in common between the sanitarium to be built on Staten Island, and the proposed sanitarium for the treatment of incipient cases," said Commissioner Tully. "It is entirely separate from the undertaking of the Health Department. We will treat consumption in all stages, and, to my mind, no nobler work was ever undertaken by the city. There are thousands of men and women suffering from the disease who are unable to receive modern treatment, and to whom the idea of going to Blackwell's Island, where they could at least obtain pure air and sunshine, is repulsive.

"The Staten Island property overlooks the Narrows and the Lower Bay. It is the highest point on the Atlantic Coast between Portland and the Gulf of Mexico. It is true that the air is not dry, but the principal thing is to get pure air, and we will get plenty of it there. The site is within easy reach of the city. Facing due south, it will be protected on the north by an extended woodland. There is plenty of room for the institution to grow. The amount already appropriated will give us a good start, and further appropriations will doubtless be forthcoming when needed. I have talked over the plans with Mayor McClellan, and he has approved them."

Mayor McClellan instructed Commissioner Tully early last Summer to have the estimates and drawings for the sanitarium prepared, and the appointment of Architect Almirall followed. With Dr. John F. Fitzgerald, the General Medical Superintendent of the Department of Charities, he inspected the tuberculosis sanitariums of New York and Massachusetts, and his preliminary drawings incorporate the most advanced ideas.

The ward buildings are to be erected in the form of an arc, which is designed to furnish the maximum sun exposures. At the terminations of the arc will be grouped the service buildings, with a power house so situated as ultimately to serve the farm colony and dormitories of the Department of Charities. Midway in the line connecting the ends of the arc will be the administration building, between which and the ward buildings the kitchen and dining hall will stand.

The administration building will contain the offices, examining rooms, and laboratories, and will also house the staff and provide operating and accessory rooms for general hospital purposes. The Nurses' Home, which will stand to the west of the administration building, will provide bedrooms, sitting and lecture rooms, library, kitchen, and dining rooms, with a suitable class kitchen and experiment room for the housing and training of nurses. Immediately to the south of the Nurses' Home will be the amusement hall.

The power house and laundry buildings, with the omnibus and ambulance house, will be built to the east of the administration building. From east to west, arranged on the arc and projecting from it to the south, will be the ward and single room pavilions, with the chapel for religious services.

Each of the three pavilions planned will accommodate about 100 patients. At the southern extremity of each ward will be a sun parlor, and at the sides of each ward will be verandas, with sufficient space for every bed and ample distance between and to the backs of them. The windows will extend from ceiling to floor, so that the beds can be rolled out on the verandas.

The entire roof of each ward building is to be treated as a roof garden, with the northern end inclosed in glass, shaded with khaki awnings, for use as a sun parlor. Two of the ward buildings are to be given up to single rooms for the care of the more advanced cases.

The buildings will be reinforced concrete throughout, with red tile roofs, and the iron of the verandas will be painted green.

Engagement Announced.

The engagement is announced of Miss Irma de Sola Mendez and Samuel C. Steinhardt. They will receive on the first two Sundays in November at the home of Miss Mendez's parents, the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. F. de Sola Mendez of the West End Synagogue.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The Eastern disturbance is central to-night over Eastern Maine and cool and generally clear weather prevails east of the Mississippi River. Killing or heavy frosts occurred Thursday morning over the north and central portions of the country from the Mississippi Valley eastward, and light frosts in south, except near the coasts. Temperatures, however, are much higher over the greater portion of the West, ranging from 4 to 16 degrees above the seasonable average. Temperatures will rise slowly Friday over the east half of the country, the rise continuing Saturday in the Atlantic States.

Winds along the New England Coast will be fresh west to south, on the Middle Atlantic Coast light to fresh west to south, on the South Atlantic Coast light to fresh north to east, on the East Gulf Coast light northeast to southeast, on the West Gulf Coast light to fresh southeast to south, on the lower lakes fresh southwest to south, on the upper lakes fresh to brisk south.

Steamers departing on Friday for European ports will have fresh west to southwest winds, with fair, cool weather to the Grand Banks.

FORECAST FOR TO-DAY AND SATURDAY.

Eastern New York—Fair Friday and Saturday, with slowly rising temperatures; light to fresh south winds.

New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania—Fair Friday and Saturday, with slowly rising temperatures; light to fresh south winds.

New England—Partly cloudy Friday; colder in northeast portion. Saturday, fair, warmer; fresh west to south winds.

3 A. M.	57	46	4 P. M.	48	50
6 A. M.	52	44	6 P. M.	46	48
9 A. M.	48	47	9 P. M.	43	46
12 M.	49	50	12 P. M.	41	45

The thermometer of the Weather Bureau is 285 feet above the street level.

The average temperature yesterday was 48; corresponding date 1904, 48; corresponding date for the last twenty-five years, 55.

The thermometer registered 45 degrees at 8 A. M. and 48 degrees at 8 P. M. yesterday, the maximum temperature being 53 degrees at 2 P. M. and the minimum 44 degrees at 6 A. M. The humidity was 86 per cent. at 8 A. M. and 66 per cent. at 8 P. M.

TO FOIL TICKET SPECULATORS.

Theatrical Managers' Association Will Ask Aldermen to Aid.

At the meeting of the Theatrical Managers' Association yesterday a committee was appointed to wait upon the Board of Aldermen and see if some step could not be taken to stop speculators from selling seats on the sidewalks.

The managers have had a good deal of trouble with the speculators recently, and one or two of them have excluded from their theatres persons who bought tickets on the sidewalks.

Regarding the speculator question F. F. Proctor yesterday made the following statement in a circular letter:

"As the speculators are licensed by the city we are powerless in our efforts to drive them away from the front of the house. We have no way of telling whether the purchaser of the ticket is a speculator or a bona-fide theatregoer. They do not purchase the tickets in blocks, but send men, women, and children, while they also use the telephone to reserve the seats. The problem is up to the theatre-going public to solve."

HAD TO FIT THE DRESSES.

Six Chorus Girls Couldn't, So They Were Obliged to Quit.

The chorus girls engaged for the comic opera "Veronique," now rehearsing at the Broadway Theatre, must fit the dresses sent from London or lose their jobs. Yesterday afternoon, when the dresses were tried on, six of the girls were either too small or too tall, so they will not appear in the opera. The London girls were apparently all of a medium size.

The managers did what they could to persuade the wardrobe mistress to alter the dresses for the girls, but she said that it was impossible. One little girl was very brokenhearted over the loss of her job. She had to wear three costumes in the opera. Two fitted her, but the third would not.

"IN THE BISHOP'S CARRIAGE."

Pollock Dramatization of the Novel Performed at Binghamton.

Special to The New York Times.

BINGHAMTON, Oct. 12.—"In the Bishop's Carriage," a new play by Channing Pollock, founded on Miriam Michelson's novel, was seen for the first time at the Stone Opera House to-night. There were curtain calls after each act. The play differs from the book in many respects.

Mabel Taliaferro as Nance, Arthur Byron, E. J. Radcliffe, Mary Hampton, and Grant Stewart are in the cast.

Olga Nethersole Here Again.

Olga Nethersole arrived on the Deutschland yesterday morning and in the afternoon began rehearsals of "The Labyrinth," an adaptation of a French play, at the Knickerbocker Theatre. Miss Nethersole is a little slimmer than when she was last here. She spoke enthusiastically of her new play. She will not play in "Sapho" this year.

Play Producers Bankrupt.

The Metropolitan Play Producing Company went bankrupt yesterday after a career of a few months. Last February the company was organized with a capital of $500 to produce melodramas on the road. "The Queen of Chinatown" and "A Gambler's Crime" seemed to go all right, but "The Streets of New York" overstrained the company's capital.

Palmer Benefit Dec. 8.

At a meeting of the Theatrical Managers' Association held yesterday at the Hotel Astor, it was decided to hold the benefit for the widow and family of the late A. M. Palmer, the veteran manager, on Dec. 8, at the Broadway Theatre. Every effort will be made to make the benefit a great success. Daniel Frohman was elected to take charge of the arrangements.

Plans for Mr. Nixon's Funeral.

WESTFIELD, N. Y., Oct. 12.—Arrangements for the funeral of Speaker Nixon are progressing. The Presbyterian Church, where the service will be held, will accommodate 1,000 persons. It is expected that nearly the entire Legislature will attend. All the business houses and schools here will be closed from 1 o'clock until 6 to-morrow afternoon. The county, town, and village officials will attend the funeral. Enormous quantities of flowers have been received by Mr. Nixon's family.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

The Duchess of Marlborough, Col. and Mrs. William Jay, O. H. P. Belmont, and Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Thomas occupied a box last evening at the Hippodrome.

In his engagement at Chicago Richard Mansfield will deliver a lecture on the drama before the students of Chicago University.

There is a movement in theatrical circles for a benefit performance to be given for Mrs. McKee Rankin, who at present is an invalid.

INTER-CHURCH MEETING STILL BARS UNITARIANS

Executive Committee Will Not Reconsider Its Action.

DR. SANFORD EXPLAINS SNUB

Says in a Convention of Purely Evangelistic Bodies No Other Course Was Possible.

The Executive Committee of the Inter-Church Conference on Federation held another meeting in the Bible House yesterday. It was expected that the question of the exclusion of the Unitarian body from the list of invitations to the conference, to be held in Carnegie Hall next month would have been discussed.

The meeting, according to Dr. E. B. Sanford, the Secretary, was quiet and little reference was made to the matter in controversy. The Rev. M. E. Dwight, Chairman of the Committee on Meetings, said after the conference that the Unitarian question would not admit of reconsideration.

"If this were a humanitarian question—relating to the procuring of uniform divorce laws, for instance, or the suppression of the sale of liquor—why, the Unitarians would be made welcome, but it is to be a federation of purely evangelistic bodies, so that the Unitarians could hardly expect to be associated with us."

The letter written some time ago by Dr. Samuel A. Eliot asking if it was true that the Unitarian delegates would be unwelcome at the conference and the reply by Dr. E. B. Sanford were made public yesterday. Dr. Elliot's letter reads in part:

It is impossible for me to believe that an Inter-Church Conference on Federation will deliberately exclude the representatives of the churches that stand peculiarly for the unsectarian principle in American religious life and which have been foremost in all efforts for Christian unity. The gentlemen who have already been appointed upon the Unitarian delegation are the Hon. John D. Long, the Rev. Edward Everett Hale, and myself, and to this delegation we have been proposing to add men like the Hon. Carroll D. Wright, President of our National Conference; Mr. Alfred T. White of Brooklyn, the Rev. James H. Ecob of Philadelphia, and the Rev. William Channing Gannett of Rochester. Am I not right in thinking that the new federation would be seriously handicapped and will fail to command public confidence if it has to be said that these representative men are denied fellowship and power to serve the cause in which we are all enlisted?

Dr. Sanford replied that the action was taken after very serious consideration, and he was sure that the committee would decline to reopen the discussion.

Commenting on the action of the committee, Dr. Sanford said yesterday:

"It is a matter of distress to us that action had been taken by the Unitarian body before an invitation had been received. We have every respect for the body, and especially for those who were named as delegates, but Christ is the head of our Church, and there will be nobody in the conference likely to raise dogmatic questions."

Much indignation is expressed in Unitarian circles. The Rev. Dr. M. J. Minot Savage will preach a sermon on the subject of the committee's action.

PRINCE TROUBETSKOY DEAD.

Russian Liberal Leader Stricken While Attending Conference.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 12.—Prince Sergius Troubetskoy was stricken with apoplexy to-night while attending a conference between M. Glasoff, the Minister of Education, and university rectors.

He died in two hours.

Prince Troubetskoy, a member of one of the most famous families of Russia, was, both on account of his high position and his own ability, regarded as the leader of the Russian constitutional reformers. He was never identified with the Revolutionary Party, but did not hesitate when he thought it was necessary to lay his views before the Emperor and the Grand Dukes.

The Prince was a Marshal of the nobility. He presided over the Zemstvo Congress at Moscow last Summer, and headed the delegation which presented the petition of the Congress to Emperor Nicholas.

On Sept. 15 he was elected Rector of the University of Moscow by a large majority, being the first elected head of a Russian university since 1880, when the Government assumed the right of nomination. The election of the Prince removed him from the list of candidates for the National Assembly, in which it was hoped he would be one of the prominent leaders and perhaps its President.

The Prince was 43 years old and was formerly Professor of Philosophy at Moscow University.

DEATH LIST OF A DAY.

Ex-Chief Justice Edward M. Paxson.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 12.—Edward M. Paxson, ex-Chief Justice of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court, died to-day at his home in Bycot, Penn. He was 81 years old. Judge Paxson was born in Buckingham, Bucks County, and educated in the Quaker schools. At the age of 18 he established The Newtown Journal at Newtown, Penn., and later The Daily News of this city. He was admitted to the bar in 1850, and elected to the Supreme Court in 1874. Judge Paxson in 1893 was appointed one of the receivers of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company, at which time he resigned as Chief Justice. He founded the Home for Aged and Infirm Members of the Society of Friends at Newtown.

Gen. William Thomas Clark.

Gen. William Thomas Clark, who was the last surviving Adjutant and Chief of Staff of Gen. Grant's Army of the Tennessee, died of cancer of the throat yesterday in St. Luke's Hospital. He had been suffering for many years. Gen. Clark was 74 years old. When the civil war began he enlisted as a private and rose to the rank of Brevet Major General. He left the army in 1866 and engaged in business at Galveston, Texas. Three years later he was elected to Congress and served until 1873.

According to Charles Lamb it was once necessary to burn your house down in order to have roast pork. Advertising has become more exact and more scientific. Less and less money is wasted in large, meaningless lists. The advertiser insists that every publication upon the list he uses shall represent something tangible. A large blanket appropriation placed in every possible publication will not do as much good as half that amount spent only in real magazines with a real advertising value, such as McCLURE'S. It is no more necessary to burn money in order to get advertising than it is to burn your house down in order to get roast pork.

JOSEPHINE S. LOWELL DEAD.

She Labored for Many Years in Cause of Charity and Reform.

Mrs. Josephine Shaw Lowell, who for the past forty years has been a prominent leader in the cause of charity and reform, died yesterday afternoon at her home, 43 East Sixty-fourth Street. Her health had been failing for some time. She was sixty-two years old.

Mrs. Lowell was born at West Roxbury, Mass., in 1843. She came of one of the oldest Boston families, her grandfather having been a Major in the Revolution. Her father was Gen. Francis G. Shaw and her brother, Col. Robert G. Shaw, whose death at the head of his colored regiment has been portrayed by St. Gaudens in the statue on Boston Common.

After an early education in Boston schools, Josephine Shaw traveled in Europe with her mother, whose ill-health led them on their return to settle on Staten Island. In 1863 she was married to Col., later Gen., Charles Russell Lowell. She refused to leave her husband though he was in active command, and she lived in camp with him until his death at the battle of Cedar Creek the following year.

The rest of her life she devoted entirely to charity and philanthropic work. She became a leader in every reform project that she thought presented a real chance for success. She was always a worker for results, and no ephemeral or unpractical cause could enlist her sympathy.

In 1876 she was appointed by Gov. Tilden to the New York State Board of Charities, a place she held for thirteen years. She was for a long time the only woman on the board. Two organizations that owe their existence almost entirely to her efforts are the Charity Organization Society and the State Charities Aid Association.

Mrs. Lowell's work in improving the conditions for women in this city is well known. She brought about the system of matrons in police stations, and she was a prime mover in obtaining the separation of the sexes in prisons. Seats behind counters for shop girls were also advocated by her. Although a believer in woman suffrage, she did not devote herself to that cause as she did to objects which seemed to her to more imperatively demand her support.

Mrs. Lowell lived very simply and quietly in private life and never entertained generally. Her social position, her charm of manner, and her quiet and unassuming methods of work combined to make Mrs. Lowell a very striking personality.

She had three sisters, Mrs. George William Curtis, Mrs. Francis C. Barlow, and Mrs. Robert Minturn. She leaves a daughter, Miss Carlotta Russell Lowell.

The funeral service, which is to be private, will be held at the house to-day by the Rev. Dr. Huntington of Grace Church. The body will be sent to Mount Auburn Cemetery, at Cambridge, Mass., to be interred with that of her husband.

HARPER'S BOOK NEWS.

The Gambler

From the "Cleveland Leader."

Glory be, she has done it again!

Who?

Katherine Cecil Thurston, author of that fascinating story, "The Masquerader."

In Heaven's name, what has she done?

She has written THE novel of the year again.

What is it called?

"The Gambler."

And why do you grow thus hysterical over it?

Because of its pull on the sympathies. When a woman in a book comes out of its pages and grips you like one in real life; when you get all a-tremble for fear that she may do this thing and groan and moan because she does do that; when, in a word, she seems so real that your interest is personal and you worry over her, then there is every reason to exult.—Cleveland Leader.

The Passport

A splendid romance of modern Italy by Richard Bagot, a writer to whom the public confidently looks always for fiction of the best kind. The London Academy says of this new novel:

"Once more two young people, head over heels in love, are resolved to marry in spite of insuperable difficulties, and once more we hang upon the event as if it had never happened before. Indeed, the reader, who is carried away by the mere momentum of the tale, might do worse than retrace his steps at leisure. For this is a book that will certainly bear reading twice."

It is a wonderful picture of modern Rome, with a touch of old-world beauty in the Italian hill scenes. The love tale is of the good old-fashioned and thoroughly satisfying sort.

AUTOMOBILES GUARDED FOR VANDERBILT RACE

FEW PRACTICE ROUNDS MADE

Heath's Machine Breaks Down on Jericho Turnpike—Italian Notables Arrive at Garden City.

The note of preparation for the Vanderbilt Cup race was vibrant yesterday from one end to the other of the twenty-eight mile circuit on Long Island. Everywhere there was excitement, everywhere eagerness, and rare indeed was the man who was not well primed with opinions regarding the speed capabilities of the nineteen powerful racing cars that will start at daylight to-morrow morning in a mad, wild dash of 283 miles for the coveted trophy. Lancia and Nazzaro, with their trim, compact Italian Fiat cars; Hemery and Wagner of the French team, with their big Darracqs; Szisz, another Frenchman, whose consistent work with his Renault has caused many of his rivals to tremble; Jenatzy, the red-haired, quaint-looking Belgian, who is the pride of the German chauffeurs, all rank high among the favorites, and the patient listener may be regaled with 101 good reasons why each one of these men should win.

Lytle put his six-cylinder Pope-Toledo together in the morning and took it to the weighing station to test it in the afternoon. Those who saw it for the few minutes it was visible discovered that Lytle has practically a new car from the one he used in the elimination trials. With the exception of the motors, the machine is virtually new, and Lytle had nothing but smiles when his friends joked with him about his chances.

In the morning, however, there was a great stir in the Pope-Toledo camp when, in putting the car together the startling discovery was made that a ball of cotton waste had been packed in the main pipe connecting the gasoline tank with the engine. It was almost inconceivable that the packers in the factory at Toledo could have placed this waste there. During the night the car had been locked in a shed at Garden City, packed up in canvas, just as it had arrived from the factory. How any one could have inserted the waste was a mystery, and the subject formed a lively topic of conversation for the remainder of the day.

All of the racing cars are watched with the minutest care. No one is allowed to get within several feet of them, and when the garage doors are open a man stands on guard, while a stout rope is stretched across the entrance. A crowd of curious visitors congregated about the doors of the garage at Krug's Hotel, where Duray with his De Dietrich and Szisz with his Renault have quarters. Both cars were thoroughly overhauled, and they will not be taken out again until the day of the race. Sharp-visaged Frenchmen stood guard while the work was going on, and their answers to the fire of questions were in sharp monosyllables.

George Heath furnished the scare of the day, and in the franzied mental condition that seems to pervade every one near the course it was at first reported that his gasoline tank had blown up and that he and his machine had narrowly escaped annihilation. There was a little leakage of gasoline from the tank as Heath was running slowly down the Jericho Turnpike, and his speed rod became bent so that it was impossible to change the different speeds of the car. Rather than take any chances of seriously injuring the car, Heath stopped and telephoned for assistance. Szisz went to the rescue, and towed the Panhard racer to its garage at Mineola. In the afternoon Heath again went over the course in a touring car. He is the present holder of the cup, and, although the critics have not placed him among the favorites this season, he ranks among the strong possibilities.

The practicing is virtually over. Only four of the racing cars made the rounds yesterday morning. Cedrino, with his Fiat; Jenatzy, with his Mercedes; Heath, with his Panhard, and Szisz, who never takes a morning off, were the only drivers who ventured over the slippery course. The hard rain of the previous night, combined with the 10,000 gallons of crude petroleum that has been sprinkled over the road during the week, made the surface thick with a greasy, muddy paste that required leather coverings, known as anti-skidding devices, attached to the tires to render traveling at an average speed tolerably safe. No one tried to make fast time, and both Heath and Szisz took out their second racing cars.

A delegation of Italians arrived at the Garden City Hotel to remain over the race. Among them were Guilio di Gropello Tarino, who represents the Automobile Club of Italy; Lodovico Scarfiotti, President of the Fiat automobile factory, whose cars are the only ones on the Italian team, and Dr. Aldo Weilschott of the Automobile Club of Turin. Louis Chevrolet arrived on the course during the day with Major Millar's car, which has been put in readiness for the race to take the place of the Fiat racer which was damaged last week by running into a telegraph pole. It was necessary to take off 165 pounds to get it down to proper weight.

All of the drivers met the members of the Vanderbilt Cup Commission last night at the Garden City Hotel, and listened to a talk by Chairman Robert Lee Morrell regarding the rules of the race.

William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., was present at the meeting and expressed great satisfaction at the arrangements for the big contest. It was positively announced that John B. Warden's 120 horse power Mercedes would start. Mr. Warden is a member of the German team, but while practicing with his car Tuesday morning two of his cylinders were cracked. It was impossible to repair them, but Robert Graves, whose Mercedes car will be driven by Janatzy, offered to lend Mr. Warden a complete set of cylinders last night, and as they were made in Germany, and will therefore conform to the rules, the offer was accepted. The new cylinders will be installed to-day. There will therefore be nineteen starters, the only absentee being Clarence Gray Dinsmore's Mercedes, which was not completed in time for the race.

$8,000 FOR TROTTING MARE.

David Shaw Buys Madge Wildfire, Whose Dam Was Purchased for $145.

Special to The New York Times.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 12.—Smyser Brothers of Linden, Ky., sold to-day to David Shaw of Pittsburg, for $8,000, the four-year-old green trotting mare Madge Wildfire, by Berton, dam Linlithgow, by Clay. She is the only foal of her dam, which cost $145 at auction and which is now dead. Madge Wildfire was sold after a mile of 2:08, and Shaw agreed to make the price $12,000 if she went a mile in 2:07 or better during the meeting here. She has been handled this season by George Saunders and is an M. and M. candidate for next year. Madge Wildfire is the third get of her sire, the other two being geldings, and the sire has been gelded since.

GOLF HONORS FOR BOSTON.

Miss Bishop Only New Yorker Left in Women's Championship.

Boston carried off the honors yesterday in the third match-play round of the woman's National championship golf tournament, held on the links of the Morris County Golf Club, near Morristown, N. J. Of the four survivors who will meet to-day in the semi-final match, three hail from clubs in the Boston territory. New York has one representative, but she is the champion, Miss Georgianna Bishop, and so steady was her long game and so accurate her putting, that the metropolitan women have high hopes that Miss Bishop will prove equal to the occasion this season and retain the trophy in the local district.

Miss Bishop beat Miss Harriet Curtis of the Essex County Club, Mass., by practically the same score, 5 up and 4 to play. The first hole was halved in a poor five. A long put gave Miss Bishop the second in four, but Miss Curtis took the third. That was the only hole the Boston girl won. On the ninth green the champion led by three and she brought the game to an end on the fourteenth green. The cards were:

Miss Bishop—Out	5	4	5	5	6	7	6	6	5—49
Miss H. Curtis—Out	5	5	4	6	7	7	6	6	6—52
Miss Bishop—In	4	6	5	6	5					—26—75
Miss H. Curtis—In	5	6	5	6	6					—28—80

The game between Mrs. Caleb F. Fox, the only Philadelphian to reach the third round, and Miss Pauline Mackay, one of the best players in the Boston contingent, was well fought. Honors were even on the ninth green, but Miss Mackay, by superior putting, won on the seventeenth green by 3 up and 1 to play.

Miss Margaret Curtis, who has few equals in the long game, met a powerful opponent in the ex-champion, Mrs. Charles T. Stout. The latter played erratic golf on the first nine holes, being three down at the turn. She then improved, beating Miss Curtis in approaching at several of the long holes. She played the sixteenth badly, making a poor drive and a short second shot, which left Miss Curtis dormie two, and the latter halved the next hole in four, taking the match. The cards:

Miss M. Curtis, out	4	5	5	6	6	5	5	4	6—46
Mrs. Stout, out	5	4	5	5	6	6	6	5	7—49
Miss M. Curtis, in	4	6	5	6	7	7	5	4—44		—90
Mrs. Stout, in	3	5	5	6	6	8	6	4—43		—92

The summary of the match play rounds:

Championship, Third Round.—Miss Grace Keyes, Concord, beat Miss Marion Olivar, Chevy Chase, 4 up and 3 to play; Miss Margaret Curtis, Essex County, Mass., beat Mrs. Charles T. Stout, Apawamis, 2 up and 1 to play; Miss Georgianna Bishop, Brooklawn, beat Miss Harriet S. Curtis, Essex County, Mass., 5 up and 4 to play; Miss Pauline Mackay, Oakley, beat Mrs. Caleb F. Fox, Huntington Valley, 3 up and 1 to play.

AGE LIMIT GOLF MATCH.

Ex-Judge Horace Russell Leads Notable Field at Apawamis.

A golf tournament conducted under novel and interesting conditions was played on the links of the Apawamis Golf Club at Rye yesterday. The contestants were limited to men who would admit an age of 55 years or over. Notwithstanding this apparent handicap there was no lack of entries. They came from New Jersey, Long Island, and other neighboring resorts. The game was a 36-hole handicap, and prizes were offered for both gross and net scores.

Ex-Judge Horace Russell led the field of over thirty starters, winning the first net score prize with a score of 177 from 20 handicap. Ex-Attorney General John W. Griggs of New Jersey was a close second, finishing but one stroke behind, although his gross score was a point better than Judge Russell's.

James B. Foot, one of the veterans of the home club, came third, but he was the only player rated at scratch, and turned in the low score of 179, which won the gross score prize handily. The second gross score prize went to R. H. Robertson, ex-President of the United States Golf Association.

John B. McDonald, the man who built the Subway, earned a special prize for the best net score of the afternoon, his figures being 94, 11—83. George P. Sheldon was well up among the leaders, but J. Rogers Maxwell showed his golfing friends that he knew more about yachts than golf, as his place was close to the bottom of the list. E. C. Converse, S. Ward Doubleday, Judge F. M. Scott, and L. J. Buzby were among the old timers who enjoyed the sport.

The players who completed the double round were:

	Gross.	Hdcp.	Net.
Horace Russell	197	20	177
John W. Griggs	196	18	178
James B. Foot	179	0	179
John B. McDonald	202	22	180
R. H. Robertson	189	8	181
George P. Sheldon	200	18	182

J. B. Hall	216	32	184
Goodwin Stoddard	221	36	185
Henry Stoddard	204	18	186
Alfred Craven	206	20	186

Other scores were: H. W. Brown, 195, 8—187; James McCutcheon, 215, 28—187; C. E. Gedney, 202, 14—188; S. Ward Doubleday, 200, 12—188; E. C. Converse, 209, 20—189; Robert Goodbody, 211, 20—191; William Runkle, 211, 18—193; William Jarvie, 213, 20—193; Judge F. M. Scott, 222, 26—196; L. J. Buzby, 237, 36—201; James Rogers Maxwell, 237, 36—201; S. W. Brown, 244, 36—208; T. T. Slevin, 253, 36—217.

OLD FOOTBALL HURTS FATAL.

William Seymour, Only Son, Dies in Convulsions After a Year.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn Oct. 12.—William Seymour, 18 years old, only son of Frank Seymour, a real estate agent in New York, died at his home in Cos Cob tonight as the indirect result of year-old injuries in playing football. The boy was afraid to tell his parents of his injuries at the time they occurred, and as a result of neglect complications set in, finally bringing on spinal meningitis.

The boy gained favor last year by catching a man named Diamond, who attacked an aged neighbor, Miss Lane, in the night and tried to escape. His nose was injured in football about a year ago and an abscess formed back of his eye.

This Summer, while conducting a boat livery at Silver Lake, Lake George, Seymour cut the cords of the same eye with a steel whistle while swinging it on a string. He went to a New York hospital and was supposed to be all right until Monday night. He went out to help celebrate the election of a town officer and on going home was taken with convulsions.

Crowd Sees Suicide on Elevated.

A man leaped from the platform on the downtown side of the elevated station at Third Avenue and Ninth Street yesterday afternoon and was ground to death beneath the wheels of a south-bound local train. Many persons saw the suicide and several women fainted. A card in the man's pocket indicated that he was John Flynn, living on Cambreling Avenue, the Bronx, and that he was a member of the Cloakmakers' Union. The motorman was arrested, although he had tried to stop his train.

COLUMBIA'S ELEVEN SUFFERS FRESH LOSS

Muir Is Injured and Morningside Collegians Are Downcast.

COACHES FAVOR OPEN PLAY

Tendency to Meet President Roosevelt's Ideas by Introducing New Methods—Practice of Big Teams.

Hard luck continues to follow the Columbia football team. In practice yesterday at American League Park, Muir, the crack end, injured his shoulder, and it is likely he will be out of the game for some time. Coming on the heels of the disqualifications by the Faculty, it made those interested in the team feel decidedly blue. Muir's injury was received in scrimmage practice, while he was making a tackle. He fell heavily on his shoulder, and examination showed it to be badly strained.

The cases of the ineligible men, especially Starbuck and Carter, were the chief topics about the campus yesterday. It was understood that entrance conditions were the only obstacles to the eligibility of the men. In all of the other work the two players are said to be up to the mark. The football management does not seem to realize or know that Thorpe, Carter, and Starbuck are ineligible, as is evident by the authorized announcement of Manager Curtis in yesterday's issue of The Columbia Spectator, the mouthpiece of the undergraduates. It intimates that the football management are at odds with Dean Sever, and have not taken his action as final. The statement is as follows:

> Manager Curtis of the 1905 'Varsity football team authorizes the statement that while the New York papers have some grounds for their assertions concerning the ineligibility of certain members of the 1905 team, there has as yet been no official confirmation of these assertions by the Athletic Council.

The Faculty has issued its decree, however, that the men are ineligible.

George W. Woodruff, the well-known football authority, who is head coach for the Carlisle Indian football team this year, and who is also known to have new formations up his sleeve for the redskins to use at and after the University of Pennsylvania game, said last night, apropos of President Roosevelt's football suggestions:

"The only reason which led me to coach again this Fall was the thought that with the use of the Carlisle Indians, who have always had the credit of playing clean football, I could bring into practical use a new style of open play which would make the game more brilliant and interesting to the spectators and at the same time lessen the chance of injury to the players. The new formations come strictly within the present rules of the game, and I feel hopeful of bringing about the objects desired by the President.

"The question of making football less dangerous is not a new subject with me. From the very beginning of my coaching I paid especial attention to style of play and methods of handling the body which would lessen the danger to my players, and I have strenuously coached against rough tactics."

Yale's signal line-up yesterday was a first attempt to get together the leading 'Varsity players, Jones being promoted to left end, where he plays as fast a game as his brother does at quarter back. The shake-down also saw Forbes and Bigelow installed at tackle, Erwin and Tripp at guard, Flanders at centre, and Shevlin at right end. This is now Yale's choice for rush line, and while it is lighter by an average of fifteen pounds than last year's heavy set of forwards, it is much faster and more energetic. The work again showed Flanders, Erwin, and Tripp, the centre trio, playing faster ball than any centre trio Yale has had in recent years. Coaches who come back to be surprised at Yale's fleet and quick linesmen become "bullish" on the Yale outlook immediately on watching the play of these three men.

The vigorous and machine-like playing of Princeton yesterday proved quite a contrast to the poor team work exhibited in the game with Lehigh. Nearly all of the regulars were laid off for a rest, but the first team successfully plowed through the scrub line and made consistent gains on the heavy plays. Tooker and O'Brien were put in at ends, and showed up in a manner that promises to give them one of the first calls for the wing positions in the Yale game. Tooker in particular was noticeable in his strong defensive playing, and was always ready for the tackle after a punt. Carothers received an injury to his knee in the Lehigh game, and in consequence his place was filled by Waller. He is the second centre which Princeton has put on the injured list, Dutcher being still disabled. Dillon, the guard, is out of the game at present with a bad shoulder, while it is reported that Moscrip, the freshman full back, has water on the knee.

The West Point team had a sharp practice game yesterday, lasting about thirty minutes. The team did not show much progress, although the scrubs did not make so much ground on it as heretofore. Erwin was able to get into the scrimmage, but the other cripples are still in the hospital. Weeks has a bad ankle, Mettler a broken jawbone, and Wilhelm a bad ankle. Substitutes Lewis and Sultan are still out of the game. The coaches find it a hard matter to get enough sound men to have a scrimmage.

Absolutely secret practice was held on Percy Field yesterday afternoon by the Cornell eleven. Most of the work consisted in working out new formations. There was no scrimmaging. Cook was absent with a second injury to his knee, and Thompson went to the infirmary suffering with boils due to the rigors of training. It is rumored that Birmingham, who was the star freshman half back the first part of last year, may have the ban removed which was put upon him then for poor scholarship, and will therefore be available for the rest of the games this Fall. Birmingham has been on the field in togs several times this week. He would be a big addition to the back field. "Sandy" Hunt, Captain of the 1903 eleven, has returned to aid in the coaching.

The Columbia freshmen forfeited their first game of the season to De La Salle yesterday afternoon at American League Park. The Blue and White youngsters objected to having "Tom" Thorp remain in the game as referee, it being claimed that he was coaching the De La Salle players. After Columbia had delayed two minutes after being ordered to play the game became forfeited to De La Salle. Kimball, the quarter on the Columbia eleven, played a star game, making use of the quarterback run for long gains. Thorp scored one touchdown for De La Salle. The line-up:

De La Salle.	Position.	Columbia, 1909.
McGuire	Left tackle	Davison
McCann	Centre	Smithers
O'Hare	Right guard	Grant
Gilmore	Right tackle	Kingeland
Burns	Right end	Arkush
Shanley	Quarter back	Kimball
Hodgen	Left half back	Taylor
Boffany	Right half back	Hall
Thorp	Full back	Gascoyne

Referee—T. Thorp. Umpire—Mr. Reiley, New York University. Linesmen—Moore, Columbia; Lage, De La Salle. Time—Twenty-minute halves.

The University of Pennsylvania football situation, which has been going from worse to worse, has now reached a stage where the coaches are puzzled to know which way to turn. Insatiable hard luck has pursued the candidates almost from the day they started preliminary practice. The latest misfortune occurred yesterday when A. B. Ziegler, the big right guard, was removed to the university hospital, where he is threatened with typhoid fever. Ziegler is now in a serious condition, and if he is lost to the team the situation on Franklin Field may become a hopeless one. Counting the four 'Varsity men who were lost last June by graduation, Pennsylvania has been deprived of nine in all. As a result wholesale shifts are being talked of by the coaches. If Ziegler is kept out of the game for any length of time it will mean that Lamson will have to be shifted from right tackle to right guard, and Capt. Torrey placed at tackle. If this is done Bankart will have to play centre.

POST-SEASON BASEBALL.

Boston and Chicago Americans Win and St. Louis Teams Tie.

Besides the world's championship game at Philadelphia yesterday, which was won by the champion New Yorks, three other post-season contests were played, two of which resulted in the success of American League teams over the Nationals, and one between the two St. Louis teams was a tie at the close of the tenth inning, each nine having scored a run. The Boston Americans completely outclassed their rivals, the Nationals, and have to win only one out of the remaining three games to capture the series. At Chicago the National League team outbatted the Americans, but lost the advantage by poor fielding.

The scores by innings:

Picked Up from the Diamond.

James Devine, New York City.—Mathewson was born at Factoryville, Penn., in 1878. He was a student at Bucknell University, and left that institution to play with the Norfolk (Va.) club. His good work in the pitcher's box there was brought to the attention of Manager McGraw, who signed him for the New York club. This was in the Fall of 1900. After the playing season is over Mathewson spends most of his time with his wife at Plainfield, N. J.

A monster parade in honor of the Philadelphia Athletics, the new champions of the American League, has been arranged to take place in the Quaker City on Monday evening, Oct. 23.

If the New Yorks and Athletics break even in the six games scheduled for the world's championship, there is talk of the deciding game being played on neutral grounds, and that Boston will be selected by the National Commission.

The malcontent club owners of the Eastern League will meet at the Imperial Hotel, in this city, next Monday to arrange a plan of procedure for the December meeting of the league.

R. C. McCurdy, Buffalo, N. Y.—Manager McGraw is a native of Truxton, N. Y. After playing with a number of amateur teams in this city, he started out on his first professional engagement with the Olean (N. Y.) club in 1890. The following year he played at Cedar Rapids, Iowa, where the late "Billy" Barnie discovered him and signed him to play in the latter part of 1891. McGraw has been manager of the New York team since 1902, inclusive.

R. B. D., New York.—In the world's championship series between the Boston and Pittsburg clubs in the Fall of 1903, the Pittsburgs won the first game at Boston by 7 to 3, lost the second game at Boston by 3 to 0, won the third at Boston by 4 to 2, and won the fourth at Pittsburg by 5 to 4. Four more games were played at Pittsburg, all of which were won by Boston, and that club consequently won the world's championship and retained the title until this year by default.

"Jack" Sheridan, who is officiating as umpire with "Hank" O'Day in the present world's series, will quit the game for good after this year's campaign, after twenty years of service as an umpire.

Dacey, New York City.—Plank pitched in more games than Coakley during the late American League championship season. Plank participated in thirty-nine games, of which he won twenty-seven and lost twelve. Coakley took part in twenty-eight games, winning twenty and losing eight.

William Dodge, the star pitcher of the La Crosse team, which won the championship of the Wisconsin League this year, has been drafted by the Chicago National League Club.

SPRINTER MORTON'S REVENGE.

English Champion Defeated Local Cracks at Physical Culture Show.

J. W. Morton, the English champion sprinter, secured revenge on local sprinters last night, when he won the special sixty-yard dash at the Madison Square Garden Physical Culture Exhibition. On Tuesday night Morton was defeated by U. D. Eaton of Boston, in the short sprint, when the New England runner was forced to equal the record to win from the Britisher. Last night Morton met the best of the New York sprinters and won with something in hand on both preliminary and final heats. The first heat brought out four starters, Morton winning by a yard and a half from Lawson Robertson of the Irish-Americans. In the second heat Arthur Johnson showed a clean pair of heels to a good field, Frank J. De Lorme of the Xavier Athletic Club being second. First and second men in the two heats met in the final. Morton and Johnson got away at the crack of the pistol, and raced down the floor neck and neck for half the distance, when the Englishman drew ahead and in a splendid burst of speed breasted the tape a winner by two yards.

Ray Ewry of the New York Athletic Club won the standing broad jump from Lewis Mang of the Mohawks. The contest was a close one and went to the "Mercury Foot" athlete by 2 inches. J. M. Barth established a new record for raising the 100-pound bar bell with both arms. He lifted the bell thirty-nine times, beating the best previous record by eleven times. Summaries:

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

ELLIS COMPANY.—Judge Holt in the United States District Court yesterday dismissed the creditors' petition in bankruptcy filed on Sept. 8 against the Ellis Company, sewer lifts, of 216 West Twenty-third Street.

VITO MARCANTONIO.—Vito Marcantonio, a builder of 332 East 112th Street, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $23,007 and no assets. The largest creditors are the executors of Sara Danzig, deceased, $10,375, and the Mehrof Brick Company, $2,500.

STEPHEN RIGHTMYER.—Stephen Rightmyer of Greenport, Columbia County, New York, filed a petition in bankruptcy here yesterday, showing liabilities of $1,592 and no assets. The liabilities were contracted while the petitioner was in the hotel business in Hudson, N. Y., in 1903 and 1904.

JOHN GILLIAM.—John Gilliam, fruit commission merchant, at 105 Hudson Street, filed a petition in bankruptcy yesterday with liabilities of $14,190 and assets of $3,416. The principal creditors are the Coal and Iron National Bank $1,750, Bank of New York $350, and Jennie O. Gilliam $2,675. The assets consist of debts due, $3,066, and machinery and fixtures, $350. Judge Holt appointed Burgwyn Maitland receiver and fixed his bond at $2,000. Mr. Gilliam had been in business since 1890.

FREDERICK DE TURCKHEIM.—A creditors' petition in bankruptcy was filed yesterday against Frederick de Turckheim, automobile merchant of 215 and 217 West Forty-eighth Street, by the Continental Caoutchouc Company, $2,246, part of this amount being a debt of the American De Dietrich Motor Car Company, which de Turckheim assumed, and the balance being for goods sold to de Turckheim on Feb. 18, 1905. It is charged in the petition that the alleged bankrupt has drawn his cash balances from the banks wherein they were deposited, and has left the country; also that some of the large stock of autos which he had on hand on Oct. 5 have disappeared. Judge Holt in the United States District Court appointed Lindsay Russell receiver, and fixed his bond at $10,000. De Turckheim was known as the President of the American De Dietrich Motor Car Company when that concern was at 1½ West Thirty-fourth Street.

CASHIER GREEN INDICTED.

Thirty-five Counts Against the Fredonia Ex-Banker.

LOCKPORT, N. Y., Oct. 12.—Frederick R. Green, cashier of the defunct Fredonia National Bank of Fredonia, N. Y., was indicted in the United States District Court here this afternoon. There are thirty-five specific counts against Green. The first thirteen counts charge false entries in reports to the Controller of the Currency.

The first count charges that Green's direct liability to the bank was $73,060, instead of $9,000, as reported by Green on May 29. The second count charges that he was liable through firms and corporations of which he was a member for upward of $206,000, no record of which appears in the Controller's report. The third count recites that the report showed bills discounted at $11,112, when they should have been $200,000. The fourth count charges that Green represented to the Controller that on May 29 last there was due the Fredonia National Bank $24,216 from the State Bank of Forestville, when instead $14,000 was due to the Forestville Bank. Count No. 13 charges a false entry in reporting loans and discounts at $673,070, when they were only $599,070. The other counts charge misapplication and abstraction of various sums ranging from $200 to $500.

Green was arrested last Summer and was admitted to bail. He will be arraigned to-morrow.

BAIT DISPUTE TO ROOSEVELT.

Gloucester Asks President to Call Newfoundland to Account.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 12.—Fishing industries of Gloucester were seriously disturbed to-day by the receipt of news from Captains at Bay of Islands, N. F., that the cruiser Fiona, with the Minister of Marines and Fisheries, had arrived at the Bay of Islands from St. John's and forbidden all vessels with American register to fish for herring there, notwithstanding their hitherto undisputed treaty rights.

A communication was sent at once to President Roosevelt appealing to him to point out to the Newfoundland Government the alleged violation of the treaty.

Gloucester skippers for some time have reported that Newfoundlanders were hostile and that it was openly stated that they were receiving support from parties in this country interested in the development of the island. Several vessels ready to sail for Newfoundland fishing grounds will be held here pending developments.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 12.—Local commission houses were large buyers of stocks on to-day's decline, taking round lots of Reading, United States Steel common, and Erie in this market, and buying freely of American Locomotive and Reading in New York. Sentiment grew more bullish the lower prices went. Bell Telephone was up a full point.

There were free offerings on Lehigh Valley on the report from good sources that the Coxe Brothers & Co. deal has not been fully consummated, but the buying around 73½ was regarded as significant. Philadelphia Electric was also freely offered, but the fact that they made little impression upon the price was construed as meaning that the political situation was not unfavorable to the company. Tonopah Mining, for reasons unexplained, developed weakness, 13⅜ to 12⅝. Bonds became quiet again, but prices were firm.

Total sales, 38,280 shares.

Stocks Irregular; Call Money Rates, 5½@6 Per Cent.

Market Sells Off, Then Rallies, Closing Uncertainly — Foreign Bank Returns.

After some early declines, representing a continuation of Wednesday's movement and influenced by the same causes, yesterday's stock market became firm and gained ground steadily up to midday. In this period the trading was unusually active, although it was largely concentrated upon specialties. After noon activity ceased and prices fluctuated aimlessly, with a tendency, however, toward a lower level, so that at the close of the day losses and gains were about equally distributed throughout the list, the changes being confined to fractions except in comparatively few instances. The issues showing the largest gains included American Locomotive, the Chicago Terminal shares, the rise in which was helped by the unconfirmed reports that the company's property was to go to the Burlington, and the Wisconsin Central issues, the explanation offered in this case being a reported sale of a stock majority to Great Northern interests. This was flatly denied.

Outside of matters connected with the position of money there were practically no developments during the day of especial influence on financial opinion. In general the speculative community was engaged in perusing more closely the Vanderlip address, over which it chose to frighten itself on Wednesday, and seemingly it arose from this reading much encouraged, but nevertheless impressed with the soundness of the cautionary conclusion. Study of the weekly statements of the Bank of England and Bank of Germany shows that they were able to make the much better returns they report through mucb the same means which the banks of this city have recently employed to the same end. The English Bank's $14,000,000 reserve decrease of last week was changed yesterday to a decrease of less than $2,000,000 through a drastic loan curtailment. The institution lost nearly $4,000,000 in bullion, but the reserve is again above the "dead line," standing at 41.47 per cent. The German Bank lost $41,000,000 cash last week, but this week it reports a gain of $5,700,000 cash and a decrease of $30,000,000 in loans. The Bank of France reported a loss of $3,200,000 in gold and a substantial loan reduction. In London and Berlin discount rates advanced ½ per cent. further. Hers demand sterling declined a trifle in the morning, but closed finally practically unchanged at a figure still precluding importations of gold. Call money rates were again higher at the close than at the opening of business and most of the day's loans were made at 5¾ per cent. The banks were again fortunate in their transactions with the Sub-Treasury, converting the loss of earlier days into a gain of $115,000. A slight flurry in money rates to-day seems among the probabilities, inasmuch as loans made to-day carry over to Monday, when some $30,000,000 in payments on Japanese loan subscriptions is due. This money, it is understood, will be undisturbed until well into November.

CHICAGO TERMINAL SOLD?

Stock Goes Up on a Report That James J. Hill Has Bought It.

Chicago Terminal Transfer rose sharply in yesterday's market, the common showing a net gain of 1 point and the preferred 2¼ points. At various times the company has been reported sold to one or another of nearly all the railroad lines entering Chicago.

Yesterday's trading in the stock was stimulated by the report from Chicago that James J. Hill had acquired the road in the interest of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, which is controlled jointly by the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific. Banking interests identified with the Chicago Terminal denied that there was any truth in this report.

It is generally accepted, however, that the road will pass into the hands of one of the large systems running into Chicago. No interest has been paid on the company's bonds this year, but the bonds and the stock have advanced. The common stock is now selling at 19, the preferred at 40, and the bonds at 99.

Control of the property through ownership of the bonds is believed to be held by J. P. Morgan & Co.

MERCHANTS' TRUST DISPUTE.

Question of Interest Due on Deposits Will Be Taken to Court.

The question of the interest on their deposits to which the depositors of the defunct Merchants' Trust Company are entitled is engaging the attention of the receivers. On the principal of the deposits there have already been paid two installments, amounting to 65 per cent.

President Otto T. Bannard of the New York Trust Company, one of the receivers, said yesterday that checks for the remaining 35 per cent. would be mailed some time next week. This, however, will leave unpaid the interest. The depositors are claiming 6 per cent. since the date of the company's insolvency. The stockholders regard this claim as excessive, and the matter will have to be adjusted by the courts.

Financial Notes.

The general balance sheet of the Central Pacific, accompanying the application for the listing of its bonds on the Stock Exchange, shows an increase of $10,301,018 in the assets of the company. The preferred stock has been increased $200,000, and the 3 per cent. notes in favor of the United States decreased $5,881,292. The net surplus brought forward on June 30 was $2,397,811, making the total sum to the credit of profit and loss $17,723,738.

Samuel Clay Lyons of Goldsmith, Wolf & Lyons and J. F. D. Lanier of Winslow, Lanier & Co. were elected members of the Stock Exchange yesterday.

Charles H. Dale, President of the New York Belting and Packing Company, was elected a Director of the Century Bank yesterday.

At the annual meeting of the St. Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba Road yesterday in St. Paul the Directors were all re-elected.

The Sloss-Sheffield Steel and Iron Company has applied to list on the Stock Exchange $2,500,000 additional common stock.

Ten shares of American Exchange National Bank stock were sold on the Stock Exchange yesterday at 279.

Clark, Dodge & Co., and Lee, Higginson & Co. of Boston, offer to investors a new issue of $2,000,000 of Richmond-Washington Company's collateral trust mortgage 4 per cent. gold bonds, Series C, due June 1, 1943, and subject to redemption on June 1, 1910, or on any subsequent interest date at 105 and accrued interest.

WISCONSIN CENTRAL REPORT.

An Increase of 7.20 Per Cent. in the Net Earnings—Two New Lines.

Gross earnings of the Wisconsin Central Railway Company for the year ended June 30 were $6,650,883, an increase of $184,706 over the previous year. Net earnings increased $152,810, 7.20 per cent.; the cost of maintenance of way, structures, and equipment increased $196,000, and the cost of conducting transportation decreased $181,000. The surplus for the year was $433,046, which made the total surplus on June 30, 1905, $988,890. Out of this, $423,997 was appropriated for improvements.

President H. F. Whitcomb says in his report that the construction of the line from Ladysmith to Duluth will soon begin. The line from Owen to Ladysmith will be opened next January. The Wisconsin Central owns the stock of the companies that will build these two roads. The income account, compared with 1903-04, is:

Gross	$6,650,883	$6,466,176

LONDON STOCK MARKET.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—Money was in good demand in the market to-day and rates were easy. Supplies probably will be much wanted to-morrow in connection with Stock Exchange pay day. The momentary abundance of money did not influence discounts, which were firmer, owing to the condition of French exchange, which is closely watched.

Operators on the Stock Exchange were less cheerful, mostly being occupied with the settlement. The feature of the movements was the relapse of Americans. Consols and home rails were dull.

Americans opened weak in response to New York and in connection with the speech of Frank A. Vanderlip before the American Bankers' Association at Washington yesterday. They moved to above parity at noon and afterward sagged. The decline was accentuated by New York selling and rumors that two firms in New York were in difficulties. The market closed dull with prices above the lowest quotations of the day.

Foreigners were quiet. Japanese were steady. Peruvian preferreds were in good demand.

Japanese imperial 6s of 1904 were quoted at 102.

Gold premiums were quoted as follows: Madrid, 28.50; Lisbon, 4.50.

Bullion amounting to £47,000 was taken into the Bank of England on balance to-day.

The rate of discount of the Bank of England remained unchanged to-day at 4 per cent.

In Continental Centres.

PARIS, Oct. 12.—Prices on the Bourse to-day were firm and bad an upward tendency.

The Bank of France's further loss of $3,200,000 in gold is commented upon as indicating renewed exportations of gold.

Russian imperial 4s were quoted at 93.30 and Russian bonds of 1904 at 529.

The private rate of discount was quoted at 2¾ per cent.

Three per cent. rentes, 99f 60c for the account.

Exchange on London, 25f 15½c for checks.

BERLIN, Oct. 12.—Prices on the Boerse to-day opened weaker, and continued depressed without striking changes.

Exchange on London, 20 marks 45½ pfennigs for checks.

Discount rates: Short bills, 4½ per cent.; three months' bills, 4½ per cent.

Rock Island Annual Meeting.

DAVENPORT, Iowa, Oct. 12.—The annual meeting of stockholders of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railway Company was held here to-day. Directors D. G. Reid, W. B. Leeds, Robert Mather, and Marshall Field were re-elected.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

The selling movement which began suddenly at 1 o'clock on Wednesday and continued uninterruptedly to the end of that day's session must have taken the bull interests greatly by surprise. They were certainly unprepared for it, and lost control, at least temporarily, of the speculative situation. Before the opening of the market yesterday morning they had evidently organized a defense, and were ready not only to resist bearish attacks, but to support prices under any fresh liquidation that might occur. Such support was needed in the first hour. The market opened at a slight advance over Wednesday's closing level of prices. Union Pacific, for example, recovered one-half of 1 per cent. in the initial trading, selling at 131⅞, and other stocks made fractional recoveries in the first five minutes, but Wednesday's selling movement was resumed and continued for nearly an hour. Prices declined again and went a little lower than the lowest quotations made on Wednesday's movement. Union Pacific sold down from 131⅞ to 130¾, and Steel preferred sold at 103½. The lowest quotations of the day were made in the first hour. The market became dull after that, and traders began to work for a rally, believing that stocks had been oversold. Their efforts were but moderately rewarded. The market recovered slowly and without animation. It was largely in the hands of traders after the first hour. There were many who thought that after so violent a decline on Wednesday the recovery yesterday should have been more pronounced.

***

A bull is one who hopes to sell stocks higher, and a bear is one who hopes to buy them lower.

***

The bull crowd in American Locomotive common chose to make a monument of that stock yesterday. With the rest of the market declining, Locomotive advanced and was heavily traded in on the level of 60. It touched 60⅝, the highest quotation so far made on this movement. Jacob Field was the largest open buyer of the stock. His purchases were estimated at 10,000 shares, and the board room refused to believe that he was acting for himself in what he did. On the advance to 60 in the first hour Field took practically all the stock offered at that price. E. & C. Randolph and Wolf Brothers also were reported as large buyers. The buying of Field and Wolf Brothers probably was confused to some extent and counted twice in reports sent out from the floor. This extraordinary demonstration in the market was supported by a continuous output of reading matter bulling the stock. The company was said to be earning 20 per cent. on the common stock, and there was a rumor that dividends would soon be begun at the rate of 5 per cent. It was also rumored, evidently with an idea of helping the stock, that Joseph Hoadley would retire from the company.

Purely as a matter of manipulative tactics it is usually unwise to force a stock conspicuously against the current of the general market. The pool only advertises its position by doing so, and gives its market an artificial appearance which is more calculated to excite distrust than confidence. It is denied that the Hoadley crowd has anything to do with this movement in American Locomotive, but the methods employed in it are singularly like those of Mr. Hoadley and his associates. A good deal of the prejudice with which conservative people regard the stock is due to their inexpert and untrustworthy, manipulation of it in the past. A favorite expedient of the Hoadley crowd has always been to create a short interest and then operate against it, or, failing to procure a short interest, to create the semblance of one by making the stock scarce in the loan crowd. Those whose selling of American Locomotive on this advance might presumably be for short account have been warned by friendly brokers that the stock is hard to borrow. There has been an apparent short interest in it for several weeks.

Constant traders agree readily on one point, namely, that for several weeks it has been an extremely difficult market in which to make money.

About the only surviving evidence of the American investor's participation in a previous Russian loan offered here is one jasper vase grandly installed in a chamber of the New York Stock Exchange. It was presented by the Czar as a mark of his appreciation of the success with which Russian bonds had been introduced on the American market. But the interest in the bonds is so very small that they are neither traded in nor quoted. They were listed, but there has never been a market for them. At about the same time that this vase was presented to the Stock Exchange the Czar decorated the Chairman of the committee on whose recommendation the bonds were listed.

If there were any doubt about it, the protests that are made against the printing of anything bearish on the market would be proof enough that people have stocks. A letter was received recently from a person who seemed indignant because a bearish message sent out by one of the largest wire houses in Wall Street had been reprinted, to show the attitude of a certain class of brokers toward the market. It was not a matter of idle gossip, but the expression of an influential opinion by a conservative and prominent Stock Exchange firm. Another writer hotly disputed the assertion that there had ever been any manipulation in a particular stock. There is more or less manipulation in all activs stocks. Manipulation does not necessarily detract anything from the reputation of a security, and certainly does not impair its actual value in the slightest degree. People are sensitive to bearish comment on the market and to criticism of particular stocks only when they are bullish. During the first stages of a recent bear market one of the most prominent houses in the Street went out of its way to protest against the bearish tone of stock market comment. It fought the market nearly all of the way down, and then itself became bearish at the extreme bottom, yielding finally to the force of general sentiment. A financial writer, now dead, who had a large speculative following, once turned on the market and began to present bearish views. After the second article he began to receive abusive letters of the most violent character. It was due to men of his type, his correspondents told him, that panics were a recurring evil. These letters made him only the more bearish, and he began to print them. The correspondence then fell off abruptly. People are naturally optimistic, and the great majority of outside speculators are always long of stocks. Professional tipsters learn by experience that when they send out bear stuff their business falls off at once.

The advance in Pacific Mail yesterday was directly due to the announcement that the American Bankers' Association had adopted a resolution favoring ship subsidies.

It is unusual for a private crop expert to have his estimates confirmed by the Government as those of H. V. Jones on the Spring wheat yield have been. Several weeks ago Mr. Jones made his final estimates on whsat. Hs went on record with a Spring whsat crop of 254,000,000 bushsls. He had been far below the Government in all his preliminary sstimates, and his final estimate on Spring wheat was about 20,000,000 bushels oelow the Government's September estimatss. In the October report, published this week, the Government brought its Spring wheat figures down to 259,000,000, differing from Jones only 5,000,000 bushels.

BULLION AND MINING.

Bar silver was quoted in London at 28½d per ounce and in New York at 61¾c per ounce. Mexican dollars were quoted at 47¼c.

On the Consolidated Exchange, 500 shares of Bullion sold at .38@.40, 500 Consolidated California and Virginia at 1.30@1.25, 300 Chollar at .12, 50 Iron Silver at 3.50, 200 Jumbo at .75, 300 Leadville at .08, 200 Little Chief at .08, 500 Lone Star at .10, 500 Mollie Gibson at .05½, 1,000 Moon Anchor at .04½, 1,000 Potosi at .10½, 100 Portland at 2.10, 300 Silver Hill at .85, and 300 Yellow Jacket at .12.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Oct. 12.—Ths. local money market is dull. The usual tabls of rates, &c., follows:

Call loans, 5½@6 per cent.; time loans, collateral, 4¼@5 per cent.; time loans, mercantils paper, 5 per cent.; Clearing House loans, 5 per cent.; New York funds, 10c discount. Clearings, $25,640,727. Balances, $1,831,336. Sub-Treasury debit, $96,021.

There was quite a little pressure to bs seen in the copper shares at the opening this morning, the result of the weakness of yesterday afternoon, which frightened many of ths narrow-margined traders. After this batch of orders had been cared for the market began to improve, and, although trading was light, the tone was much improved.

Good buying was noticeable in Atlantic, considerable stock changing hands around 27. North Butte advanced to 54, but later lost the gain and closed at about the lowest price of the day. The balance of the list was strong and well bought.

To Investors!

BUY BANK & TRUST CO. STOCKS: BECAUSE these institutions are reaping a bountiful harvest in this money market and their shares are in many instances lower than they were a year ago.

I predict a SUBSTANTIAL RISE, in the near future, in their market prics.

They afford the safest form of investment and many of them are selling far below their intrinsic value.

I will be pleased to meet or correspond with investors and give them the facts and figures forming the basis of my judgment.

GREAT NORTHERN REPORT SHOWS PROSPEROUS YEAR

GAIN OF $2,522,228 IN NET

The report of the Great Northern Railway Company for the year ended June 30 shows gross earnings of $43,526,088, an increase of $3,468,735 over the previous year. Operating expenses showed an increase of $847,564. The net earnings were $20,567,238, compared with $18,045,010, a gain of $2,522,228. The increase in gross reflected a larger business in the several departments of transportation. The freight traffic showed a very heavy increase.

There was some falling off in grain shipments but this was much more than offset by gains in other directions. Because of the revival in the iron trade the Great Northern carried 2,955,778 more tons of iron ore last year than in 1904.

President J. J. Hill in his report to the stockholders points out that there has been a steady reduction in the Great Northern's rates for a number of years. He presents a table showing that the saving to shippers in the last twenty-five years as a result of the Great Northern's rate reductions amounts to $676,983,820. President Hill presents these figures in refutation of the statement that while tariffs have been reduced classifications have been changed so as to offset an apparent reduction in rates. President Hill refers to the subject in connection with the discussion concerning Federal control of railway rates.

In regard to the provision made for expenditures for improvements on various subsidiary lines, President Hill says:

It has been stated in previous reports that the amounts the company had advanced certain companies for construction purposes were being carried to be applied in payment for stock to be issued by those companies. During the year such stock has been issued and acquired by the company as follows: The Dakota and Great Northern Railway Company, $2,000,000; Montana and Great Northern Railway Company, $7,000,000; Washington and Great Northern Railway Company, $2,000,000; Great Northern Steamship Company, $6,000,000. Total, $17,000,000. These shares, with the $1,500,000 stock of the Seattle and Montana Railroad Company and $5,000,000 of the St. Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba Railway Company's improvement bonds, acquired in 1902, £219,717 10s. debenture stock and £497,142 common shares of the Kootenay Railway and Navigation Company, Limited, make up the amount of securities to be acquired by the company with the proceeds of the $25,000,000 of Great Northern stock issued in pursuance of a resolution adopted by the Directors Feb. 27, 1901.

The stock acquired by the company is full paid, and represents actual cash expended for construction. The amounts that the company had advanced for construction to June 30, 1905, to the four companies first named exceed the $17,000,000 stock issued by $5,951,373.10. No bonds have been issued by those companies.

In addition, the St. Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba Railway issued $6,010,000 improvement bonds to cover the cost of the new line between Columbia Falls and Jennings. Additions and improvements on the Manitoba lines costing $1,117,972 were charged against the fund for permanent improvements and renewals to the credit of which $3,000,000 was set aside out of the year's surplus. The surplus for the year after the appropriation for improvements was $5,137,376.

Much improvement work was done and a number of branch lines were constructed. The amount included in maintenance of road and structures for extraordinary improvements was $2,040,645.

There was transferred to the Great Northern Employes' Investment Company 1,250 shares of Great Northern preferred stock, making a total of 8,150 shares now held in the interest of the employes. Chicago, Burlington and Quincy stock to the extent of 80 shares was exchanged for Great Northern-Northern Pacific joint bonds.

At the annual meeting yesterday the retiring Directors were re-elected.

KANSANS FOR A RATE LAW.

Representative Campbell Assures President of Support for Bill.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Railroad rate legislation and the oil situation with special reference to the Middle Western field, were discussed to-day by the President and Representative Campbell of Kansas. Mr. Campbell assured the President that the people of Kansas stood squarely at his back on railroad rate legislation, and the Kansas delegation in Congress undoubtedly would support it.

"The Middle West has the greatest oil field in the world," said Mr. Campbell. "The prospects now are brighter than ever. Two independent refineries are in operation, and several others will be within sixty days. An independent pipe line has been financed by the Cudahy interests to St. Louis, where a big refinery will be erected.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—At the semi-annual meeting of the share holders of the Grand Trunk Railway of Canada to-day the report of the Board of Directors was unanimously adopted.

The President, Sir Charles Rivers Wilson, spoke most encouragingly of the prospects, particularly in regard to the Pacific extension of the Grank Trunk. He said he had the assurance of the Canadian Government that it would commence work on the Eastern Division immediately and complete the section from Winnipeg westward to the junction with the Fort William Branch simultaneously with the completion of that branch.

TRADING IN BALTIMORE.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 12.—There was an aggressive demand for G. B. S. income bonds to-day on the announcement that 1½ per cent. interest for the present six months will be paid Nov. 1. The prices advanced a full point, but toward the close receded ½. The demand for the first mortgage bonds was fair, and they were firmly held.

The market generally was broader and more active. United Railways 4s were very active, though lower, at 93. Seaboard three-year 6s advanced ½. Atlantic Coast Line of Connecticut 5-20s sold ⅜ up. Alabama Coal and Iron 5s were ¼ higher.

Transactions in the stock list were at declining prices for some issues. United States Fidelity sold down 2 points. The close was fairly active and firm.

CHICAGO QUOTATIONS.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—New York exchange was 10c premium. Time and call loans, 4@5 per cent.

Another small flurry developed to-day in the market for the stock of the Chicago Subway Company on the local Exchange. A few early sales here and in New York brought a decline in prices which during the morning in this market extended from 53½ on the opening quotation, to 49¾, the low mark since the stock first became active on the local curb. Later there was a rally to around 51½. Other local issues were irregular. Box Board preferred ran down to 13¼ early, Biscuit common sold at 54⅜, and Carbon preferred ran up from 115⅝ to 116, and common went at 71.

Quaker Oats common, on renewed talk of dividend prospects, sold at the new high record price of 108, against about par for the preferred. Northwestern Elevated was strong at 25, and Kansas City Light, because, perhaps, of conservatism of the Valentine party in the matter of dividends, sold around 52½, with a 10-share sale at 54.

THE OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Chicago Subway, in a Slump, Dropped to 49.

The Copper Stocks Made Slight Gains—Standard Oil Still Around 670—Bethlehem Steel Stationary.

Chicago Subway again took the centre of the stage—or the Street—yesterday, and the curb brokers began to hammer it early in the morning. It opened down one point, and before many minutes it was dropping by fourths and halves. It struck bottom at 49, the lowest price of the current movement, and then reacted. At the close it was selling around 52. Great Northern rights went at 35¾, Erie rights at 6, and New York, New Haven and Hartford rights at 6⅝. Bethlehem Steel, of which 400 shares were sold, closed at 29⅞, and the preferred closed at 29⅞. Standard Oil stayed around 70. The copper stocks scored fractional gains.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Charges for Bottling Held to be Dutiable—Other Decisions.

In a decision by Judge Somerville, the Board of United States General Appraisers yesterday overruled claims filed by the A. Vignier Company and Pascal, Dubedat & Co. of San Francisco regarding the distribution for customs purposes of certain charges on bottles. It was contended by the importers that the charges for labeling, corking, and wiring of the bottles should be added to the contents and not to the bottles as was done by the Collector. Although the cases were duly set for hearing, the importers failed to appear and put in testimony in support of their protests. The board therefore overrules the claims and affirms the action of the Collector of Customs.

General Appraiser Fischer wrote a decision denying claims made by John Bromley & Sons of Philadelphia relative to the customs classification of parts of lace-making machines. The firm contended that the articles came within the meaning of the tariff provision for "castings." This, however, is denied by the board, and the Collector's assessment at 45 per cent. as manufactures of metal is allowed to stand.

Other importers' protests overruled were those of Wilfred Schade & Co. of St. Louis, R. F. Downing & Co., J. R. Dagalne & Co., Musoline & Berger, Stone & Downer Company, Fred Thelse, John D. Lewis, L. M. Crane & Co., and Danker & Marston of Boston, the Portuguese Commission Company and Parrott & Co. of San Francisco.

The board sustained claims filed by Komada & Co., Frederick de Bary & Co. of San Francisco.

A suit entered by A. Biaggi of San Juan, Porto Rico, was dismissed.

THE COMMERCIAL WORLD

WHEAT.—The wheat market had rather a narrow range all day, keeping generally under the previous night's close. There was some indication of bull support at times, but the pit, nevertheless, had an impression that the bull leader at Chicago was selling on the bulges through commission houses. This accounted in part for the lack of confidence among professionals on the bull side, although at the same time bears hesitated to push any advantage that they might have had. In the line of news there was nothing important on either side of the market. It was governed most of the day by purely local influences and gave little evidence of the broadening tendency that was noticeable earlier in the week. A Broomhall cable said the Austrian crops were looking badly and in need of October rain. A later one gave the official estimate of the yield in New South Wales as 20,000,000 bushels, compared with 16,500,000 bushels last year. The same authority figured that Argentine shipments would be around 960,000 bushels, compared with 640,000 bushels the previous week. A good cash demand at Minneapolis helped to offset the increase of a million bushels at that point for the week, and it was reported that a fair export business had been done at the Gulf, although the only trade reported here was ten loads. The partial advance of ¼d at Liverpool was not considered a full response to the strength on this side Wednesday. Paris was 5@10 points lower, Berlin ½@1 mark higher, and Budapest 8 points up. The interior movement consisted of 957,000 bushels, compared with 1,110,000 bushels a year ago. The agent of a Chicago house cabled from Russia that all crops in the Volga district had proved a failure. Opening about steady, the local market eased off sharply, recovered again, and was fairly steady up to the last hour, when bull support appeared to give way a little and prices eased back to nearly the lowest point of the day, closing ⅛c under the previous night. The local cash market closed as follows: No. 2 red, 90¾c, elevator, and 91⅝c, free on board, afloat; No. 1, Northern, Duluth, 93⅝c, and No. 1 Northern, Manitoba, 93⅝c, free on board, afloat.

CORN.—No attention was paid to the frost news, as the trade believes that corn is safe from this danger, and the market accordingly acted rather easy a good part of the season, closing in New York ⅛c net lower. At Chicago there was a fair commission house trade and indications of bull support at times, although no general attempt to put up the price. On account of being soft, new corn arriving at Kansas City has been grading No. 3 and No. 4. Interior receipts were a shade larger than the previous week, and Broomhall estimated that Argentine shipments would be about 240,000 bushels more than reported a week ago. Liverpool closed ¼d net higher. On export account there were sales of twelve loads. No. 2 corn was quoted 61⅛c, elevator, and 62c, free on board, afloat; other grades nominal.

COTTON.—Indications that the cold wave in the South was giving way to warmer conditions without much actual damage to the crop caused a very sharp break in the cotton market yesterday from which there was only a partial recovery on covering, with the close steady at a net decline of 11@15 points. Sales were estimated at 300,000 bales.

The opening was steady at an advance of 1 point to a decline of 3 points, or about as due on the cables. Reports of frost more or less generally over the Northeastern and Central belts brought in some buying orders through wire and commission houses, but local professionals were very bearish on reports that temperatures were not low enough to kill the plant over any important area, and the market was under heavy pressure from the first. Declining about 15 points under last night's finals, prices were rallied 4 or 5 points by covering, but around midday eased off again under the late forecast predicting warmer weather to-night and to-morrow and the continued absence of private reports claiming material damage to the plant in sections already visited by frost. Selling was also encouraged by the larger estimate for to-morrow's receipts at Houston and a bearish private estimate of the crop. The low point was reached in the early afternoon, when prices showed a net loss of about 21@22 points, or within 5 or 7 points of the low point of the season. Around 9.79 for January shorts covered freely, and during the later session the market ruled steady to firm on reports of steady Southern spot markets and large exports, but most of the support seemed to be in the way of covering. According to official reports Southern spot markets were unchanged to 3-16 lower, latter at Augusta. The local spot market was 15 points lower, with sales of 325 bales to spinners and 57,900 bales delivered on contract.

LIVERPOOL, Oct. 12.—Spot Cotton—Good demand; sales, 10,000 bales; speculation and export, 500 bales; American, 9,000 bales; receipts, 12,000 bales; American, 11,000 bales. Middling upland, 5.34d. Futures opened quiet, 2 points lower; closed quiet at a net decline of 8 points; October and October-November, 5.20d; November-December, 5.24d; December-January, 5.28d; January-February, 5.31d; February-March, 5.33d; March-April, 5.36d; April-May, 5.38d; May-June, 5.40d; June-July, 5.42d; July-August, 5.43d.

COFFEE.—After a very quiet and practically featureless early session the coffee market became rather unsettled under increased offerings, supposed to be for long account. The opening was steady at unchanged prices, in keeping with steady cables. Offerings at first were very light, and during the middle session the market gained a partial 5 points, but turned easier toward the close, and was finally barely steady at a decline of 5 points to an advance of 5 points. The official weather reports from Brazil indicated more or less general rain in the Sao Paulo district, which not only offered a bearish explanation of the smaller Jundiahy receipts reported by the early cable, but also suggested a further relief to the droughty sections mentioned in the private cable news of the previous day. The Brazilian markets were unchanged. Of the European markets Hamburg was unchanged to ¼ pfennig higher, and Havre was unchanged to ½ franc higher. Receipts at the two ports were 68,000 bags, against 85,000 bags on the previous day, no comparison being available with last year. New York house deliveries continued very light, those reported for yesterday being only about 6,867 bags, against 12,855 bags last year. IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

The Unity Realty Company (Oppenheimer Brothers & Veith) has sold the block front on Central Park West, between Sixty-second and Sixty-third Streets, a plot of seventeen lots, fronting 200 feet on Central Park West, 225 feet on Sixty-second Street, and 200 feet on Sixty-third Street. The price is said to have been something over $750,000. The present sellers bought the lots about two years ago from a syndicate, which had intended to erect on the property a large building to provide suitable quarters for playing the Spanish game of pelota, or jai-alai. For some reason this project was abandoned and the property placed on the market. Prior to the purchase by the pelota syndicate the plot was owned by Justice Dugro and Frank Work. Nothing could be learned yesterday as to the identity of the present buyer or the future disposition of the property.

Deal for Tiemann Estate Holdings.

Bernard Smyth & Sons have sold for the estate of Mayor Daniel F. Tiemann to the Northwestern Realty Company a plot of over 61 lots in the block bounded by Broadway, Riverside Drive, Manhattan Street, 127th and 129th Streets, having frontages of 530 feet on Riverside Drive, 353 feet on 127th Street, 394 feet on Manhattan Street, and 250 feet on 129th Street. It is reported that the lots have been resold to Meryash & London. The property was inherited by Daniel F. Tiemann from his father, Anthony Tiemann, in 1833, and Mr. Tiemann resided there during his term as Mayor of the city. This is the last of the Tiemann holdings in this neighborhood, the estate having sold over 100 lots through Messrs. Smyth & Sons.

The buyer is a Western corporation, which will erect a large factory. It is estimated that the investment in land and buildings will amount to about $2,500,000. The new enterprise, it is said, will give employment to 5,000 persons.

Growth of New Realty Organization.

The Directors of the Allied Real Estate Interests of the State of New York met yesterday morning at the offices of the organization in the Broad-Exchange Building. B. Aymar Sands, Treasurer of the association, presided. Among the prominent real estate men present were Robert E. Dowling, William H. Chesebrough, Allen L. Mordecai, Alfred E. Marling, John L. Parish, and Joel S. De Selding.

Mr. Sands said that the officers of the organization felt very much encouraged by the amount of support which it had received since assuming permanent form, there being already over 1,100 members. The organization came into being very largely as the result of the agitation against the mortgage tax last Spring, and, while the repeal of that measure will be the chief object of the Allied Real Estate Interests for the immediate future, it was made clear at yesterday's meeting that the formation of a permanent body is planned for the protection of property owners in this city and throughout the State. The fight against the mortgage tax will be resumed upon the convening of the Legislature. Senator Page, it is said, has signified his willingness to introduce a bill providing for the repeal of the law.

Statistics show beyond question that the mortgage tax has raised interest rates, and that the tax is being paid by the borrower. During the week Sept. 29 to Oct. 5 there were recorded only 99 5 per cent. mortgages, as against 474 for the corresponding week last year, while at 5½ per cent. the mortgages for the two weeks under comparison numbered 190, as against 2. The average interest rate on all mortgages recorded between Sept. 29 and Oct. 6 was sixty-one one-hundredths of 1 per cent. higher than for the same period last year.

Purchase at Cedarhurst, L. I.

Alfred M. Rau of the Municipal Realty Company has bought from Alrich H. Man, as executor, the entire holdings of the Russell estate at Cedarhurst, L. I. The tract comprises about 110 acres of land, together with the old Russell homestead and several outbuildings, fronting about half a mile on Burnside Avenue and having a large frontage on the Jamaica and Rockaway turnpike.

Buch & Ziegel have sold to M. Jorist the Elijah Vanderhoof farm at Boonton, N. J., consisting of 280 acres. The buyer will erect a hotel on the property.

No Business at Auction.

The property 513 West 144th Street, scheduled for sale under foreclosure yesterday, was withdrawn. Vacant lots on Washington Avenue, Kelly and Fox Streets, in the Bronx, offered by L. J. Phillips & Co., were bid in. There are no auction sales listed to-day.

LEGAL NOTICES.

AT A SPECIAL TERM OF THE SUPREME Court of the State of New York held in Part I. thereof on the 19th day of Sept., 1905, at the County Court House in the County of New York, Borough of Manhattan and City of New York.—Present, Hon. Charles H. Truax, Justice.—In the matter of the petition of THE SAFETY SYSTEM STATIONERY CO. for authority to change its name to "SAFETY SYSTEMS CO."
On reading and filing the petition of The Safety System Stationery Co., a domestic stock corporation duly verified by J. K. Kirkland, its President, wherein said petitioner prays for an order authorizing it to assume another corporate name, to wit: the name "Safety Systems Co.," and upon filing the certificate of the Secretary of State annexed thereto, certifying that the name which said corporation proposed to assume is not the name of any other domestic corporation or a name which he deems so nearly resembling it as to be calculated to deceive, and upon filing the admission of the Secretary of State of the filing with him of the petition and notice of motion, and upon filing due proof by affidavits assuring that notice of the presentation of said petition has been duly published in two daily newspapers in the County of New York, wherein the main business office of the corporation is located, and the Court being satisfied by said petition and by the affidavits and certificates presented therewith that the petition is true and that there is no reasonable objection to the change of name proposed, and that the petition has been duly authorized, and that notice of the presentation of the petition as required by law has been made;
Now, on motion of Cleveland F. Bacon, attorney for said petitioner, no one opposing, it is Ordered that said petition and the same hereby is granted, and that the petitioner herein, The Safety System Stationery Co., be and it hereby is authorized to assume another corporate name, to wit, the name "Safety Systems Co.," on and after the 23d day of Oct., 1905, and it is further ordered and directed that this order be entered and all papers on which it is granted be filed within ten days from the date hereof in the office of the Clerk of New York County, the county in which the certificate of incorporation of said corporation is filed, and that a certified copy of this order within ten days after the entry hereof be filed in the office of the Secretary of State, and further that a copy of this order be published once a week, for four successive weeks, in The Times, a newspaper in the County of New York, beginning within ten days after the entry hereof. Enter: C. H. T., J.

LEGAL SALES.

NOTICE OF SALE.—Circuit Court of the United States for the District of New Jersey.—GUARANTY TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK, as Trustee, Complainant, against ATLANTIC COAST ELECTRIC RAILROAD COMPANY, Defendant.—Notice is hereby given that in pursuance of an amended decree made in the above entitled cause on the 31st day of July, 1905, and filed in the office of the Clerk of said Court at Trenton, New Jersey, on the said 31st day of July, 1905, the undersigned as Special Master, under and pursuant to the terms of said amended decree, will sell at public auction and to the highest bidder or bidders upon the premises of said mortgaged property at the corner of Main Street and Oak Bluff Avenue, at Asbury Park, Monmouth County, New Jersey, on the 20th day of October, 1905, at 12 o'clock noon of that day, all the mortgaged premises and property, rights, interest, appurtenances and franchises of Atlantic Coast Electric Railroad Company described in said amended decree, and hereinafter described, as an entirety, in one parcel, free and clear from all liens and claims existing in favor of the defendant in said cause.

The mortgaged premises and property, rights, interest, appurtenances, and franchises, real and personal, directed by the said decree to be sold, are described as follows, to wit:

All and singular the lines of railroad and railroad tracks and routes and other property, real and personal, hereinbelow described, to wit:

1. The following lines of railroad and routes: Beginning in the Borough of Asbury Park in the County of Monmouth and State of New Jersey, at or near a point where Main Street intersects Oak Bluff Avenue and in the location of the tracks of the Sea Shore Electric Railway Company therein; thence northwardly crossing the southerly branch of Deal Lake and over a right of way purchased by said company from James A. Bradley and others to Interlaken in Ocean Township in said County and State; thence still northwardly, crossing the north branch of Deal Lake over a private right of way purchased by said company from Samuel Johnson and others to Lock Arbor in said Township, County, and State; thence still northwardly over lands purchased by said company from Samuel Johnson and through a private right of way purchased from the heirs at law of Abner Allen, deceased, to the middle of a new avenue called Elberon Avenue in Ocean Township in said County and State; and thence eastwardly along and through Elberon Avenue to its intersection with a proposed new street running north and south through the lands of the said heirs of Abner Allen, deceased; thence northwardly through said proposed new street, over a right of way purchased from said heirs of Abner Allen, deceased, the Deal Beach Land Company and Theodore S. Darling to the middle of the public road leading from land formerly of Garrett D. Vanderveer to Ocean Avenue; thence eastwardly along and through said public road to its intersection with the public road leading from Deal Beach to Long Branch village, commonly known as the Old Deal Turnpike Road; thence northwardly through and along said Old Deal Turnpike Road to a point twelve and one-half feet north of the north line of Mrs. Zilpha E. Chadwick's lands in Long Branch; thence eastwardly over a strip of land twenty feet wide, purchased from Zilpha E. Chadwick and one Alice E. Eaton along their south line to a point twelve and one-half feet west of the west line of the New York and Long Branch Railroad Company's right of way; thence northwardly over n strip of land twenty-five feet in width and adjoining on the west side of said New York and Long Branch Railroad Company's right of way to a point twenty (20) feet north of the south line of lands formerly owned by John Hoey, deceased; thence eastwardly crossing the right of way of the said New York and Long Branch Railroad Company to a point ten feet east of the easterly line of the said New York and Long Branch Railroad Company's right of way; thence northwardly over a strip of land twenty feet in width and adjoining on the east side of said last mentioned Railroad Company's right of way to the south line of the West End Station grounds of the New York and Long Branch Railroad Company; thence northeastwardly over a strip of land twenty feet in width, adjoining and along the south and east lines of said West End Station grounds to a point ten feet north of the north line of lands formerly belonging to Walter S. Green, deceased; thence eastwardly over a strip of land twenty feet in width to the north of and adjoining the north line of lands formerly belonging to Walter S. Green, deceased, to the middle of Second Avenue in Long Branch, and thence northwardly in and along said Second Avenue to the north line of Brighton Avenue and to the end of the location of the track of the West End and Long Branch Railroad Company therein.

Also beginning at a point in the intersection of the middle line of Atlantic Avenue at Pleasure Bay in the Township of Ocean aforesaid with the middle line of the main public road therein (being a continuation of Florence Avenue) and thence northwardly along said public road to the middle of Bridge Avenue.

Also beginning at a point in said last mentioned public road and running thence northwestwardly over a strip of land twenty feet wide to Thomas Patten to the Pleasure Bay Steamboat Landing. Including and intending to include in the foregoing any and all alterations and substituted portions of the routes above described.

11. All lands and real estate, rails, stands, switches, turnouts, and turntables, wires, poles, electric motors, connections, machinery, bridges, power houses, engine houses, work shops, depots, offices, rolling stock, generators, dynamos, tools, machinery, implements, materials, buildings, improvements, tenements and hereditaments now owned by the Railroad Company or hereafter at any time or howsoever acquired by it, which are or may be connected with or appurtenant to the above described and hereby mortgaged railroad and routes, and all and singular the tolls, revenues, income rents, issues and profits of said railroad routes hereby mortgaged.

111. All and every franchise (including the franchise to be a corporation,) right, privilege and easement of whatsoever kind or nature now or hereafter at any time or howsoever owned, acquired, possessed, enjoyed, or exercised by the Railroad Company, either by virtue of any act of the Legislature of the State of New Jersey, or of any contract or agreement between the Railroad Company and the local authorities having control of the highways of the Borough of Asbury Park and the Township of Ocean and of the Long Branch Police, Sanitary, and Improvement Commission in the County of Monmouth and State of New Jersey, or of any grant or resolutions of or by said local authorities, or any of them, or of any contract or lease between the Railroad Company and any other railroad or other corporation, or under or by virtue of any authority whatsoever heretofore or hereafter conferred which are or may be connected with or appurtenant to the above described and hereby mortgaged railroad and routes.

IV. Fifteen hundred shares of the pur value of one hundred dollars each, of the Sea Shore Electric Railway Company, a New Jersey corporation having a total authorized capital stock of ten thousand shares of the par value of one hundred dollars each, also all additional shares of said capital stock if any hereafter acquired by the Railroad Company.

Together with all and singular the liberties, privileges, and franchises connected with or relating to the said railroad, routes, and real and personal property hereto mortgaged, or the maintenance, operation or use thereof which are now or may hereafter be owned, possessed, enjoyed, or exercised by the Railroad Company with all and singular the tolls, income, profits, advantages, hereditaments, easements, and appurtenances to the above described and hereby mortgaged railroad routes and real and personal property, franchises and premises or any part thereof now or hereafter belonging or in any wise appertaining, and the reversion and reversions, remainder and remainders, rents, issues and profits thereof, and also all the estate right, title, interest, property, possession, claim, and demand whatsoever, as well in law as in equity, of the Railroad Company in and to the same, and each and every part and parcel thereof, with the appurtenances.

V. All the shares of the capital stock of the West End and Long Branch Railway Company, a New Jersey corporation, to wit: One thousand shares of the par value of one hundred dollars each. All of the above described and hereby mortgaged railroad and other real and personal property being now subject, nevertheless, to the lien of the first mortgage of the Railroad Company, the party thereto of the first part to the Knickerbocker Trust Company, as Trustee, dated April 27th, 1895, and executed and delivered to secure the payment of first mortgage five per cent. fifty-year gold bonds of the railroad of the aggregate amount of $1,000,000 of principal.

VI. And also all of the issued and outstanding shares of the capital stock of the Atlantic Coast Electric Light Company, to wit: One thousand shares of $100 each; the entire authorized capital stock of said company being 5,000 shares of $100 each.

Also (1) the rights acquired by (a) the lease from the West End and Long Branch Railway Company to Atlantic Coast Electric Railroad Company, dated August 3, 1896; (b) the lease from the Sea Shore Railway Company to Atlantic Coast Electric Railroad Company, dated August 3, 1896; (c) the lease from the Asbury Park and Sea Girt Railroad Company, dated August 7, 1898; (2) also all of the capital stock of the said last mentioned company issued to and owned by the defendant company, and all the right, title and interest, legal and equitable, of the defendant company in and to the property and franchises of said Asbury Park and Sea Girt Railroad Company as were acquired by said defendant company subsequent to the date of said mortgage or deed of trust; (3) a certain railroad and railroad route running and extending from the Shark River Bridge to 16th Avenue, Belmar, being a line of railroad of about one and fifty-five hundredths (1.55) miles in length; (4) all the lands, tenements, rights of way, improvements, betterments, equipments, and other property purchased or acquired by the Atlantic Coast Electric Railroad Company after the date of the said mortgage, including the real estate, upon which the new power house was built; (5) all the railways, betterments, equipment, and property constructed or acquired by James Smith, Jr., as Receiver of the property of the defendant Railroad Company; but not including the rights under the lease from Thomas G. Patten and others to Atlantic Coast Electric Railroad Company, dated February 1st, 1897, which are not appurtenant to nor used by the defendant company in connection with the above described property.

The sale of the above described property will be made in one parcel to the highest bidder upon the following terms and conditions, to wit:

Any party to this cause, or any holder of said general mortgage bonds, secured by the aforesaid mortgage, may bid and become the purchaser at such foreclosure sale.

No bid for a less sum than fifty thousand dollars ($50,000) will be accepted for said property, and no bid will be received from any one offering to bid who shall not first have deposited, as pledge, that he will make good his bid in case of its acceptance, the sum of twenty-five thousand dollars ($25,000) in money, or in certified check or checks on a National bank or banks in the City of New York or the City of Philadelphia. The deposit so received from any unsuccessful bidder shall be returned to him when the property shall be struck down, and the deposit received from the successful bidder shall be held by the Special Master subject to the further order of this Court, to be applied on account of the purchase price of the property for which such bid was made. The remainder of the purchase price shall be paid in money or by receiver's certificates heretofore lawfully issued by the receiver of the Atlantic Coast Electric Railroad Company, such receiver's certificates to be accepted at par with accrued interest; or in the aforesaid general mortgage bonds of the Atlantic Coast Electric Railroad Company, above described, and the coupons appertaining thereto; but such general mortgage bonds and coupons when tendered in payment, shall only be taken or accepted for such sum of money as upon a final accounting they may respectively be entitled to receive on the distribution of the proceeds of the sale.

The provisions permitting the purchaser to respond to his bid with said general mortgage bonds and coupons of the Atlantic Coast Electric Railroad Company instead of cash, shall not be construed as impairing the power of the Court to require a further amount than $25,000 to be paid in money instead of bonds if it is deemed necessary hereafter to require further payment in money to discharge claims against the mortgaged property which shall hereafter be adjudged to be entitled to a preference over the general mortgage bonds or to pay to such holders whose bonds are not tendered in payment of the purchase price, such distributive share of the proceeds of the sale as upon the final accounting they are found to be entitled to.

The purchaser or purchasers of the property sold hereunder shall take the property and accept a deed therefor upon the express condition that such purchaser or purchasers, his or their heirs, executors, administrators, successors, and assigns, will pay all the allowed preferential claims, costs, and expenses mentioned in said decree, and all such liabilities as may have been contracted by the receiver, provided the purchase price bid at the sale for any reason proves inadequate to pay and discharge the same; and on condition that for non-compliance with this agreement or for failure to pay any part or portion of the purchase price of said property in cash as and when the Court may require, the Court may, by a receiver appointed for that purpose, resume possession of the property sold and all additions thereto and do therewith whatever may be deemed necessary to enforce compliance with said agreement and its orders for further payments in money.

The purchaser or purchasers of the property sold hereunder may elect not to assume or adopt any leases, agreements, or contracts sold as part of the mortgaged premises as aforesaid which the said purchaser or purchasers, or his or their assigns or appointees may specify by writing filed with the Clerk of the Court in this cause prior to the execution and delivery of the conveyance made in pursuance of such sale.

For reasons by the undersigned Special Master deemed adequate, he may adjourn said sale from time to time and without further notice, except an oral proclamation made when the sale is adjourned, and he may proceed with such sale on any subsequent day to which he may adjourn the same.

Reference is hereby made to the said amended decree for a full statement of its terms.

Dated, September 15th, 1905.

EDWARD S. ATWATER, Special Master.

HYDE MAY APPEAR NOW AND TELL HIS STORY

Untermyer, His Lawyer, Has a Talk with Hughes.

HAMILTON NOT BACK YET

The Committee Will Ask If Answers to Mutual Advertisements Are Turned Over to Raymond & Co.

Samuel Untermyer, counsel for James H. Hyde and William H. McIntyre, who are wanted as witnesses by the Insurance Investigating Committee, had a talk yesterday with Charles H. Hughes, the committee's counsel. It is believed that they talked about the question whether Mr. Hyde and Mr. McIntyre would return to the jurisdiction of the committee and appear voluntarily before it. Neither Mr. Hughes nor Mr. Untermyer, however, would consent to say anything for publication.

Some who have followed the investigation closely believe that Mr. Hyde will ultimately appear before the committee and will testify regardless of conditions which his counsel sought to impose in the letter which he wrote to Mr. Hughes some time ago. They base this belief on the fact that many of the older men in the Equitable hoard have from time to time denied knowledge of the acts complained of in the Equitable Life with an apparent or expressed intention to throw upon James H. Hyde the burden of all that was done.

This side of Equitable affairs has been the one presented most fully before each of the bodies which have investigated the affairs of the society. It has been supposed that in the Mayer action Mr. Hyde would eventually state his side of the case. It is believed now that the turn that the investigation by the Armstrong Committee has taken, and particularly the unexplained conflict between the testimony given by Mr. Hyde before Superintendent Hendricks in regard to the Union Pacific preferred stock holding syndicate and the account which Jacob H. Schiff gave of the same matter both before Supt. Hendricks and the investigating committee, have done much to convince Mr. Hyde and his counsel that present sessions offer as favorable an opportunity as any for him to appear and tell his story.

The Board of Governors of the Lawyers' Club, which Henry B. Hyde founded in connection with the establishment of the Law Library in the Equitable Building, held a meeting yesterday and dropped James H. Hyde from their membership. Henry B. Macdona, an attorney connected with the Ryan interests, was elected in Mr. Hyde's place. It is understood that the present management of the Equitable contemplates an entire reorganization of the Lawyers' Club.

One of the names on the advance list of passengers of the White Star liner Baltic, which got here yesterday, was that of "Judge" Andrew Hamilton of Albany. He has been mentioned a good deal in connection with the legislative activities of the life insurance companies. "Judge" Hamilton was not on the Baltic. It was said that at the last moment he had deferred sailing.

Mr. Hughes of the committee has obtained some more light about the advertising department of the Mutual Life. He will now seek to ascertain whether it has been the practice for the Mutual to advertise extensively in magazines and turn the inquiries which came in from such advertising in the Metropolitan district over to Charles H. Raymond & Co. The form of these advertisements is familiar. It contains a coupon which the prospective policy holder may cut off and return to the company. The names signed to these coupons are obviously of immense value to any agent who may obtain them. The possession of them saves a vast amount of preliminary work in canvassing unknown territory. Mr. Hughes wants to find out, if he succeeds in establishing this, why the Mutual should pay the advertising bills and then pay Charles H. Raymond & Co., in which President McCurdy's son-in-law, Dr. Thebaud, is a member, $147,000 a year in commissions on handling the business.

The committee learned yesterday that A. C. Fields, the manager of the Mutual Life's Department of Supplies, served as a confidential guide of certain persons whose presence in the office of President McCurdy might make gossip. In the Mutual Life Building there is a private elevator leading from Mr. Fields's office to an equally private anteroom of President McCurdy's office, where six or eight strong sentries stand on guard. The way to get to this avenue is understood to have been first through the book store in the basement of the building, then through the connecting door into the office of Mr. Fields, then up the elevator, and at last into Mr. McCurdy's anteroom.

The Trustees of the Equitable met yesterday afternoon to elect new Directors. No action was taken, but another meeting will be held this morning.

WANTS FEDERAL CONTROL.

James M. Beck Says It Is the Solution of the Insurance Problem.

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—"There is a supervision of insurance more potent than that of State or Federal laws. It is the supervision of public opinion. Of all institutions, the insurance company most depends upon public sentiment for its very existence."

This was the opening sentence of an address to-day by James M. Beck of New York to the Fire Underwriters' Association of the Northwest, in session in this city.

"No one pretends," he continued, "that the present insurance system, either in theory or in practical administration, is incapable of improvement. It was not perfect; it is not perfect, and never will be perfect, as long as the human mind is progressive. The people, in their sober second thought, will perceive that many of the conceded evils of the insurance system are due to conditions for which the insurance companies are not responsible.

"Let those who complain of the large sums expended by insurance companies to defeat oppressive legislation, remember that the insurance companies rarely spend a dollar for favorable legislation. They ask no appropriation, they claim no right of way. Let our stern moralists visit their greatest condemnation upon the legislative highwaymen who hold up these great business interests, and above all, upon an indifferent people, who clothe these highwaymen with the power to hold up their victims.

"The insurance system is sick, but too many doctors are crowding at the bedside to give any prospect of a full recovery. For this intolerable condition there is but one remedy, and that is Federal supervision. It would have come long ago but for the doubt cast by the courts upon the power of the Federal Government to supervise inter-State transactions in insurance as a species of inter-State commerce. Recent decisions of the Supreme Court unquestionably indicate a tendency of that great tribunal to modify the narrower doctrine of earlier years as to the scope of inter-State commerce.

"The central Government will one day assume the supervision of this most important and beneficent form of inter-State intercourse."

NEW WATER SUPPLY PLANS.

Cost, with Filtration Plant, $161,857,000 —To Carry Water 117 Miles.

Plans and estimates for including the Esopus watershed in the extension of New York's water supply sources were laid before the Board of Estimate yesterday by the new Board of Water Supply, composed of J. Edward Simmons, Charles N. Chadwick, and Charles A. Shaw. The plans outlined, following in essentials the report of the Burr-Hering-Freeman Commission, are declared by the Commissioners to furnish the only means of preventing a water famine in this city at an early date.

Under the estimates of the Commissioners and their engineers, it will cost the city $160,212,000 to develop a water supply of 250,000,000 gallons daily, including the cost of storage reservoirs and aqueducts. This equipment, the engineers report, could be enlarged so as to develop a supply of 500,000,000 gallons daily. The total cost of the enlarged system, including a filtration plant, would be $161,857,000.

The plans and estimates will be taken up by the Board of Estimate as soon as the annual budget is made up, which will be by Nov. 1. The approval of the State Water Commission will then be necessary.

In the plans submitted a terminal distributing reservoir is to the built at Hill View, in Yonkers, and a storage reservoir will be constructed at Kensico, capable of supplying 500,000,000 gallons a day for fifty days in case of damage to the proposed aqueduct. The plans also propose a conduit of sufficient capacity to deliver 200,000,000 gallons a day to Brooklyn Borough and a pipe line to deliver 20,000,000 gallons to Richmond, 117 miles from the head of the aqueduct. A complete development of all the watersheds under consideration, the commission adds, would result in a supply of more than 600,000,000 gallons daily.

The report is made by Chief Engineer J. Waldo Smith, with the indorsement of Consulting Engineer John R. Freeman. It recommends that for water supply purposes Esopus Creek be taken to a point near Olive Bridge; that Rondout Creek be taken to a point near Napanoch, with three small streams tributary to the Rondout; that Schoharie Creek be taken to a point near Prattsville; that Catskill Cresk be taken to a point about one mile north of East Durham, and that six small streams tributary to the aqueduct from Catskill Creek to the Ashokan reservoir also be taken.

FEUDISTS AFTER THE COSTAS.

Four of Brooklyn Butcher's Brothers Have Been Killed.

The Brooklyn police learned yesterday that the life of Gaetano Costa, the Italian hutcher who was killed perhaps by a "Black Hand" gang on Wednesday night, was a life full of bloodshed.

Costa was one of six brothers who formerly lived in Messina. About eight years ago he was defrauded of a large sum of money by the leader of a political society, and Gaetano could get no redress as the man was too powerful to attack. A few months after this the leader was murdered outside his home at night.

The six Costa brothers left Messina the next day. They came to America and scattered to all parts of the country on their arrival in New York. One was hanged at Geneva, Ill., another was murdered at Jackson Park, Ill. Two were killed in a prearranged fight in Erie, Penn., and another is missing.

This information was given to the police by a native of Messina, who knew the Costa family well, and said that he believed the brothers were all tracked down and killed by the members of an Italian society in revenge for their leader's death in Messina. The murdered man had a wife, three sons, and two daughters living in his native town. The three sons sailed from Genoa last Monday to join their father and are now on the high seas.

The safe in Costa's shop in Fourth Avenue was opened yesterday by Mrs. Loretta Purcell, who had been his cashier until six months ago, when she was married. In the safe were three Black Hand letters of the usual type. The last was dated seven months ago. This makes the police doubt that there was any "Black Hand" in the murder.

The police, late last night, had not caught the murderers.

UNSAFE BANK METHODS.

Many Sacrifice Solidity for Business, Cashier Twitchell Says.

The New York Chapter of the American Institute of Bank Clerks held its first meeting for the Winter season last night at its rooms in the New York University Building, Washington Square. Among the speakers were Arthur Kavanaugh, Assistant Cashier of the National City Bank, who told of the trials and opportunities of bank men.

H. K. Twitchell, Cashier of the Chase National Bank, spoke of the tendencies among banks to increase their business at the expense of safety. He said that when times were prosperous and money plentiful the banks adopted methods for gaining business that lead to trouble when hard times come.

"Bankers are growing to think too much of bigness instead of solidity," he said. "Let me urge upon you a close scrutiny of your deposits and see that corporations and flimsy concerns are not taking advantage of your desire to grow and leading you into paths that will prove dangerous when the reaction sets in."

CREDITORS SUE A. L. MEYER.

File a Petition in Involuntary Bankruptcy Against the Broker.

A petition in bankruptcy was filed yesterday against Arthur L. Meyer, promoter and stock broker of 27 William Street, by F. Walling. It is alleged that Mr. Meyer has committed an act of bankruptcy in having, within the last four months, transferred a portion of his property to certain creditors with intent to prefer them.

The estate of the alleged bankrupt is said to consist principally of an action brought by him in the Supreme Court of New York against W. Seward Webb to recover about $3,000,000, also of large interests in real estate in West End, N. J., and elsewhere. Judgments aggregating over $900,000 have been entered against the alleged bankrupt in the last four years. On motion of William J. Lippman, attorney for the petitioners, Judge Holt appointed Orlando P. Metcalf receiver, and fixed his bond at $5,000.

ASSASSIN'S MARK NOT MADE.

Italian Nearly Lost His Left Ear, but Doctors Sew It On.

Tony Geratti, an Italian, was within a few doors of his home, in Catharine Street, Jamaica, early yesterday, when a man stepped out from the shadow and with a razor slashed Geratti's left ear close to the head, nearly cutting it off. When found by a citizen Geratti had almost bled to death.

The doctors at first thought the ear could not be saved, but while they were deliberating Geratti recovered consciousness. When he heard that they contemplated removing his ear he became greatly agitated. In broken English he said that he had incurred the enmity of an Italian secret society, and had evidently been marked for death. Two men, he said, are assigned to do the deed. The first invariably marks his victim for identification by cutting off his left ear that the actual assassin make no mistake. Geratti pleaded with the doctors to save his ear. The doctors sewed the ear back.

LEONARD TO FIGHT CHARGE.

Bank Messenger Who Took $369,000 Will Plead He Did a Service.

A second indictment was returned by the Grand Jury yesterday against Harry A. Leonard, the City National Bank messenger, who contends that he robbed that institution of $269,000 worth of bonds by means of a forged check "just to show how easily it could be done." The charge this time is grand larceny in the first degree.

The report that Leonard would plead guilty to the first indictment for forgery in the second degree and get off with a term at Elmira Reformatory has not come true. The present intention of Abraham Levy, the young man's counsel, seems to be to fight the charges with a hope of winning on the plea that his client really did the community a service.

LEITER PHILANTHROPIC IN THE POWER POOL

Tried to Fish Judson Out of Hole, He Says.

FIXED STOCK PRICES AT WILL

Could Have Made $200,000, He Says, If Judson Had Held On— Lost "a Barrel."

Joseph Leiter, who is a co-defendant with Joseph H. Hoadley and Cyrus Field Judson in a suit brought in the Supreme Court by Franklin, Scott & Co., brokers, to recover $65,800 which the plaintiffs allege they lost through the collapse of the International Power Company pool on April 30, 1902, was cross-examined before Justice Amend yesterday. Mr. Leiter has testified that he lost "a barrel of money" in the pool.

On Monday Leiter on direct cross-examination spent the day in the witness chair describing the inner workings of the pool and the methods by which the stock was inflated until the final crash. Leiter, Hoadley, and Judson have not been on good terms since, and Leiter's explanation of their business relations proved a revelation.

Just before the cass was adjourned yesterday, after Leiter had concluded his testimony, his lawyer, Anson McCook Beard was put on the stand and testified that Lawyer Mooney had promised to have the case against Leiter dismissed at the trial if Leiter would help the plaintiffs in their suit against Hoadley.

Leiter was called to the stand yesterday. After Edmund L. Mooney, counsel for the plaintiff, had called upon Hoadley to produce a memorandum, which he declared was in Hoadley's possession, and which contained an agreement as to how the pool should be put through, Hoadley did not produce the paper. Lawyer Beard of Leiter's counsel called Lawyer Mooney to the stand and asked him if the memorandum was not already in his possession. The witness said it was not. Mr. Leiter, as soon as he took the stand, declared that he had not seen the agreement since it was drawn up in Hoadley's office.

Was the Only Pool Agreement.

"The paper," said Mr. Leiter, "referred to the shares bought by Judson while we were abroad, which formed the basis, with the Cramp shares, of our pool agreement, and that was the only pool agreement that existed."

Leiter said he was actuated by philanthropic motives in "fishing Judson out of the hole" he had got into by purchasing the Cramp stock while they were in Europe.

The only pool which ever existed between Judson, Hoadley, and himself, Leiter reiterated, was the 1,180-share pool, consisting of the 600 shares thrown by the Cramps on the market and the 580 afterward turned over to Hoadley.

"Is it true," asked Juror 9, "that you put the prices of stock up or down just as you pleased?"

Fixed Prices of the Stock.

"Certainly," was the reply.

Mr. Mooney wanted to know why, if the witness and Hoadley each owned half of the 6,900 shares in the pool he admitted existed between him and Hoadley, he had agreed to let Judson have a third of that stock.

Leiter again said that arrangement was made on Hoadley's suggestion, and that the pool was closed on Dec. 11, 1901.

"The amount coming to each of the three of you at that time was about $125,000?"

"Yes."

"And by April 29, 1902, these 6,900 shares became worth about $1,500,000?"

"Yes; for about two minutes," put in Mr. Graham, attorney for Hoadley.

Could Have Made $200,000.

Leiter said a profit of $200,000 could have been made if Judson had held his stock until it reached the highest market quotation.

Leiter said that, although the pool had terminated, the matter could not be wound up until the stock had been actually delivered to him and a balance struck.

"That stock," Leiter said, "belonged to Hoadley and me, and was stolen by Judson, and a balance between Hoadley and myself could not be struck until we saw what we could recover from Judson."

"But you said you had a profit on this pool of $125,000. Is not this the same stock Hoadley told you had been sold at that profit?"

Never Got a Cent.

"Yes. But Judson promised to pay for it, but instead sold and converted it. I never got a cent out of it, and Hoadley never got a cent either."

Mr. Beard, counsel for Mr. Leiter, then took the stand. He told of speaking with Judson about the case he had in the office of Nicoll, Anable & Lindsay in October, 1903, and also of a conversation he had with Lawyer Mooney in the latter's office.

In the conversation he said Mr. Mooney agreed to have the complaint against Mr. Leiter dismissed at the trial, providing he would help him in suing Hoadley. This statement appeared to ruffle Lawyer Mooney.

The case will be continued to-day.

GAS PRESSURE SUITS.

Suits have been instituted by the city against the gas companies of Manhattan for recovery of pressure penalties, under the Stevens act, which fixes 2½ inches as the maximum and 1 inch as the minimum pressure on the mains. The suits amount to $50,000, and the largest, for $18,000, is against the Mutual. The Standard, New Amsterdam, and Branch 6 of the Consolidated are the other companies sued.

Herman J. Stiefel, head of the Bureau for the Collection of Penalties in the Corporation Counsel's office, is in charge of the suits. The Stevens law, which went into effect on July 1, provides a penalty of $1,000 a day for companies failing to keep up the required pressure. Dr. Love, who made tests for the Department of Water Supply, Gas, and Electricity, reported that the pressure on the Mutual mains was regularly in excess of the legal maximum; that the Consolidated mains were in the same state half the time, and that the pressure maintained by the New Amsterdam was too high two-thirds of the time.

The suits are for the first eighteen days in July, and are more in the nature of test actions than an attempt to recover full penalties, which, under the Love report, would amount to about $300,000.

TAKES NEWBURGER'S COURT.

Judge McMahon Praises and Congratulates His Retiring Associate.

Judge McMahon took charge yesterday of Part I. of General Sessions, where Judge Newburger was sitting when he resigned to accept the Democratic nomination for a Supreme Court Justiceship. This part is the Court of Pleas and Sentences and gets most of the work. In order to take up this task, Judge McMahon adjourned Part II., where he has been trying cases this month. In discharging the jurors he referred to his resigned colleague in this fashion:

"In adjourning this part, I want to add that Judge Newburger's associates wish him success. I doubt if ever any one who ever sat on this bench, now the oldest in the United States, surpassed Judge Newburger in judicial temperament, judicial fairness, or judicial learning. He has all that goes to make a Judge impartial and beloved, and I am sure that all who have been associated with him hitherto share with me the sentiments and wish him good luck in the newer and broader fields he is about to enter."

TEACHER DIES IN SCHOOL.

2,400 Pupils March Past Miss Wiley's Body on the Stairs.

Miss Julia S. Wiley, a teacher in Public School No. 140, in East Broadway, died suddenly of heart disease yesterday on the stairs in the school building.

More than 1,000 boys, who were taking part in the fire drill which is practiced every week by the 2,400 pupils of the school, marched past as Miss Wiley lay on the stairs, and did not break ranks. When she fell two of the boys from her own department tried to support her, and when they realized her serious condition ran for a physician.

An ambulance was called from Gouverneur Hospital, but when the surgeon arrived Miss Wiley was dead. The school was then closed for the day.

Miss Wiley had been a teacher in the schools of this city for twenty-one years. Her home was in Stratford Road, Flatbush.

Policeman Right to Kill Him.

Coroner Goldenkranz held an inquest yesterday into the death of Jacob Kline of 120 East Third Street, who was shot by Patrolman Miller of the Fifth Street Station, after Kline had knocked the patrolman down with a blackjack in resisting arrest. The Corpner, after hearing the testimony, instructed the jury that the homicide was justifiable and the jury so found.

FLAMMER IS NAMED; JEROME TURNED DOWN

Ex-Magistrate the Republican Choice for District Attorney.

CONVENTION VOTE, 237 TO 9

Some Protests, but Most of the Friendly Delegates Stayed Away—First Speech by Ivins.

These were the nominations made by the Republican Borough and County Conventions at the Murray Hill Lyceum last night:

Supreme Court Justices—MORTIMER C. ADDOMS, GEORGE L. INGRAHAM, JOSEPH E. NEWBURGER.
Judge of General Sessions—OTTO A. ROSALSKY.
District Attorney—CHARLES A. FLAMMER.
Sheriff—AMBROSE O. NEAL.
County Clerk—FREDERICK L. MARSHALL.
Register—HENRY A. C. ANDERSON.
Borough President—JAMES J. DUFFY.
Coroners—GUSTAVE SCHOLER, I. PIERCE OBENDORFER, HENRY CAREY, ANTONIO PISANI.

The only incidents of the conventions which aroused enthusiasm were the rejection of Mr. Jerome by an overwhelming vote and the appearance of William M. Ivins, the Republican candidate for Mayor, on the platform.

Mr. Jerome received 9 votes, against 237 cast for Charles A. Flammer, his opponent.

All of the nominations were made without a contest except those for District Attorney and Justice of the Supreme Court to succeed Henry A. Gildersleeve. For Judge Gildersleeve's place the organization candidate was Judge Joseph E. Newburger. Justice Gildersleeve was placed in nomination by C. N. Bovee, ex-President of the West Side Republican Club, who, in a forcible speech declared that in refusing to renominate a Judge who had made a creditable record on the bench the Republicans were repudiating the principle of non-partisanship in judicial nominations, to which the party had long been committed. Mr. Bovee's appeal was seconded by others, but failed to make much of an impression, Newburger receiving 155 votes against 38 cast for Gildersleeve.

In his speech to the convention, Mr. Ivins, the Republican Mayoralty candidate, aroused considerable enthusiasm by attacking Tammany Hall. He declared he never had a boss in his life, and never intended to have one. In Mr. McClellan's candidacy, Mr. Ivins said, Mr. Murphy was offering the citizens of New York a "gold brick."

Borough Convention Lifeless.

When William Halpin called the Borough Convention to order at 8:40 o'clock there were just twelve spectators in the gallery. There was no band and the enthusiasm which usually marks such gatherings was lacking. Charles K. Lexow was chosen Chairman. He used a potato masher from the restaurant down stairs as a gavel. John S. Shea, leader of the Twentieth District, was made Secretary. Then nominations for Borough President were called.

Lawrence B. Cohen, a boyish looking delegate from Mr. Halpin's district, nominated James J. Duffy. Mr. Cohen said that Mr. Duffy was one of the most prominent contractors in New York, and a man of integrity. There being no other nominations Mr. Duffy was selected by acclamation. Mr. Halpin looked pleased. Names for Coroner were voted upon together.

"En bloc," said a delegate.

"Exactly, en bloc, as the Frenchman behind me suggests," said Mr. Halpin amid general laughter.

This ended that convention, and the County Convention was called to order. Senator Nathaniel A. Elsberg was chosen for Temporary Chairman. In his address he said:

"I never felt prouder of the Republican Party as a party of integrity and courage than I do to-night."

Ex-Assemblyman Bainbridge Colby named for the Supreme Court Mortimer C. Addoms, who has just been appointed by Gov. Higgins to succeed the late Justice Van Brunt. Edward Lauterbach named Justice George L. Ingraham to succeed himself, saying that it had been the custom of the Republican Party to ignore partisan considerations in the making of judicial nominations, and, as Justice Ingraham had made a splendid Judge, it was fitting that the Republicans should indorse him. Both were nominated unanimously.

When Senator Elsberg called for nominations for the vacancy to be created by the expiration of Justice Gildersleeve's term, he avoided mentioning Justice Gildersleeve's name, it being the purpose of the organization to substitute Judge Newburger for Justice Gildersleeve.

Samuel S. Strasbourger, leader of the Thirty-first District, and one of the Tax Commissioners under the McClellan administration, placed Judge Newburger in nomination.

In protesting against the rejection of Justice Gildersleeve, C. N. Bovee of the Twenty-first District called attention to the fact that the Bar Association has indorsed Justice Gildersleeve, and said he thought this a very bad time to depart from the old Republican principle of disregarding partisanship in such matters. James M. Gifford seconded the nomination.

When the roll was called, Judge Newburger received 155 votes, to 38 cast for Justice Gildersleeve, and he was declared the nominee.

In nominating Otto Rosalsky for Judge

GREAT SEA SWEEPS LINER.

28 in the Campania's Steerage Hurt, 10 of Them Seriously.

Twenty-eight of the incoming Cunard liner Campania's steerage passengers were injured, ten of them severely, last Wednesday, by a giant wave that the liner shipped, when she was about 1,000 miles east of Sandy Hook.

This news was received by Vernon H. Brown, General Agent in New York of the Cunard Company, yesterday afternoon.

The information came by Marconi wireless from the Campania through the station at Siasconsett, Mass. The dispatch was signed by Capt. Warr of the Campania. The message simply said that the sea had been shipped, and that twenty-eight of the steerage passengers had been struck. All were at least painfully injured.

The weather was probably clear, for otherwise so large a number of steerage passengers would not have been on deck. The Campania was proceeding at full speed, when suddenly the great comber swept over the decks. It struck the Campania broadside on the port side aft, sweeping over the steerage deck with terrific force, knocking the passengers in all directions, and throwing those who weren't hit into a panic.

Many of the injured lay stunned on the deck after the wave had passed over. Those who were not unconscious began to cry for help, which came quickly from all sides.

Dr. Francis Verdon, the Campania's surgeon, was among the first of the liner's officers to reach the deck, and was soon reinforced by all the doctors on the passenger list of the steamship.

The more seriously injured were quickly removed to the ship's hospital, where their injuries were attended to, while those not so badly hurt were taken to their own quarters and made as comfortable as possible.

The Campania's saloon accommodations were crowded and a great many of the passengers were on the promenade and sun decks when the great sea curled over the steerage deck below. The saloon and second cabin accommodations are all in the superstructure, high above the steerage deck, and as Capt. Warr did not mention that any of the cabin passengers were hurt, Mr. Brown believes that the wave struck only the steerage deck.

The accident is one of the most serious that has ever befallen a Cunarder, as the vessels of this line, one of the oldest and most reliable in the transatlantic trade, have been famous for years for the good fortune that characterizes the voyages of its boats. The Campania is a 13,000-ton twenty-knot craft, and is a sister ship of the Lucania.

The Campania arrived off Sandy Hook at midnight, and will dock about 8 o'clock this morning.

BATTERY DASHES OVER CLIFF.

One Artilleryman Killed and Many Hurt at Fort Riley.

JUNCTION CITY, Kan., Oct. 13.—Private Albert Laste of the Twenty-ninth Battery of Field Artillery was killed during target practice at Fort Riley to-day. Privates John Connelly and G. J. Simpson of the same battery are thought to be fatally injured, while Privates Leary, Norman, Lancaster, and Cline are in a hospital with broken limbs and internal injuries. Several other artillerymen were hurt. The casualties were caused by frightened horses galloping over a precipice with riders and limbers.

The Twenty-ninth Battery is one of the six making up the first provisional regiment of field artillery at target practice. The battery's guns had been placed and its eight limbers, loaded with ammunition, were at the rear with six horses hitched to each limber. The drivers had dismounted. When the battery was ready for firing a large red flag was run up on a staff as a signal to the range party at the targets to get out of range of the guns.

The wind blew the flag out in the faces of the horses and they stampeded at once. Some drivers succeeded in getting into the saddle, others were dragged, but most of the drivers were left behind. The horses dashed over the cliff and went down in a mass with their riders. The Twenty-ninth Battery belongs at Fort Leavenworth and came to Fort Riley in July for target practice. Privats Laste enlisted in the service last January. His widow and father live in New York.

WOMAN ON RACE SUICIDE.

Enfranchise the Sex and All Will Be Well, She Says.

DETROIT, Oct. 13.—Race suicide was one of the principal topics at the district conference of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union closed to-night at Wyandotte, a suburb of Detroit. Dr. Mary A. Willard of Detroit declared that the most extreme type of race suicide was the investing of ignorant foreigners with the right to vote while the intelligent women of the country were denied this privilege. She added:

"I will not attempt to deny that few children are born into American homes, for it is a lamentable fact, too patent to be contradicted. Life is becoming too strenuous for the modern woman and she has not vitality enough.

"Give women the ballot and they will remove some of the temptations from the path of men, making it easier for them to live pure, strong, healthful lives, rendering them fit to continue the propagation of the race. And they will themselves become invigorated and ready to again resume the burdens under which they have fainted."

No Hazing at West Point.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Gen. A. L. Mills, Superintendent of the Military Academy, in his annual report says that hazing has shown no symptom of reappearing. New cadets have been properly treated by cadets of the upper classes not only when off duty, but when on duty.

For Injury at Initiation—$2,900.

GENEVA, N. Y., Oct. 13.—For injuries received at an initiation ceremony in the Hopewell Tent of the Knights of Maccabees two years ago, Oscar Thompson was to-day awarded damages of $2,900 against the Supreme Tent of the order.

AUTOMOBILE WRECKED ON WAY TO CUP RACE

Hurled Into Tunnel Cut—Woman Fatally Hurt, Perhaps.

TWO TAKEN TO HOSPITALS

Owner, Who Was Taking Party to Vanderbilt Races, Took Thirty-third Street by Mistake.

An automobile bound for the Vanderbilt Cup races and containing at least three men and three women, perhaps more, plunged into the southern approach of the Fourth Avenue trolley tunnel at Thirty-third Street at 1:30 o'clock this morning.

The automobile fell about ten feet and was wrecked.

Two of the women in the party were taken to hospitals, and one of them, the doctors say, is fatally hurt.

The police were busy this morning trying to find out the names of the party. The owner of the machine is Charles Gelhaus, who lives at the southeast corner of Aqueduct and Tremont Avenues. He is an experienced chauffeur. He told the police that he agreed several days ago to take the party to the Vanderbilt contest on Long Island.

One of the women, who was taken to Bellevue Hospital, is a Miss Bruner. She is the one who, it is expected, will die.

One woman was taken to the house of Dr. Louis Stearns in West Thirty-fourth Street. Her name had not been learned early this morning. One of the occupants of the machine was Miss Alice Hudson, who is known at the Criterion in Broadway because she takes her meals there, but whose home address is not known there.

The automobile party started from the Criterion by arrangement. At the hotel early this morning it was said that there were eight in the big machine when it started, with Gelhaus steering.

Gelhaus told the police—he was arrested later charged with criminal negligence and reckless driving—that he went down Broadway to what he thought was Thirty-fourth Street and then turned east.

As a matter of fact he went to Thirty-third Street. Thinking he had a clear road he turned on nearly all the speed he had in order to make the run to the East Thirty-fourth Street Ferry.

"The first thing I knew," he said, "we had hit the railing at the edge of the tunnel cut."

The railing broke and the machine went down with a crash. Two of the women lay stunned. Two of the men got up and soon left the tunnel cut. Gelhaus stayed by his wrecked machine.

The police early this morning said that one of the occupants of the machine was Charles Splitdorf, a manufacturer of automobiles, and that another was Blanche Siebert, who lived at the Criterion.

The woman who was taken to Bellevue is about 30 years old and very dark. She wore a light automobile coat and many jewels.

The latest list the police got of those in the party included Edward Hubbell of Toledo, Lillie Harris, and Violet Brunner. Miss Brunner, the police then said, was the one in Bellevue.

NINETEEN CARS IN RACE.

Cylinders of Tracy's Machine Cracked —W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., in Danger.

Automobile critics, and there was a host of them, at the Garden City Hotel last night predicted with confidence that the fastest time ever made in a long-distance automobile race would be seen to-day in the Vanderbilt Cup contest. Among those who spoke with assurance were representatives from the Automobile Clubs of France, Italy, and Germany, in addition to many Americans who have seen some of the most famous automobile races of Europe. One heard French, German, and Italian spoken in the corridors of the hotel almost as freely as English. So much automobile enthusiasm permeating so many hundreds of persons, representing all conditions and walks of life, has never been witnessed in America before.

No one expects that less than sixty miles an hour will be made throughout the entire 283 miles of the race. From that figure the predictions range to sixty-five miles. George Heath, the holder of the cup, said yesterday that with the course in such admirable condition as it is now from sixty-two to sixty-three miles an hour would be necessary to win. If sixty-two miles is beaten it will be a notable triumph for speed racing in America, as the honor of holding the fastest automobile race in the world will rest here.

Hemery, one of the favorites for to-day's race, made the high average of a trifle over sixty-two miles an hour in the 373-mile race of the Ardennes Circuit this season, the best time thus far for a long-distance contest. The best average time ever made in the historic Gordon Bennett Cup race was 54 miles an hour, done by Jenatzy in 1903, when he won the cup with his German Mercedes car. Dingley, with his Pope-Toledo, averaged nearly 56½ miles three weeks ago over the same course that will be used to-day, but he only made four laps, whereas the conditions to-day call for ten circuits of the course. When Heath won the Vanderbilt Cup for France last year his average was 52.2 miles.

Hemery, one of the shining lights of the French team, who has been one of the top-notch favorites, was looked upon somewhat doubtfully last night, as it was reported that in the early morning practice he had slightly cracked a cylinder of his Darracq car. The report was denied by the Darracq managere, but it was admitted that he had some trouble. Whatever it was, repairs were hastily made and his racing car was weighed at Albertson's before noon, tipping the scales at 2,060 pounds, next to the lighest of the lot. Wagner's car, a Darracq similar to Hemery's, was the lighteet, weighing but 2,028 pounds. The maximum weight allowed in the conditions of the race is 2,204 pounds.

The most serious accident of the day occurred to Joe Tracy's 120 horse power Locomobile. He was trying a new sprocket, and ran at too high a speed, EXPLOSIONS AT THE CORONET.

Gas Meters Blow Up—Great Excitement in Apartment House.

The stone steps leading to the entrance of the Coronet apartment house at Fifty-eighth Street and Sixth Avenue, were blown away late yesterday afternoon by an explosion. A second explosion that followed immediately wrecked the florist's store of Thomas Young and the store of Albert Papa, a fruit dealer.

The tenants of the twelve-story building put their heads out of the window to see what had happened with the first explosion, and were showered with fragments of fruit from Papa's store and ross leaves from the florist's.

Henry J. Morton, a private detective, was passing the building. He was knocked down by the first explosion. When he got up he ran and sent in a fire alarm. The coming of the engines and the report that the building had been dynamited brought so great a crowd that the reserves from the East Fifty-first Stree Police Station were called out. Then the police set about to find what had caused the explosions. Two gas meters under the stairway had exploded. Just why was not learned.

SHAW READY TO QUIT RACE?

Iowans Hear of a Business Place for Him in This City.

Special to The New York Times.

DENISON, Iowa, Oct. 13.—Secretary Shaw is putting his business affairs in shape so that his presence will no longer be needed here. Friends of Mr. Shaw have been informed that it is his intention, on retiring from the Cabinet next February, to accept the Presidency of a large New York Loan and Trust Company.

B. D. McMahon, a well-known Iowan, has taken an intereet in the business with which Mr. Shaw is identified. Mr. Shaw has denied the rumors of his removal from Iowa. Persons close to him admit that it was because he did not want to abandon his Presidential ambitions. They say that he is making a careful canvass of his prospects, so that he may determine, by the time his Cabinet career is ended, whether he shall remain in the race.

He recognizee that his only hope is in being Iowa's candidate. Politicians say Mr. Shaw's candidacy has not been as successful as he hoped.

GALLANT CAR CONDUCTORS.

In St. Louis They Won't Take Fare from Pretty Women, Mrs. Fox Says.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 13.—Mrs. R. S. Fox of Chicago, a young widow who is so pretty that she attracts attention wherever she goes, has spent eight weeks in St. Louis and has ridden on street cars six or eight times a day, but has never paid car fare since she has been here. She is always ready to pay, but the conductors never come for her fare. They are very kind and courteous, and assist her in getting on and off, and sometimes smile pleasantly as she departs.

"In Chicago," she said, "it is very different. There the conductors hold you up almost before you get on the car. They are so vigilant it is next to impossible for a woman to save pin money out of her car fare. Here, I understand, quite a number of ladies make a daily practice of avoiding payment of car fare."

ROCKEFELLER KINDEST MAN.

Gatekeeper at His Cleveland Home Says So—Takes Children Riding.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 13.—Patrick Lynch, gatekeeper at Forest Hill, is mourning the departure of John D. Rockefeller.

"I wish the master were going to be here the year round," he said to-day. "He is the only real friend I have in the world. He is the kindest, best, and the most modest and humble man I have ever known. He treats me like one of the family. In England I have worked for royalty and there are none of them as good as Mr. Rockefeller.

"People generally don't know what a kind heart the master has. Just a little while before he left he picked up a little colored boy and took him riding in the automobile. He said when he bought the automobile that he couldn't get one large enough. He wants to give every one a ride. He often gets little, dirty, foreign waifs from the sidewalk and takes them out. All the time he talks to them and asks questions. He certainly is the kindest man in the world."

UNION LEAGUE CLUB MAY QUIT FIFTH AVENUE

Executive Committee Instructed to Look for Another Site.

THIS FOR BUSINESS REASONS

The Club's Present Ground Lease Can Be Sold for Enough to Build a New Home.

The Union League Club has taken action which many members of that organization believe will lead to its removal in the near future from its present clubhouse at the northeast corner of Fifth Avenue and Thirty-ninth Street and to the erection of a new building on another site.

At the monthly meeting of the club on Thursday evening a resolution was adopted instructing the Executive Committee to make inquiries for a new location and to have determined the value of the unexpired term of the club's ground lease on the site of the present clubhouse.

That the Union League, perhaps the most widely known organization of its kind in the city on account of its social and political prominence, should see fit even to consider abandoning its present Fifth Avenue site, will probably cause greater surprise than any other club removal of recent years. The change, however, is one dictated almost solely by business considerations, and it is said the resolution introduced at Thursday evening's meeting met with little opposition.

It was pointed out that the club could probably realize enough from the sale of its ground lease to erect a handsome new clubhouse on a somewhat less conspicuous and less valuable site, and own its home free and clear.

Estimates of the present value of the ground lease, by those who have considered the removal project, range from $750,000 to $1,000,000. This value attaches to the lease by reason of the fact that the club was fortunate enough to secure a renewal of it for a term of forty-two years in 1902, or just before the beginning of the invasion of Fifth Avenue by high-class retail trade, a movement which has doubled values between Thirty-fourth and Forty-second Streets. The plot on which the clubhouse stands, fronting 85 feet on Fifth Avenue and about 155 feet on Thirty-ninth Street, is owned by the Bixby estate. The club built the house in 1881, on a ground lease for twenty-one years. Since the renewal of the lease, three years ago, the coming of Altman, Tiffany & Co. and the Gorham Company to this part of Fifth Avenue, has brought about great speculation and a scale of land prices equaled only in the financial district.

It is not unlikely that the Union League members got their idea from the sale of the New York Club property at the southwest corner of Fifth Avenue and Thirty-fifth Street. Several months ago that organization yielded to the temptation to give up a site which had grown too valuable for club purposes and sold its property to a firm of real estate operators for $1,100,000.

Until the Executive Committee of the Union League Club has gone over the matters covered by Thursday night's resolution, little consideration will be given to the selection of a new site. The belief is, however, that Fifth Avenue itself will probably be eliminated in the search for another site, and the example of other clubs followed, in taking property on a side street, close to Fifth Avenue, where all the practical advantages of a site on the fashionable thoroughfare may be had, at a fraction of Fifth Avenue prices. Of all the club removals of recent years, even those of the strongest and wealthiest organizations, that of the Union Club has been the only one in which Fifth Avenue has not been abandoned.

If the Union League acts favorably upon the proposition to move, the changing of its home will be the third in the club's history. The organization dates back to 1863. It had its origin among certain members of what was known as the United States Sanitary Commission, a body of patriotic citizens who during the civil war, by raising funds and in other ways, sought to relieve the hardships of soldiers at the front and to promote the Union cause generally. On Jan. 15, 1863, a proposal was sent out, signed by Wolcott Gibbs, Henry W. Bellowe, Cornelius R. Agnew, and others, to form the National Club, "to cultivate a profound National devotion."

The organization took permanent form about two months later under the name of "The Union League."

From May, 1863, until April, 1868, the club occupied the house at 26 East Seventeenth Street, and while there in 1865 it was incorporated. In 1868 it leased a building at Madison Avenue and Twenty-sixth Street, facing Madison Square, which was occupied until 1881, when the present clubhouse at Fifth Avenue and Thirty-ninth Street was built. This building is said to have cost about $400,000, and has been very generally regarded, architecturally, as one of the most attractive structures of its class in the city. The interior decorations were designed by John La Farge and Tiffany.

The club is famous for its library and art gallery. The former is said to be the most complete and valuable of club libraries, while its exhibitions of paintings have always been matters of interest in art circles.

Organized in war times, with strong Union tendencies, the club has always been a strong exponent of the principles of the Republican party—in fact has become the nucleus of a certain branch of that party in this city frequently referred to as "Union League Republicane."

Its Presidents, from Robert B. Minturn in 1863 down to Cornelius N. Bliss at the present time, have been almost without exception men of national reputation. Included in the list are John Jay, Joseph H. Choate, Hamilton Fish, William M. Evarts, Horace Porter, Chauncey M. Depew, and Elihu Root.

Democrats Declined to Run.

Special to The New York Times.

GENEVA, N. Y., Oct. 13.—The Democrats of the town, not city, of Geneva will have no ticket in the field at the coming election. They held their caucus last Saturday and nominated a full ticket, but all except one of the candidates declined.

JAIL DEADLY FOR THREE.

Warden, Wife, and Daughter Have Died in Three Months.

The Wardens and others at Ludlow Street Jail began to feel somewhat uneasy last night when they heard that May Sullivan, the eighteen-year-old daughter of Warden Thomas H. Sullivan, who died two months ago, had died of pneumonia contracted in the jail.

Sullivan contracted the disease of which he died in the jail. His wife died a short time before him in a similar way. The daughter's death is the third in the family in three months.

WHEAT BLOCKADE IN KANSAS.

Great Piles at Stations Waiting for Cars—Railways Are Helpless.

Special to The New York Times.

TOPEKA, Kan., Oct. 13.—Kansas is in the throes of a great grain blockade. Elevators are full of wheat, and at 100 stations bags are piled on the ground in no way protected from the elements. Shippers and farmers demand cars, but the railroads say they are helpless.

In addition the great corn crop will soon be harvested, and ready for shipment.

BUNCH OF PARK RUNAWAYS.

St. Regis Guest Thrown from Her Horse and a Stage Coach Bumped.

There were five runaways in Central Park yesterday, all within four hours. At 12:10 o'clock Mrs. Urlah T. Hungerford of the St. Regis Hotel was thrown from her horse at Ninety-second Street and the west bridle path. She received a fracture of the left leg.

At 12:25 o'clock a horse attached to a light runabout and driven by J. Shapiro of 132 Nassau Street became frightened on the east drive near Ninety-seventh Street and ran for three blocks before it was stopped by a policeman. Mr. Shapiro was thrown out, but was not injured.

At 3:25 a horse ridden by Miss Gertrude Arment of 56 West Thirty-third Street ran away, but was stopped before the rider was thrown. Fifteen minutes later another saddle horse, ridden by Miss Kate Wing of 85 Fifth Avenue became frightened at Eighty-sixth Street on the same road. A policeman stopped the animal after a chase of five blocks.

There was another runaway just outside the Park at 6 o'clock, in which a grocery wagon collided with a Fifth Avenue stage. The windows of the stage were smashed, but nobody was hurt.

IT WAS FRIDAY, THE 13TH.

Engine No. 1313 Killed a Man—Bridal Couple Was Not Afraid.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—The fact that this is Friday and the 13th of the month was recalled by the trainmen on the Baltimore and Ohio when engine No. 1313 ran down and killed Mrs. Maggie Murphy at Fifth and I Streets. The engine is known as the "Hoodoo," from the number of its victims.

Coincidently, two courageous young people excited the admiration of those in the Marriage License Bureau by applying for a license. Their names are Bennie I. Parker and Will Anna Smith. Each of them has a name containing exactly thirteen letters. When the clerk asked for their address, and they gave it as Carterville, Va., he gave a start as he wrote it down and saw that it contained thirteen letters. The Clerk is Williams Lemon, whose name also contains thirteen letters. It was 13 minutes after 9 o'clock when they entered the bureau. They said they were not afraid.

TO HIT STANDARD OIL HARD.

Garfield Working with Great Care on His Report for Congress.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—James R. Garfield, Commissioner of Corporations, has made it clear to some of his visitors this week that he does not propose to be tripped up on the Standard Oil investigation as he was on his Beef Trust report. The indications now are that the oil report will not be ready for Congress until late in the approaching session.

It probably will be the most voluminous report ever submitted to Congress in compliance with a resolution, and will include a history of the oil industry in the foreign field as well as in this country. Incorporated in the report will be a discussion of the transportation question which, in the opinion of the investigators, has made possible the chief abuses of the Standard Oil Company.

Car Hits Mrs. Osborn's Auto.

Mrs. Josefa Neilson Osborn, the dressmaker who for a brief period was a theatrical manager, went riding last night in an automobile brougham. On the way to her home, at 2 Rutherfurd Place, a south-bound Madison Avenue car crashed into the rear of the machine, completely demolishing it. Mrs. Osborn was thrown out and received a scalp wound. Her injury was dressed, and she was sent home in a cab.

Mercy to Hamilton's Descendant.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—On the recommendation of Acting Secretary Oliver and Gen. Bates, the President has exercised clemency in the case of First Lieutenant Louis McLane Hamilton, Fourteenth Infantry, a great-grandson of Alexander Hamilton. He had been sentenced to be dismissed from the army for violations of regulations, but will lose thirty numbers.

Through express service bet. N. Y. and Portland, Me., will be extended, leaving New York, Gd. Cent'l Stat., eastbound, at 3:02 P. M., daily, except Sunday, until and including Oct. 28th.—Adv.

SIR HENRY IRVING DIES AFTER PLAY

Seized with Syncope on Returning to Hotel from Theatre.

KNEW HE WAS NEAR HIS END

In a Speech on Wednesday He Said the Sands of His Life Were Fast Running Out.

LONDON, Saturday, Oct. 14.—The English-speaking world has suffered an irreparable loss by the sudden death last night of Sir Henry Irving, who was universally regarded as the most representative English actor of contemporary times.

Sir Henry died literally in harness. He was giving a series of farewell performances in the English provinces, and this week was playing an engagement at Bradford, appearing in several favorite rôles. On Thursday he presented "King René's daughter" and "The Bells," and appeared to be in excellent health, taking the exhausting part of Matthias in the latter play with all the vigor of his youth.

Last night, before an enthusiastic audience, he took the title rôle in his own stage adaptation of Tennyson's "Becket," playing with marked success.

After the performance Sir Henry returned to his hotel, reaching his rooms at 11:30 o'clock, when it was observed that he was in great pain. Physicians were immediately summoned, but before they could arrive Sir Henry was seized with an attack of syncope and expired within a few minutes, without having uttered a word. Bram Stoker, who had been his immediate manager for many years, and a few other intimates, were present.

"Very terrible news. Sir Henry Irving had an attack of syncope after returning from the theatre to the hotel to-night and died suddenly."

To the last moment of his life Sir Henry Irving's heart was in the work to which he had devoted his career—the raising of the standard of his art. On Wednesday he was entertained at luncheon in the Bradford Town Hall, and the Mayor presented to him an address from his admirers.

In replying to the address, Sir Henry Irving spoke of himself as one the sands of whose life were fast running out, but none then present had the slightest idea that the end would come so soon. He proceeded in his reply eloquently to advocate the establishment of theatres by the municipalities. He said:

"I believe that by this means the standard of the true drama, as distinguished from miscellaneous entertainments, would be successfully upheld. Money is spent like water for all kinds of philanthropic and educational objects, but who among you ever dreams of endowing the theatre?

"I am sure the time will come when you will regard the theatre as necessary to a liberal education and be prepared to consider any reasonable suggestions for the extension of its legitimate influence. It may be that in years to come our countrymen will scarcely understand how in our times so potent an instrument of good or ill as the stage was left entirely outside the sphere of public administration."

The Times, in an appreciation of Sir Henry, says:

"Henry Irving was a great actor, but his greatness sprung from a different source than that of any other actor who can be mentioned. The success of his famous predecessors lay in their power to affect the emotions of their audiences through the strength of their own emotions.

"Irving was not an emotional actor or one who touched the emotions. His greatness lay in his brain, not in his feelings, and his appeal was to the brain and not to the emotions. Wherever there was room for his brain to work he was at home, while anything approaching the commonplace, the full-blooded, or the sentimental, left his peculiar gifts unemployed."

SIR HENRY'S CAREER.

Half a Century on the Stage—Some of His Great Productions.

For more than thirty years Henry Irving enjoyed the distinction of being the foremost figure on the English stage, a position justified by his achievements in the dual capacity of stage manager and actor. His career was an example of strong purpose nobly conceived, bravely maintained, and courageously battled for in the face of bitter discouragement. None of his predecessors ever did so much to raise the status of the player in the public estimation, and his influence for good on dramatic art and the esteem in which its followers are held can hardly be overestimated. Knighted by Queen Victoria, he was the first actor in any country to receive such an honor. He numbered as his personal friends the most famous men of Europe and America. And all of his success may be traced to the force of his own personal character, for he had no advantages of birth, no family influence, and never received before beginning a business career more than a very ordinary school training.

The time was ripe in London for the appearance of an actor of the first rank, when, on Oct. 6, 1866, Henry Irving acted Dorincourt in "The Belle's Stratagem" at the St. James's Theatre. This was not actually Irving's "first appearance" in London, for as long before as March, 1859, he had been exploited in a transpontine theatre, the Surrey, for a whole week. But that remote and obscure engagement was not on the records, and Henry Irving was a welcome "new-comer" in the eyes of those of the London "first nighters" who knew a good actor when they saw him. His good impression he made was deepened when, a month later, he acted Rawdon Scudamore, a remorseless villain, in Dion Boucicault's

"Hunted Down; or, The Two Lives of Mary Leigh."

Although still not looked upon as the coming man, Irving's reputation now grew. Before his engagement at the St. James's ended he acted Harry Dornton in Holcroft's "Road to Ruin." Charles Surface, Robert Macaire, and O'Hooligan in a new piece called "The Rapid Thaw." Thereafter he filled a brief engagement in Paris in the Theatre des Italiens in the company of E. A. Sothern, and, returning to London, found employment in the Queen's Theatre. Here, in December, 1867, he acted Petruchio to the Katherine of the beautiful and already much-talked-of actress, Ellen Terry, in Garrick's condensation of "The Taming of the Shrew."

There is a story to the effect that about this time Charles Dickens was much impressed by the young man's acting in the trifling part in "The Lancashire Lass," but the tale lacks verification. As a matter of fact, it was not until he played, with much finish and power, Mr. Chevenix in "Uncle Dick's Darling" at the Gaiety Theatre, where Toole was the Uncle Dick, that he made the impression that led to his first "chance" in London.

At the Vaudeville Theatre, opened in 1870, with Albery's "The Two Roses," Irving was cast for the part Digby Grant. He made a profound impression. London now began to talk about him.

About this time a veteran American manager, Col. Henry L. Bateman, who had been successful with his daughter Kate at the Lyceum in "Leah the Forsaken," took the house for the exploitation of another daughter, whom he brought forward in the play known to playgoers in this country as "Fanchon." He engaged Irving as leading man at a salary of $75 a week. On Sept. 11, 1871, the play was produced with Isabell Bateman as Fanchon and Henry Irving as Landry. It failed. Then followed Albery's dramatization of Pickwick, in which Mr. Irving played Alfred Jingle with great volubility and picturesqueness. It failed as signally as its predecessor. A translation of the French play "Le Juif Polonais" had come into the possession of Col. Bateman, and Irving, who had read it, was convinced that he could make something of it. It was a forlorn hope, but Bateman agreed to give it a trial. The play, after some hesitation, was produced on Nov. 25, 1871, under Irving's supervision and according to his ideas. Its English title was "The Bells," and no one who has any knowledge whatsoever of Irving's career is unfamiliar with the fact that it served to establish the actor. His portrayal of Mathias was at once recognized as the work of a master artist. The successor to Kean and Kemble had arrived and was welcomed with thunders of applause. Henry Irving's weird and powerful Mathias served to crowd the Lyceum for a season.

The novitiate of the actor who had thus triumphed in the capital in his thirty-fourth year had been long and arduous. He was of a Somersetshire family named Brodribb and was born at Keinton-Mandeville, near Glastonbury, Feb. 6, 1838. He was christened John Henry. His parents were poor, and after the death of his father his mother, who was of Cornish stock, named Behenna, took him to the mining regions, where he grew up in the house of his Aunt Pemberthy. In his youth, however, he got some schooling in London in the establishment of Dr. Pinches in Lombard Street. At the age of fourteen he was employed as a messenger boy by the Thackers, Indian merchants in Newgate Street, but he was fonder of plays than of business, and spent all his spare sixpences to see Phelps in Shakespeare's characters at Sadlers Wells. He got a chance to act Wilfrid in "The Iron Chance" with amateurs, and thereupon made up his mind to go on the stage. Phelps, to whom he was introduced, did his best to discourage him, and his mother was bitterly opposed to his ambition. But he continued his studies and finally, through a letter from his elocution teacher, Hoskins, got an invitation to act in Sunderland. The theatre was new, and it was opened Sept. 29, 1856, with Bulwer-Lytton's "Richelieu; or, the Conspiracy," in which the young actor, who was known then for the first time as Henry Irving, spoke, in the character of the Duc d'Orleans, the first words.

His second engagement was at the Edinburgh Theatre, where he remained long enough to act no fewer than 350 parts, and where his salary at first was 30s. a week. By 1859 he had risen so far in his profession that he played Claude Melnotte and other leading rôles, but when he reached London that year the best part he could get was Siward in "Macbeth." He made one or two other trials with so little success that he returned to Scotland and accepted an engagement at Glasgow, subsequently going to Manchester, where in four years he became a favorite at the Theatre Royal, retiring from there with his farewell benefit in Hamlet, June, 1865.

Coming down to Henry Irving's history after his success as Mathias, we find him appearing next in W. G. Will's master work "Charles I.," which provided opportunities for him to exhibit his ability both on the pictorial and the dramatic sides. Produced Sept. 28, 1872, "Charles I." ran until May 17, 1873, except that a few nights in the interval were given up to another play by Mr. Wills, "Eugene Aram," suggested partly by Mr. Irving's success in Mathias, and partly by his fondness for Hood's verses, which he had frequently recited. Irving's versatility came to the test during this season also in the experiment of following the play of "Charles I." with the farce "Raising the Wind."

He first acted Cardinal Richelieu in London Sept. 27, 1873, and appeared in the title rôle of Philip in a romantic play by Hamilton Aide, Feb. 27, 1874. The famous long run of "Hamlet" began Oct. 31, 1874. On St. Valentine's Day, 1875, he acted Othello for the first time. In the season of 1875-6 he played Macbeth, and in 1876-7, Richard III., with Cibber utterly discarded. His wonderful performance of Dubosc and Lescurgues in "The Lyons Mail" came in May, 1877. About a year later he acted for the first time Louis XI., one of the finest portraits in his répertoire, and one in which his supremacy has never been challenged.

When Mrs. Bateman retired from the management of the Lyceum, the lease of the house passed to Irving, who established it as the principal theatre of the English-speaking world. That position it maintained almost continuously up to about two years ago, when, after a series of misfortunes, its directors decided to turn it into a music hall, a plan which Irving fought resolutely, but in which he was defeated. His splendid production of "The Merchant of Venice" occurred at the Lyceum Nov. 1, 1879. In this the grim and powerful Shylock of Irving was combined with the loveliest Portia the modern stage has known. It is impossible to go into details with regard to all of the Irving revivals and productions during his long tenancy of the Lyceum, but some of the later years of his life were made notable by such productions as "Faust," Dec. 19, 1886; "Werner" and "Robert Macaire," October, 1888; "Macbeth," Dec. 29, 1888; "The Dead Heart," 1889-90; "Ravenswood," Sept. 20, 1890; "Henry VIII.," Jan. 5, 1892; "King Lear," Nov. 10, 1892; "Becket," Feb. 6, 1893, and in the season of 1894-5, "King Arthur," "Don Quixote," and "The Story of Waterloo."

In 1895 Irving was knighted by the Queen, and subsequently he made productions of "Cymbeline," "Richard III.," and "Mme. Sans Gene." His productions of "Robespierre" and "Dante" are well remembered. He used the last named for his last visit to America, appearing in it first at the Broadway Theatre, Oct. 27, 1903.

The American tours of Irving prior to that time were made in 1883-4, 1884-5, 1887-8, 1893-4, and 1895-6. In this city he appeared at the Star Theatre in his first three engagements, and thereafter at the house then called Abbey's, now the Knickerbocker.

In 1892 Dublin University conferred upon him the title of LL.D. He had lectured at Oxford, Harvard, and at various other seats of learning.

No other manager in any other country ever equaled Irving as a producer of drama. He was probably the best stage manager in the world, and in many of his parts was incomparable.

Sir Henry Irving was taken ill last February, when he was playing at the Theatre Royal, Wolverhampton, and was laid up in that city for three weeks. The doctors said that he had caught a severe chill and needed rest and quiet. The Spring tour was abandoned and the company returned to London.

Miss Maude Fealy, who was the leading lady with Sir Henry at the time, in an interview on her return to London, said:

"I was very much upset by Sir Henry's haggard appearance and general weakness. He appeared to have no strength left, and looked like a man who had worked himself out. The strain of working in six heavy plays was too much for him.

"The last night he appeared it was terrible to see him on the stage and watch the heroic efforts that he made to fight against his sickness. It was a victory of the mind over the body, and Sir Henry conquered for the time being, but then he broke down, and I am afraid he will never be a strong man again.

"All his thoughts were for the poorer members of the company who would lose a twelve weeks' engagement. He instructed Mr. Stoker to give every one two weeks' salary and the railway fare to London."

In an interview before he went on his farewell tour Sir Henry said:

"I have worked fifty years on the stage and worked very hard, and that is long enough for any man to be before the public. This is really my last tour, and then I hope to spend the rest of my days quietly and watch the younger generation of actors at their work. I intend to make one more tour to America, where I have always met with so much kindness, and say good-bye to the thousands of friends who have so kindly welcomed me on my visits to their wonderful country."

Sir Henry in the course of his stage career had been remarkably free from sickness. He had an attack of typhoid fever at Glasgow years ago, but did not suffer any serious illness until he was taken sick at Wolverhampton.

Sir Henry made large sums of money in America and in his English tours, but was not a rich man. His expenses were very heavy, and he was most generous in his payment of salaries. When any of the members of his companies were sick, they always got their salaries. His recent London productions were not financially successful.

CHARLES FROHMAN SHOCKED.

He Says Sir Henry Irving Admired and Loved America.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Charles Frohman learned of the death of Sir Henry Irving at the National Theatre here tonight. He was much shocked by the news.

It had been planned that Sir Henry should come to this country this Autumn for a farewell tour, but in view of his illness last Winter his physicians advised him against undertaking an ocean trip at this season, and the tour was put off until next year.

"Henry Irving had as great an admiration for Americans," said Mr. Frohman, "as Americans had for him as an actor. When I last saw him America was the chief topic of his conversation. He was very happy in the thought that he was to come back to America, but sad to think that it would be his farewell visit. He loved America."

"The last time I saw him was at the Garrick Club in London last July 10. It was at a dinner at which Sir Henry, Henry Watterson, three or four other persons, and I were present. Sir Henry then was in excellent spirits. He had just finished a six weeks' engagement at the Drury Lane Theatre, where he had obtained a most enthusiastic reception, the demonstration in his honor lasting at times as long as twenty minutes. At that time he told us of his plans for the season, saying that he expected to play until Christmas in England, then rest during the holiday season, after which he would resume playing in the provinces and end the season at the Drury Lane."

Mr. Frohman spoke of Sir Henry's great regard for President Roosevelt and the late Secretary Hay.

TRIBUTES OF AMERICANS.

Actors and Managers Say Irving's Death Is an International Loss.

American actors and managers last night expressed their sorrow over the death of Sir Henry Irving and paid tribute to his art. Here are the expressions of some of them:

RICHARD MANSFIELD—Irving should have lived for many years more. But he gave his life to others and others drained his life and lived on him. He was generous to a fault, and he never spared himself. His whole life was given to his art—he was one of the few artists of the world. There are millionaires and railroad kings by the score, but hardly one true actor remains, and imagination and poetry are dying. Bit by bit the beautiful is giving place to the material. My friend Irving, as far as the man Irving is concerned, is dead; but he will live as all great men live, and when the curtain is rung down, the stage is dark, who shall say that his spirit and the spirits of the great actors of the past do not people the theatre they so loved and play the plays that are as dead to the world as they?

JOHN DREW.—I am intensely shocked to hear of the death of Henry Irving. My acquaintance with him, made upon his first visit to this country when I was a young man in Augustin Daly's company, ripened into friendship when I went to England to play in "The Taming of the Shrew." This friendship, I am proud and happy to say, lasted to the end. It would ill-become me to speak of him as an actor. I can only grieve with the English-speaking world at his unlooked-for taking off.

DAVID BELASCO—Our modern stage has lost its greatest inspiration, as the name of Henry Irving stood for all that was able and artistic in the highest sense. And, what is saddest of all, he leaves no one behind him to take his place. He was the greatest actor and the greatest stage director of modern times, and he was the truest of friends. He has given the stage some of its greatest productions. Out of them he made fortunes, and still, I am sure, he died a comparatively poor man, so far as this world's goods go. He has given his life for the stage that he loved, and to it he gave, too, the fortunes he made. In these days, when commercialism enters so largely into the better things of the stage, it is hard to lose such a man as Sir Henry Irving, whose whole aim in life was its elevation. He was truly a great man.

DANIEL FROHMAN—Irving was an actor of certain physical limitations, but of great intellect and dramatic resources, and so raised himself above his fellows and gave great lustre to the stage. He also did more to enhance the good feeling between England and America than any other international agency. The British public felt very warmly toward their American cousins because of the affection America had for Irving, not only as an actor, but as a man. No other actor had more personal friends on both sides of the Atlantic and his loss is a real personal as well as an artistic one.

DAVID WARFIELD—Irving added reputation to the theatrical profession when he was knighted. The honor he received was entirely in accordance with his merit. He was a man beloved in the profession, and his mark was high for all to emulate. His death is an international loss.

ABRAHAM ERLANGER—Sir Henry's art was that of a genius. The world acknowledged that. His influence was for the highest ideal. The world will mourn him.

HENRY CLAY BARNABEE—Sir Henry stood at the pinnacle of the profession, English and American, and his death is a blow to the English-speaking world at large. Irving was a bright and honorable light in the theatrical firmament. His death pains me deeply, as I think it does every one who is interested in the future of the stage, whether they knew him or not.

Mrs. MINNIE MADDERN FISKE—For a quarter of a century Sir Henry Irving ennobled the dramatic art, and conferred an added dignity upon his profession. No individual force in the theatre during his time did so much to strengthen and uplift the stage. His ideals were true and fine, and he remained loyal to them until the end. As a man no less than as an artist, he was distinguished by the best and rarest qualities. He was generous, steadfast, charitable, and courageous. No stancher friend, no more delightful social companion, ever lived. In his death the dramatic profession has sustained an irreparable loss.

C. E. TEALE FOR CONTROLLER.

Nominated to Fill Out the Republican City Ticket.

The Republican committee to fill vacancies met yesterday afternoon and decided on Charles E. Teale of Brooklyn for Controller to fill the vacancy created by the declination of Richard Young.

Mr. Teale is the President of a large clothing firm in Brooklyn. He lives at 1,854 Eighty-second Street, Brooklyn. He has been connected with the Board of Education for twenty years. He was Commissioner of Charities for Brooklyn under Mayor Low, and has served as a City Magistrate. He is prominent in Young Men's Christian Association work.

In addition to his own business, Mr. Teale manages the business of Smith, Gray & Co. in Brooklyn.

of General Sessions, to succeed Judge Newburger, Joseph Levinson said that Rosalsky had done more than any other man to build up the Republican Party on the lower east side. Judge W. M. K. Olcott seconded the nomination, and, there being no opposition to Mr. Rosalsky, the Secretary was instructed to cast one ballot for him.

Ambrose O'Neal, leader of the Thirtieth District, was nominated for Sheriff without opposition; so was Frederick L. Marshall for County Clerk. Then Chairman Elsberg announced that nominations for District Attorney were in order. The convention began to take on an air of life.

Kinard Cornwallis, a gray-bearded warrior from the Twenty-fifth District, who had a seat in the front row, rose and yelled: "Jerome! Jerome! Jerome!"

There were cheers and "boos" at the mention of Mr. Jerome's name. Amid the noise Abraham Gruber, leader of the Twenty-first District, arose in his place and was recognized.

"In order that we may have a lawful and decent administration of the office of District Attorney," said Mr. Gruber, "I nominate for that office Charles A. Flammer."

Robert Kelly Prentice of the Twenty-fourth District, said:

"I hope the delegates of this convention will consider well the importance of the action which they are about to take. If the Republican ticket is to have a chance of success we must have independent votes. The passage of the Mortgage Tax bill by the Republican Legislature has alienated thousands of votes from the Republican Party. To make up for that defection and to gain additional strength we ought to nominate for the office of District Attorney the man who has demonstrated his ability as a vote getter and has proved by four years of good administration that he is worthy of re-election to that office. I nominate William Travers Jerome."

But when it came to voting, some of the most enthusiastic delegates "welched," to use the term employed by a delegate who was a steadfast friend of Mr. Jerome's. Some of the very district leaders who had fought for Mr. Jerome's nomination at the afternoon conference of the County Committee delivered their delegations against him.

It was notable that when some of the delegations were polled on the nomination absenteeism was prevalent. Herbert Parsons, leader of the Twenty-fifth District, remained away from the convention, and only two of the delegates from his district attended.

When the Nineteenth District, Lemuel Ely Quigg's bailiwick, was polled, the vote was announced as 14 to 1, the delegate who voted for Mr. Jerome being Paul M. Herzog.

When the Twenty-ninth District was called Chairman Elsberg was not recorded on Mr. Jerome's candidacy. The vote for District Attorney was Flammer, 237; Jerome, 9. The nominee was a City Magistrate for ten years. His term expired on July 1 last.

The last nomination made was for Register. William Halpin placed in nomination Dr. Henry A. C. Anderson. Mr. Halpin said that Dr. Anderson was formerly a Democrat, but was now a Republican and would bring great strength to the ticket.

He supported Mayor McClellan when he ran two years ago, and was an aspirant for Health Commissioner under his administration. The Secretary was instructed to cast a ballot for him.

All the nominations having been made, Mr. Ivins, the candidate for Mayor, who had been waiting downstairs, was escorted into the convention hall. He was greeted with cheers, but the enthusiasm was not great until Chairman Halpin urged the delegates to their feet. Mr. Ivins addressed the convention. In part he said:

"I find myself in a most unexpected position. When I took the steamer from Liverpool for New York a short time ago the last thing I thought of was that I would become your candidate for Mayor and enter this struggle for the maintenance of the dignity of municipal government and against an organized system of depredation.

"I have never known a boss, and, God helping, I never will know any boss. I have always been my own boss, and will continue to be my own boss, God helping, until I die. If I am elected there is no man on earth I will obey, but there is no man whose advice I will refuse to listen to. When I have listened to advice, however, I will do as my judgment dictates, and those who don't like it can take it out in not liking it. On the other hand, I shall never attempt to be anybody else's boss. [Great cheering.]

"The primary issue in this campaign is Tammany Hall. I have always fought Tammany Hall, and always expect to. Tammany Hall stands for organized inefficiency coupled with systematic greed. Tammany Hall has been the inveterate foe of good government in New York.

"I once refused to vote for my dearest friend because he was nominated by Tammany Hall. The better the man, the worse his crime when he lends his name to that organization. Mr. McClellan's manners and accomplishments ought to have kept him out of such company.

"Why is Mr. McClellan wanted for that office? Because he can gild the brick. [Cheers and laughter.]

"Mr. Murphy offers the citizens of New York a gold brick in this campaign. There is not a single praiseworthy thing in Tammany's record in the last two years. No department of the City Government has been improved under Mr. McClellan's administration. McClellan either through weakness or willingness has passed over to private hands municipal values amounting to hundreds of millions of dollars. If you continue his administration you give a blanket mortgage on the entire future of your town.

"My position with respect to public franchises is this: Every franchise which has lapsed should at once be acquired by the City Government. There should be no new grants in perpetuity. I believe that all wealth created by the community should be held for the community, and not to aggrandize individuals and place them beyond the pale of the law.

"If my fellow members in the Board of Estimate disagree with me on this subject, I promise you that they and I will have a charmingly hot time.

"I believe that the city should enter immediately into the operation of all the lighting franchises. The city is not at present qualified to operate its subways, but when it is I would have the city operate them. I would always act with good faith in acquiring any franchises, and there would be no confiscation.

"We have got an issue with Hearst and his people on the subject of municipal ownership. The difference between Hearst and us in this campaign I would define thus: Hearst is to-day teaching progress with disorder; we teach progress with order."

At the close of Mr. Ivins's speech the convention adjourned. Many of the delegates crowded around him, and warmly congratulated him on his address.

IVINS SPOKE FOR JEROME.

But Acquiesced in His Turning Down—Leaders Formally Laud Mathews.

The decision to turn down Mr. Jerome was reached at a conference of the Republican leaders held yesterday afternoon in the Fifth Avenue Hotel. There had been a conference of the district leaders at Republican County Headquarters earlier in the day, at which it was made evident that the sentiment of the organization was overwhelmingly against Mr. Jerome's indorsement. But when the leaders were informed that William M. Ivins, the Republican candidate for Mayor, favored the indorsement of Mr. Jerome and wished to appeal in favor of his nomination, no decisive action was taken. It was agreed that the leaders should hear what Mr. Ivins had to say before the organization was finally committed.

When Mr. Ivins was seen at his office before the conference he was strongly of opinion that it would be a mistake to reject Jerome.

"I want Mr. Jerome indorsed," he said, "and will do my utmost to prevail upon the Republican leaders to indorse him. If the County Convention will indorse Mr. Jerome and he will go on the rush line with me, we will capture the Mayoralty bail. There is no doubt about it in my mind."

When Mr. Ivins reached the Fifth Avenue Hotel he learned that Edward Lauterbach, who first suggested him as an available Mayoralty candidate, disagreed with him as to the advisability of the Republicans indorsing Jerome. He learned also that the district leaders were violently opposed to Mr. Jerome's candidacy. Still, Mr. Ivins made his plea.

When he had finished, the district leaders were heard from. With a few exceptions they declared unrelenting hostility to Jerome. Mr. Lauterbach, Abraham Gruber, and Samuel S. Strasbourger were among those who made strong speeches against indorsement.

Mr. Ivins listened to all that the opposition had to say. Then he announced that he would not insist upon Mr. Jerome's indorsement since the sentiment of the leaders seemed to be so decidedly against it. A vote was taken whether or not Jerome should be indorsed. It resulted 27 to 8 against indorsement.

Mr. Gruber was especially severe on Mr. Jerome. Despite the revelations of crime made in the insurance investigation, Mr. Gruber said, Mr. Jerome had not proceeded against any persons charged with that sort of wrong doing.

"Hyde, Harriman, Schiff, Alexander, and McCall," Mr. Gruber declared, "have not been brought to the bar by Mr. Jerome. On the contrary Jerome said there was no need for a special Grand Jury at this time to take cognizance of the insurance frauds, and gave those charged with the insurance frauds notice that he would not proceed against them until after the election. Would it not have been decent for him to pursue that course in the case of the Secretary of the Republican County Committee? But no! In that case he sought to inflame public opinion against the Republican organization by not only prosecuting, but persecuting its Secretary."

Other district leaders spoke in the same strain as Mr. Gruber.

The eight district leaders who voted in favor of indorsing Mr. Jerome were Edwin F. Merwin of the First District, Otto Rosalsky of the Eighth, William Halpin of the Ninth, Samuel Koenig of the Sixteenth, John S. Shea of the Twentieth, Herbert Parsons of the Twenty-fifth, William C. Wilson of the Twenty-seventh, and John H. Gunner of the Twenty-eighth.

The acquiescence of Mr. Ivins in the decision of the majority against Mr. Jerome seemed to please the leaders greatly. Nearly every one of them who was asked what impression Mr. Ivins had made on the conference expressed enthusiastic approval of him.

While they seemed to be highly gratified with Mr. Ivins's acceptance of the majority verdict, it was learned on excellent authority that in the event of Mr. Ivins having stood out for indorsement the leaders who were against Jerome were prepared to force him off the ticket and take up Frank Moss.

Because of the verdict against Jerome, Herbert Parsons refused to submit the name of P. Tecumseh Sherman for Borough President. It had been understood that Mr. Sherman was willing to take the nomination, but when Jerome was turned down Mr. Parsons announced that Mr. Sherman would not consent to go on the ticket.

Mr. Ivins remained in the conference until a decision had been reached on nearly the whole ticket. When he left the hotel he was asked what his position had been with respect to Mr. Jerome's candidacy. He said:

"I advocated the indorsement of Mr. Jerome, believing he would add strength to the ticket. A large majority of the leaders disagreed with me. They presented reasons why Mr. Jerome should not be indorsed."

"Did you consider their reasons valid?"

"Well, they convinced me. I never heard a more frank, free, and independent discussion. The majority were of opinion that Mr. Jerome's indorsement would lose more votes in their constituencies than we would draw from the outside. They believed that putting Mr. Jerome's name on the ticket would not help us to elect a Mayor. I am sorry that such was their view, but I am not forcing my opinions on anybody. I do not believe I know more than all of the district leaders combined as to the political situation. I am not omniscient, any more than I have been omnipresent."

One of the reasons which aroused such bitterness against Mr. Jerome on the part of the Republican leaders was their belief that Mr. Jerome had gone further than he should in the prosecution of Armitage Mathews, Secretary of the committee, who committed suicide on the morning on which he was to have been brought to trial on a charge of conspiracy and larceny in connection with the looting of the Weisel estate. By a unanimous vote the committee adopted these resolutions of respect to the memory of Mr. Mathews:

The members of the Executive Committee of the Republican County Committee of New York County with sorrow because of his death and conscious of the integrity and rectitude of Armitage Mathews, late Secretary of the committee, hereby Resolve, That they mourn the loss of a genuine friend, a disinterested and faithful worker in public affairs, a good citizen, and an honest man.

His continuous public service as representative in the City of New York of the State Controller, as Assistant District Attorney, as Alderman for two terms, and as Secretary of the County Committee is a record of righteousness and honor worthy of the respect of all who knew it.

Be it further resolved, That we extend to his family our condolence and bid them have courage and hope. The sweet memories of his affection and sacrifices for them will, we know, soften their grief and help them to hear their great loss.

It was nearly 7 o'clock when the conference broke up, and the leaders scarcely had time to dine before going to the conventions.

"IT'S UP TO THE PEOPLE,"

Jerome's Comment—He Promises to be Interesting in This Campaign.

Late last evening, when the action of the Republican County Convention had disposed once for all of any hope District Attorney Jerome may have entertained about an indorsement from that quarter, Mr. Jerome was asked what he had to say about it.

"Well," he said with his characteristic drawl and a twinkle in his eyes, "what can I say except that not within memory has it happened that a man has received such a compliment as the practically unanimous opposition of the district leaders of all the political parties."

Mr. Jerome spoke at some length earlier in the day, while the caucus of Republican leaders was still talking over his fate, and his words indicated beyond any doubt that he expected no support from their convention.

"I am not a past master in English," he said. "I can't make my platform clearer than I did by my formal declaration. It is a plain appeal to the people over the heads of the bosses. It is the same old story of a small but powerful company of men—sometimes one man—who stand between the people and the public service and control the voting power at the convention. These men are usually selfish, wholly irresponsible, and not infrequently corrupt. I have put myself before the people on a platform that places me above that sort of thing. My appeal is to the better judgment of the individual citizen.

"I am going to make as hard a fight as I know how along the lines I have set down. I do not think that personalities should enter into the case. The question is, Whom do the people want for District Attorney? My record stands for itself. If it has been good in this office, all right. And anybody can find out for himself what it has been. I am not on trial. The people of the County of New York are on trial. The question is—do they want for this office a candidate who is the creation of some organization, or do they want a man of their own choosing, free and untrammeled?

"It makes no difference to me, as a man, whether I am elected or not. I can make a living at any time. If not reelected to this office, I will go back to the private practice of law. But I am willing to serve the people another term if they want me. There may be a few things, too, of which I shall remind them before election is held. I expect to enter upon a very interesting campaign."

In direct reference to the Republican convention he said only: "There was no reason why I should expect more from them than I did from Tammany. I have said things about members of the Republican organization which I believe to be true. I have not retracted them, and I am not going to do so. For this reason I cannot see why they should be more favorable to me than to anybody else. And the same thing applies to the Hearst people also."

Reminded that he had once said that Tammany would never nominate James W. Osborne for District Attorney because the latter was too independent, Mr. Jerome rejoined drily:

"It only goes to show that there comes a time when the leopard can change its spots."

In one office of three men at $35 per week and a stenographer we eliminated two of the men, and the work of the office was better done. Perhaps we can't save $70 per week for you, but it will cost you nothing but your time to have a talk with our representative.

It will be worth your while to write us.

AUTOMOBILE WRECKED ON WAY TO CUP RACE

for he cracked his two front cylinders, and also bent his crank shaft. New parts were sent for at once, and the mechanicians in the Locomobile headquarters, near Lakeville, worked like Trojans, but it was late in the evening before the car was prepared for the final weighing. The accident cast a gloom over the chances, dubious at best, of the American team, for Tracy's car was acknowledged to be one of the fastest. It is hard to expect the best results from fresh cylinders.

Cylinders have been giving lots of trouble lately, the first car to suffer in this respect being John B. Warden's German Mercedes. The new cylinders, supplied by Robert Graves and Foxhall Keene, were fitted yesterday, and the car reported at the weighing in. The weighing in kept the technical members of the Racing Board busy during the greater part of the day. Keene's German Mercedes was found to be about twenty-four pounds overweight, and the magneto was taken out, and Lytle's new Pope-Toledo was also a trifle heavy, but by taking off the hood covering the motors the proper weight was reached.

William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., the cup donor, furnished a little sensation in the morning by going over the course in his 90-horse-power Mercedes racer. He did better than a mile a minute, covering the twenty-eight-mile circuit in 27 minutes. That, however, was not the least exciting part of his journey. When making the tricky "S" turn near the Albertson Station, Vanderbilt attempted to take it at too high a speed, with the result that his car skidded to such an extent that it turned almost completely around. He jammed his brakes down quickly and prevented the car from running off into the ditch. With this ticklish experience, his time of 27 minutes was all the more remarkable.

Alfred G. Vanderbilt, whose Italian Fiat car will be driven by Paul Sartori, was not on the course during the day, and Sartori only took the racing car out when it was necessary to drive it to Albertson's for the weighing in.

Eleven of the racing machines were out in the morning hours, but few attempted fast time. Hemery made a round in a little over twenty-five minutes, and Nazzaro and Jenatzy did it in about twenty-seven. Lancia and Nazzaro, who are looked upon by the Italians to win, appeared cool and confident, and in the evening they went over the course, visiting at the various garages. Few of the drivers cared to sleep. Szisz, who is now one of the strong favorites, put the finishing touches to his machine late in the day, and spent the evening with a party of Frenchmen. He is the only driver of the lot who speaks no English. Heath spent most of the afternoon looking over his car at his garage near Mineola.

"The course is in fine shape," he said, "except two or three miles on the back road. On the Guinea Road section, where the going is still quite soft, the wind and the sunshine have done wonders, however, and a hot pace will be set from the start."

It will be remembered that Heath won the race last year by the narrow margin of 1 minute and 28 seconds, the Frenchman Clement being second. The race was then stopped, but Lytle was third, making the best showing of the American drivers. Heath is the only foreigner who came over for the race last year who is in the race this season. Campbell, who is an American, drove a Mercedes car last year, and is on the German team again. Sartori was also in the race a year ago, driving the same car he will pilot to-day. Of the nineteen drivers five are gentlemen drivers—Heath, Keene, Warden, White, and Christie.

Everything about the course was in a condition of ferment yesterday. Even the farmers were busy. It has taken the Long Island natives a year to rise to the occasion of the financial possibilities of an international automobile race. A year ago it was a difficult matter to get a piece of pie, and as for hot coffee, it was a rarity. To-day there will be no lack of refreshment. Countless stands, many of them with small stoves in the rear, were going up yesterday. The fortunate market gardeners who own a strip of land near the grand stand have shown sufficient business acumen to tack up signs in the cabbage patches stating that certain sections are for rent. Half a dozen private grand stands have been erected within a mile of the start and finish, and the seats have sold readily for several dollars apiece. On the main grand stand every seat was sold long ago, and as high as $25 was offered yesterday for a seat. A huge blackboard has been erected on top of the press stand containing the names of the competitors, and the time of each car as it goes by will be posted so that the occupants on the main stand may see at a glance how the contestants stand. Over a dozen tents have been erected in the rear of the stands, the Long Island Automobile Club having two and the Automobile Club of America one, where breakfast and luncheon will be served.

Hundreds of special policemen and flagmen will patrol the course to-day and keep the crowds from surging on the track. A corps of physicians will be in readiness to care for the injured, but it is hoped that the race will be finished without accident. Last year the race cost the life of a mechanician riding with George Arents, who drove a Mercedes car. Arents's car turned over, and for a long time he was not expected to live. If any serious accident occur to-day, it is expected that it will be on the easier turns, as the contestants know the dangerous places and will be prepared to slow down, but in the eagerness for excessive speed they may forget to use an equal amount of caution on those places that are regarded as practically safe, but which still require clever manoeuvring to make successfully at high speed.

CARS THAT WILL RACE FOR VANDERBILT CUP.

Nineteen automobiles, representing four nations, will compete for the William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., trophy over the 28.3-mile Long Island circuit. The cars will go over the course ten times, making a race of 283 miles. The first car will be sent away from the grand stand on the Jericho turnpike near Mineola at 6 A. M., and the others will follow at one-minute intervals. The teams and order of start are:

250 Priestley Cravenette Coats at $10.00. 1100 Winter Suits and Overcoats $10.50.

THERE'S one thing sure about our Clothing Department, and that is, even the most particular man can find exactly what he wants at a price less than he is willing to pay, whereas it used to be that he would have to visit a dozen stores, waste a lot of time, pay MORE than he wanted to pay, and even then he wouldn't be absolutely satisfied. Second Floor.

We've reduced the clothing business to a science
We've also reduced clothing prices to a minimum.

Take for instance, these $25.00 Surtout Coats, at $15.50. Every dressy man is aware that they are the acme of style this season. We could secure only one hundred to sell at this price, but while they last to-day they'll be the life of the clothing business in New York.

Of course we don't mean they are $25.00 coats from the merchant tailor's standpoint. He would say $35.00 for such a coat. They have all the style, quality and cut of the best made-to-order surtout, and we offer them to-day at $15.50—less than the ready-for-service price. $15.50

The fabrics are of Vicunas in Black and Oxford. The close tight fitting collar—heavy lapels—form fitting waist and a full sweep to the skirt—give that most desired effect demanded by all fashionably dressed men. Own one of these $25.00 coats to-day at..... $15.50

250 Priestley cravenette coats

$10.00 SPECIAL—250 GENUINE PRIESTLEY CRAVENETTE COATS THAT EVERY MAN KNOWS ARE MADE TO SELL AT 15.00 AND 18.00 OFFERED TO-DAY AT 10.00 EACH. We believe this is the best value ever offered in a man's overcoat that is equally stylish and correct for day and evening wear as a light overcoat. In fact, they look like those swell 30.00 long overcoats—yet they are absolutely water proof. They have that snap and swing of the tailor-made coat, and we show them in twenty-five distinct shades of fabric, including silk mixed worsteds, fancy cassimeres, rough cheviots and Scotch tweeds—also black thibets. Sizes 33 to 44 chest. Value 15.00 and 18.00. $10.00

Custom made suits and overcoats, $15.50

THE SUITS are unquestionably as fine as ready made clothing can show. They possess the style and refinement always indicative of a well dressed man—single and double breasted—in exclusive fabrics—in the new grey worsteds and plain effects. Overcoats of every style and pattern for serviceableness and every one chock full of style. We invite you to inspect the widest range we know of at..... 15.50
At the merchant tailor's you'd be fortunate to secure a suit their equal at. 30.00.

Men's 20.00 suits and overcoats, special at $10.50

These suits are exceedingly well made, attractive and popular. Nothing of the ready made appearance about them. Long, broad lapels—centre slits with button and buttonholes in back—broad shoulders and collar—made in fancy worsteds, cheviots, tweeds and black thibets. The long single breasted overcoat is in this lot. The fabrics are of frieze and kersey in black, Oxford and blue. It is somewhat longer than usual this year—long centre slits for style and ease in walking—broad heavy lapels—all serge lined. We place these on sale to-day at..... 10.50

Here's where the boys are well cared for

Where economical parents save the most money on high grade clothing.

The Simpson Crawford Co. boys' special new Fall suit, 3.00

is a dressy, wear-resisting suit that made such a favorable impression on economical parents last season that we doubled our order this year, and got still better style, workmanship and materials—compare them with suits offered elsewhere at $5.00.

1,000 Simpson Crawford Co. special boys' suits, Norfolk, sailor and double breasted, at $3.00. This suit is already the talk of the town. It is the equal of nearly every suit you will find elsewhere at $5.00, and to satisfy yourself we ask you to make comparisons.

Blue Serge Suits.

If you find the equal of this suit at $5.00 any other time or place you had better snap it up, as they're scarce in the good qualities. We have two hundred to sell at $3.95 to-day—no more like them at any price.

Blue serge wears like iron and looks the neatest of any material. These suits are the Norfolk style with knickerbocker trousers—sizes, 7 to 16 years—special to-day at $3.95. 3.95

Boys' Winter overcoats in sizes 7 to 16, very special, 3.95

Those long, flowing broad shoulder coats that make the boys feel like men—long enough to cover the shoe tops—single or double breasted styles—made of high grade Vicuna in oxford and fancy mixtures—certainly a remarkable value at $3.95.

BOWLES WOULD TELL ABOUT THE MUTUAL

He Is the Agent Who Fought the Company a Few Years Ago.

HAS COME EAST TO TESTIFY

The Equitable Trustees Recommend John D. Kernan of Utica and William C. Redfield as Directors.

Thomas L. Bowles, the former agent of the Mutual Life in Milwaukee, who, on the termination of his contract with the company several years ago, conducted a lively campaign against the management until a heavy claim for renewal commissions had been settled, has come to New York. It is understood he intends to remain here to find out whether the Insurance Investigating Committee wants him as a witness.

Mr. Bowles was at one time one of the largest business producers that the Mutual Life had, and was selected several years ago to conduct on behalf of the company an extensive campaign in some of its Western territory. He came into close touch with the McCurdy management, and learned many of the inner secrets of Mutual Life affairs. After his fight with the company, and when he undertook the campaign against the McCurdy administration, Mr. Bowles, by circular and otherwise, spread among the policy holders of the Mutual charges against the management embodying very many allegations identical with the testimony of witnesses before the Armstrong committee. These charges were served in legal form on every member of the Mutual's Board of Trustees and on all the officers of the company. They contained statements of the commission arrangement that had existed between Robert H. McCurdy and the company, whereby he received a percentage on all the foreign business. They also asserted that Dr. Lewis A. Thébaud, President McCurdy's son-in-law, was making tremendous profits out of his connection with the firm of Charles H. Raymond & Co.

These are but a few of the allegations in the original Bowles complaint. Others were that a loose system of accounting was employed by the company whereby it was possible for money to be paid out without due authorization, and still others had to do with "confidential legal service." Mr. Bowles, it is understood, is not averse to testifying what means he took to mention all these facts to the Trustees of the Mutual Life, including those who have recently testified their unfamiliarity with the conditions that have obtained.

A story was printed yesterday that members of the firm of Clinton & Russell, architects, of 32 Nassau Street, would be asked at the investigation whether they handled a great part of the Mutual's building contracts, including the one for the addition to the home office building, and also whether or not members of the firm are related to officers of the Mutual Life. On behalf of the firm it was said yesterday that no member or employe was in any way related to any official of the Mutual Life, and that the firm did no building business at all, but were merely architects. The reason the firm drew the plans for the addition to the Mutual Life Building, it was said, was that Mr. Clinton, the senior partner, had drawn the plans for the original Mutual Life Building in competition with many other architects. The building, it was said, was the only one that Clinton & Russell had ever planned for the Mutual Life, although the firm had on various occasions been called upon to pass as experts on plans on work for which it was not competing.

Grover Cleveland, Justice Morgan J. O'Brien, and George Westinghouse, the Trustees of the majority stock of the Equitable Life, met at the Hotel Buckingham yesterday morning and voted to recommend to the policy holders the election of John D. Kernan of Utica and William C. Redfield of Brooklyn as Directors of the society. Mr. Kernan is the son of ex-United States Senator Francis Kernan, and is one of the State Railroad Commissioners. Mr. Redfield is the head of the firm of J. H. Williams & Co., and is one of the largest manufacturers of drop castings in the metropolitan district. He was Commissioner of Public Works for Brooklyn under Mayor Low. After the meeting of the Trustees George H. Parker, their secretary, gave out this statement:

"The Trustees of the Equitable stock have prepared a circular to be sent to every policy holder. This invites an expression of the wishes of the policy holders touching the selection from their number of persons to be voted for by the Trustees for Directors at the annual meeting of the society to be held on the first Wednesday in December next."

CLEVELAND LIKES JEFFERSON.

A Statement Saying So Is Given Out at the Equitable.

After the meeting of the Equitable Trustees yesterday, George F. Parker, their secretary, announced that he had a statement to issue supplementing the official one. It was:

"Ex-President Cleveland had a few words to say this morning after the adjournment of the meeting of the Trustees of the Equitable and before his departure for Princeton. He good-naturedly waved aside an inquiry as to the business transacted merely by saying that a statement concerning that subject would be issued.

"In complete contrast, he betrayed much interest when his presence in Wallack's Theatre on Wednesday evening and the production of 'Rip Van Winkle' were mentioned.

"He said, with considerable enthusiasm:

"'Yes, I was there, and I saw one of the best and most remarkable performances that I have seen for years. I had supposed that my great love for Joseph Jefferson as a man and friend and my unbounded admiration for him as a star would somehow interfere with my warm approval of any one else who should undertake the rôle of good old Rip. If I had consciously, or otherwise, allowed such a condition to grow up, it was speedily expelled last Wednesday evening, when I saw the son of the creator of the character of Rip Van Winkle portray that part in loving imitation, in conscientious striving toward his father's perfection, and with individuual and personally cultivated characteristics.

"'I am sure that I cannot be mistaken if I say that, on its independent merits, as well as from every collateral standpoint, those who love the theatre cannot fail to be pleased with Thomas Jefferson's representation of a character deeply seated in the affections of the American people.'"

PAID $5 TO KEEP HIS JOB.

Cabinetmaker Brings a Charge of Extortion Against His Boss.

Charles Covern of 533 Lafayette Avenue, Brooklyn, a boss cabinetmaker, was arraigned in the Tombs Court yesterday on a charge of extortion brought by Nicholas Marlary, a cabinetmaker out of work. Covern was formerly employed by Pottier & Stymus, for whom Marlary also worked.

The complainant's allegation is that he was compelled to pay Covern $5 a week to keep his job. When putting the matter before the District Attorney, Marlary said that he had paid the money in the presence of a witness. It was understood yesterday that the warrant for Covern was withheld until this witness was found. The defendant was held for further examination.

DANGER IN CHURCH FONTS.

Experts Say They Are Unsanitary—Continental Quarantine Regulations.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Dr. L. O. Howard, entomologist of the Department of Agriculture, in a talk at the International Sanitary Convention to-day, said: "Holy water fonts in churches are often the breeding places for the yellow fever mosquitos." The statement was supported by many of the other delegates. In many countries, he added, salt is put in the holy water, and though this has a disinfecting power, there is seldom eneugh of it to make the water safe.

A great step toward the prevention of contagious diseases was taken to-day when the convention accepted the forty-nine articles of the Paris convention of December, 1903, with a few modifications required by conditions in tropical countries. When the articles are ratified by the several Governments, there will be one system of quarantine and preventive measures throughout North and South America.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 13.—Four deaths and 25 new cases constituted the yellow fever record for this city to-day. There are now 167 cases under treatment.

The official fever summary for Mississippi to-day shows new cases as follows: Natchez, 4; Vicksburg, 8; Gulfport, 3; Roxie, 1; Port Gibson, 2; Rosetta, 1. One death occurred at Hamburg.

Special to The New York Times.

MOBILE, Oct. 13.—Yellow fever has appeared at Castleberry, Ala. The infection was traced to-day to Pensacola, more than 130 miles away. The patients died to-night.

ROCKEFELLER STOPS LIMITED

Delay of Eight Minutes to Let His Party Off at Tarrytown.

Special to The New York Times.

TARRYTOWN, Oct. 13.—The Cleveland express, known as the Lake Shore Limited, on the New York Central, was held up eight minutes shortly after 7 o'clock this morning at Tarrytown, at the request of John D. Rockefeller, so that he and his wife, several relatives, and retinue of servants could get off at the station here. Mr. Rockefeller has a big country domain at Pocantico Hills, two miles from Tarrytown, and the Rockefeller party was bound for that place. Part of the delay was caused by the removal of seventeen pieces of baggage.

The head of the Standard Oil Trust and his party occupied a combination day coach and sleeper from Cleveland. In the party was Miss Spellman, a sister of Mrs. Rockefeller. The delay at Tarrytown helped to make the train thirty minutes late in reaching Grand Central Station, much to the annoyance of the other passengers, many of whom were bound for the South.

Usually the Lake Shore Limited reaches the Grand Central Station on time. It passes through Tarrytown at the rate of fifty miles an hour.

When Mr. Rockefeller alighted the first person he shook hands with after affectionately kissing his son, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., who met him with a three-seated trap, was James Burns, one of the village street sweepers. Mr. Rockefeller espied Mr. Burns near the train and he walked up to him and shook hands.

"How are you, Mr. Rockefeller?" Burns said.

"Oh, I am feeling fine, thank you; how is your health?" replied Mr. Rockefeller.

The Rockefeller party was driven to Pocantico Hills, and immediately after breakfast Mr. Rockefeller started out to make an inspection of his estate of 5,000 acres. Mr. Rockefeller in his stay in Cleveland for two months gained five pounds in weight, and he said to-day that he never felt better in his life. He has a fine complexion. Right after breakfast to-day he took a four-mile walk as a constitutional.

"I'm feeling fine and have a splendid appetite," he said. "I am always glad to get back among by friends at Tarrytown."

UNION MEN INCORPORATE.

Leaders of the Rockmen's Strike Fizzle Form a Company.

The Rockmen's and Excavators' Co-operative Company was incorporated at Albany yesterday. Its capital is $50,000. The incorporators are Tito Puceili, Vincenzio Vecchio, and Francis de la Mott. The men were the officers of the Rockmen's and Excavators' Union when, some months ago, it ordered a general strike for recognition of the union against the Contractors' Protective Association. The strike affected the Subway digging and the foundation work of a great many buildings throughout the city, and although some of the strikers gained their demands, the strike fizzled out, individual employers making terms with their own men in most cases. At that time Puceili was the Union's President, de la Mott its business agent, and Vecchio delegate to the Central Federated Union. Their union was loosely constructed and so large as to be top heavy, at one time having a nominal membership of 26,000. The union was demoralized by its unsuccessful strike.

INFAMOUS, SAYS BARTHOLDT.

Denounces McNary's Statement That He Is After the Nobel Prize.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 13.—Representative Richard Bartholdt denounces as "infamous" the published interview with Representative William S. McNary of Boston, in which Mr. McNary said that Mr. Bartholdt, "as President of the International Parliamentary Union, not only made the American Congressmen appear ridiculous in the eyes of the other delegates, but buncoed us into indorsing him for the Nobel Prize."

Mr. McNary's statement was in reply to Mr. Bartholdt's declaration that the Massachusetts Congressman had violated confidences when he gave out an interview following the reception of the American peace delegates by the German Emperor.

In discussing Mr. McNary's attack today Mr. Bartholdt evinced great indignation.

"Why," he said angrily, "I never suggested directly, indirectly, or otherwise the mention of my name for the Nobel Prize. If it were not for Mr. McNary's official position I should regard his statement as too silly to dignify it by replying to it. At the proper time I intend to reply to Mr. McNary on the floor of the House of Representatives."

PEACE RATIFICATION TO-DAY.

Eddy to Notify Russia and the French Minister to Notify Japan.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—It has been arranged that the ratifications of the Russian-Japanese peace treaty shall be exchanged to-morrow.

Mr. Takahira, the Japanese Minister, will notify the State Department that his Emperor has signed the treaty at Tokio. The State Department will notify the American Embassy at St. Petersburg to that effect, and Spencer Eddy, the Chargé there, will duly notify the Russian Government.

The Russian Government will notify the French Foreign Office, through its Ambassador in Paris, that the Russian Emperor has signed his copy of the treaty. The French Foreign Office will notify its Minister in Tokio, and he in turn will inform the Japanese Foreign Office.

This will be regarded as a formal exchange of ratifications.

Crosstown Cars from Grand Central.

For the accommodation of railroad passengers passing through this city, a direct street railway line is about to be established between the Grand Central Station and the West Twenty-third Street ferries. Beginning Monday, Oct. 23, cars will run every four minutes between 7:30 A. M. and 7 P. M. along Fourth Avenue and West Twenty-third Street.

DELANY WANTS $50,000 TO FIGHT GAS SUITS

Asks This to Engage Engineers as Expert Witnesses.

MAYOR APPROVES THE PLAN

Corporation Counsel Says the Millions Claimed for Lighting Are of Great Concern.

That the city may be prepared to defend itself against the enormous aggregate of claims held by the lighting companies of the city, Corporation Counsel Delany has got the support of Mayor McClellan to a plan to appropriate $50,000 for the Law Department to engage engineers thoroughly familiar with the gas business for expert witnesses.

Outlining the situation to the Mayor, the Corporation Counsel, in a letter made public yesterday, says that the claims of the lighting companies for lighting the city in 1903, 1904, and 1905, exclusive of the interest, aggregate $8,123,460.75. The city has refused to pay. The result is that more than twenty suits have been filed by the companies. Some will soon be reached for trial. In his letter Mr. Delany says:

"The position taken by the city will mark a departure from the attitude heretofore generally assumed by municipalities in dealing with public service corporations, and it is therefore of the greatest importance that it should, if possible, be sustained from the outset. To do so will involve a long and determined struggle in the courts.

"The cases will be conducted by this office without any additional expense, and Mr. Burr, my assistant, is now preparing them for trial, but the city has no engineering force available as experts, and will, as explained, have to employ this indispensable assistance.

"The questions raised by the answers which I have interposed will show the necessity of the course I propose. We claim:

"1. That the companies have formed a combination for the purpose of controlling and regulating, and did control and regulate as a monopoly, the price of gas and electricity, commodities of common use for lighting and other purposes, and that such combination or consolidation is against public policy, illegal, and void.

"2. That because of such monopoly there is no standard or market price or value for either gas or electricity in the City of New York, and that the only manner in which such market value can be ascertained is to determine the cost of production and distribution, adding thereto a sum sufficient to return a fair profit upon the money actually invested in the business, with due regard to the hazard involved.

"3. That during the years named and for several years prior thereto there has been no competition for city lighting by gas and electricity, and that the prices bid or charged therefor have been in all cases the same for similar service, and that no two companies have bidden for the same service in the same district.

"4. That the prices charged by the companies for gas and electric lighting are excessive and above the fair and reasonable value of such commodities and service.

"5. That no contract existed between the companies and the city during the year 1903, as to the fair value of the services to be rendered by the said companies. That the proposals issued to all bidders for such year contain the following paragraph:

"20. The Commissioner reserves the right to reject any and all bids or estimates, if the Board of Estimate and Apportionment shall determine it for the best interest of the city so to do.

"That the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, on the recommendation of the Commissioner of Water Supply, Gas, and Electricity, dated March 12, 1903, did determine that all bids for public lighting should be so rejected, and so resolved on or about Dec. 4, 1903, and that the said Commissioner did thereupon reject the companies' bids on or about Dec. 8, 1903, on the ground that the prices charged by the companies were unreasonable and excessive.

"6. That the Commissioner of Water Supply, Gas, and Electricity had and has no power to execute a contract on behalf of the City of New York to pay unfair and unreasonable prices for such commodity and service rendered during the year 1904 or at any other time; that because of the unfairness and unreasonableness of the prices charged and the combination which existed to control and monopolize the price of gas and electricity, by direction of the Mayor all bids for gas and electric lighting for the year 1905 were rejected.

"7. That the companies as public utility corporations were and are bound to furnish light and lighting service to the city, and are entitled to recover only the fair value of the same, and that the city has at all times been able, ready, and willing to settle claims duly filed for services rendered and commodities supplied at the reasonable and fair value thereof.

"We compelled these companies to continue to serve the city with gas and electric lightings and refused to pay them the bills rendered for such service, forcing them to invoke the aid of the courts, where the question will be finally determined as to what are the powers and duties of these public-utility corporations in their relation to the city, and what is fair and reasonable compensation for their public service to the city. We contend that a public utility corporation is a creature of law and has no rights except those conferred upon it by the people, and that the people have the right to so control it as to make it subserve the public interests.

"Before these questions are finally determined in the courts the amount claimed by these companies will probably amount, with interest, to about $15,000,000, (fifteen million of dollars.) So that this whole situation is of the utmost concern to the people of the city."

Mayor McClellan sent this reply to the Corporation Counsel last night:

"I approve of the appropriation asked for, and suggest that you apply at once to the Board of Aldermen for the necessary authority under the charter.

"I am quite certain that the Board of Estimate will pass favorably on the question, and immediately on the passage of the resolution of the Board of Aldermen I shall present the matter to the Board of Estimate for action."

Independent Company Calls Grout's Terms Too Hard.

NOT SO SEVERE ON BELL CO.

New-Comers Willing to Give the City 500 Telephones Free and Cut the Public Rates in Half.

Independent telephone operations in this city received a setback yesterday when Controller Grout presented to the Board of Estimate a special report of Engineer Harry P. Nichol of the Finance Department on the value of the franchise sought by the Atlantic Telephone Company. Under the terms as fixed by Mr. Nichol the company would have to pay the city $7,750,000 in twenty-five years as a minimum for the privilege of entering the local field to compete with the New York Telephone Company.

These terms are regarded by the independent companies as unnecessarily onerous, being much more severe than the terms imposed upon the New York company. The independent company is willing to furnish telephones at half the rate charged by the Bell Company.

The New York Telephone Company pays the city practically nothing for its franchise. It is taxed on its real estate and on its franchise as real estate, under the franchise tax law. The independent companies, however, will be taxed likewise under the State statutes. For its franchise rental the Bell company should pay the city through its ownership of the Empire City Subway, but its payments through this source have been held up for years, with the result that the city has been obliged to begin what seems to be interminable litigation without being able to get the company to pay anything.

The Atlantic Company put in its application for a franchise several weeks ago, and it was referred to the Finance Department. The company expected advantageous rates because it offered the city 500 telephones free of charge, which would save the city the $230,000 a year it pays the Bell company.

The Atlantic company also offered 5-cent calls in any one borough and 10 cents for calls from one borough to another. The rate for unlimited residence service was fixed at $66 a year and for business houses at $108. For the franchise the company offered to pay the city a percentage of its gross receipts, 1 per cent. for the first two years, 2 per cent. for the next three years, and 4 per cent. for the next twenty years.

In his report Mr. Nichols gave the history of the growth of telephone service in the city and fixed these terms:

First—A cash payment of $250,000 upon the acceptance of grant or the signing of a contract.

Second—Annually during the first five years a sum which shall be equal to 5 per cent. of the gross receipts of the grantee from all sources within the limits of the City of New York, and which sum shall be not less than $200,000.

Third—Annually during the second five years 6 per cent. of such gross receipts, which shall not be less than $300,000.

Fourth—Annually during the third five years 7 per cent. of such gross receipts, to be not less than $300,000.

Fifth—Annually during the fourth five years 9 per cent. of such gross receipts, to be not less than $350,000.

Sixth—Annually during the fifth five years 10 per cent. of such gross receipts, to be not less than $400,000.

For the full term of twenty-five years such payments would amount to $7,750,000.

The report says that in the opinion of the Finance Department the sums asked can be paid from the earnings of the company without hardship. Mr. Nichols reminds the board that three other telephone companies have applied for franchises, and suggests that as the board is for the time being, at least, restrained from granting any franchises, an investigation of all the companies should be made before final action is taken upon any one of them.

GRAFT IN RAILWAY BOARDS?

Chairman Knapp of Commerce Commission Suggests an Investigation.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, Oct. 13.—Martin A. Knapp, Chairman of the Inter-State Commerce Commission, spoke to-night at Cornell University on Government control of railway rates. Nine railway systems in the United States, Mr. Knapp declared, controlled 70 per cent. of mileage, 75 per cent. of valuation, 77 per cent. of traffic, and 75 per cent. of revenues.

"They are just now trying to pry off the lid in life insurance methods," he said. "So far we have only got a peek in. How will it look when they get the cover completely off? Now, I want you to examine and see how many men, who are on the Boards of Directors of the life insurance companies now under fire, are also important factors in the control of our great railways. Can it be that the same rottenness and graft exist there also?"

W. H. STEARNS ASKS DIVORCE.

Wife, Blanche Molineux Scott's Sister, Says He Is Heir to Big Estate.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, Oct. 13.—The suit for divorce brought by Waldo H. Stearns against Iczamia Stearns, a sister of Mrs. Blanche Chesborough Molineux Scott, came up in the Superior Court before Judge Baker to-day for preliminary hearing. Mrs. Stearns will contest the suit. Desertion for five years and infidelity are the plaintiff's allegation.

Mrs. Stearns, through her lawyer, asked for an allowance of $2,000 for counsel fees. She declared that Mr. Stearns's father had died recently in Massachusetts, leaving an estate estimated at $1,000,000, of which the son would inherit one-quarter. Her counsel presented a certificate of her inability on account of illness to be present.

As Mrs. Stearns was in New York the case was continued until the December term. Mrs. Stearns, several years ago, instituted a suit for a divorce on the ground of desertion and failure to support, but the suit was withdrawn after a reconciliation.

KEEP COMMITTEE AFTER THE RED TAPE BUREAUS

Lays Plans to Consolidate Many Sub-Departments.

HAS RETRENCHMENT IN VIEW

May Recommend Sweeping Changes in the Manner of Transacting Government Business.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—The Keep Committee is gradually converging its lines of inquiry in the executive departments into a concrete scheme of organization which will reduce the expenditures of the Government for performing the routine of its daily business. Thus far the members of the committee have confined their work to getting information as to the various methods of doing business in the different bureaus. A large amount of testimony has been taken, and as the committee has gone over the ground conclusions have been tentatively considered, with a view to presenting to the President a systematized plan of reorganization for all the departments.

Fifteen years ago the Dockery Committee undertook the same task that the President has now assigned to the Keep Committee. Unfortunately for positive results, the Dockery Committee, consisting of members of Congress, had to begin at the bottom and learn every essential detail in the interminable mas of departmental business. The most tangible result was that a volume of questions was asked and two volumes answered as to existing methods of doing business, and very little was actually accomplished in the way of reform. The report of the committee served, however, as a manual of information to Senators and members, to inform them how to get their business done in the departments.

The Keep Committee, consisting of high officials in the departments, starts out with a well-defined idea of how business is transacted and also of needed reforms. But far more important than that it has an indefinite tenure and can put its recommendations in operation as soon as they have the approval of the President. Congress, in the act organizing the Department of Commerce, gave the President authority to consolidate the various bureaus and divisions in the departments when in his judgment such a consolidation would he for the best interests of the Government. Therefore at the outset the Keep Committee has before it a greater possibility of actual usefulness in the way of constructive work than a Congressional committee would have.

The committee has gone over the work of the statistical bureaus carefully. Although when the Department of Commerce was organized there was a consolidation of several such bureaus, there are now a number that might profitably be combined. The Bureau of Labor is practically a statistical office. The Census Bureau is a large statistical machine. As the events of the past Summer have shown, there is a bureau of statistics in the Department of Agriculture. And there is of course the Bureau of Statistics pure and simple, which was converted from an independent bureau to an auxiliary of the Department of Commerce when that department was organized. The Keep Committee has not formulated any recommendation in regard to the consolidation of these separate bureaus, and there has been no decision in the matter as yet. But it is under consideration, and it would not be surprising if the President should eventually make an order to this effect.

One of the most important consolidations that the committee has in mind embraces the numerous bureaus that have charge of erecting buildings for the Government. The largest under the Supervising Architect is in the Treasury Department. But the Quartermaster General of the army is doing a vast amount of building all over the country were barracks, stables, riding halls, clubhouses, storehouses, and houses for officers are in demand. This building for the army has gone on for many years. Millions are spent regularly on this line of work. The Navy Department also has been building extensively.

The Weather Bureau is building gradually all over the country, or was until the present chief of that service diverted funds appropriated for this purpose to a weather college in Virginia. The Keep Committee is considering the advisability of putting all the architectural work under one bureau to the end that there may not only be economy, but sane and artistic construction in such work.

Another branch of work that will admit of consolidation is that of the various chemists in the departments. The Treasury Department, the Department of Agriculture, the Interior Department with the Geological Survey, the Marine Hospital Service, which is a part of the Treasury Department; the Internal Revenue Bureau, all have a force of chemists and separate laboratories involving expenditures for apparatus, for buildings, and supplies, to say nothing of salaries that might be materially reduced by consolidation.

Aside from these obvious and simple chances to reform the departmental service, the Keep Committee has under advisement general modifications of the conditions of clerical work that will result in large economies to the Government. These have to do with the rearrangement of the hours of work. It has been proposed to go back to the day closing at 4 o'clock instead of 4:30, and to give a half holiday every week throughout the year instead of during the heated term, as heretofore. To balance the account for the Government there would go with this change the abolishment of the thirty days of sick leave. Under present rules every classified clerk may have thirty days' sick leave on a physician's certificate during the year. That is, if he is sick his pay goes on. Every clerk has thirty days' vacation leave in the year.

The sick leave is much abused. There have been notorious cases of this. Employes have provided themselves with physicians' certificates and gone to Europe for a good time during the thirty days of sick leave added to their thirty days of vacation. It is believed that the great body of clerks would be glad to exchange the thirty days' sick leave for the half-holiday throughout the year.

A member of the Keep Committee is authority for the statement that some of these proposed changes are sure to come. They will be reported on from time to time, besides the general comprehensive report on the whole subject. But the committee will endeavor to accomplish its work by degrees. Much of its work will arise in the course of daily routine and be passed on as were the various objectionable conditions in the Government Printing Office. The recommendations of the committee in that bureau are still before the President.

BOYCOTT KARPU CITRONS.

Zionists Revenge Themselves for Attacks by Greek Rioters.

The Zionists of Brooklyn, following the example of the Jews in Russia, have issued a boycott against the use of citrons or "esrogin" used in the ceremony of the Feast of Tabernacles, that are imported from Karpu, Greece. This boycott has been standing in Russia against the citrons imported from Karpu ever since the outbreaks against the Jews took place in that city. With the approach of the holidays, the Yiddish papers here took up the question, and both the Jewish Morgen Journal and the Zionist weekly, Der Jüd, wrote against the use of the Karpu citrons on the coming Succoth.

"On one occasion," the Morgen Journal said, "the boycott against the Karpu esrogin has given a death blow to the Greek rioters who have attacked the Jews, and these rioters would have been put out of business were it not for the fact that—to our shame and disgrace—American Jews are helping the enemies of our people by importing citrons chiefly from Karpu."

BANKERS END SESSION; SHIP SUBSIDY URGED

Merchant Marine League Representative Makes Final Plea.

NO DEALS WITH CRIMINALS

Convention Adopts Resolution Denying Frequent Reports—Plan to Insure Depositors Suggested.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—The thirty-first annual convention of the American Bankers' Association concluded its session in this city to-day with the election of the officers nominated yesterday and the installation of John L. Hamilton of Hoopeston, Ill., as President, and G. S. Whitson of the National City Bank, New York, as First Vice President.

The total registration at the convention was 3,400, making this the largest meeting in the association's history. The new Executive Council organized this afternoon by electing Col. J. D. Powers of Louisville Chairman and James R. Branch of New York Secretary for the eleventh term. Two vacancies on the council were filled by the election of Albert H. Curtis of New York and E. A. Potter of Chicago.

The Savings Bank Section presented a protest at having no representation on the Executive Council through a nomination made and then withdrawn.

The convention adopted a resolution denying the frequent reports that the association placed noted criminals on salary to prevent their continued fraudulent operations.

C. P. Ailis of the Second National Bank of Erie, Penn., advocated a system of insurance for National bank deposits. An annual assessment of $100 paid by National banks, he said, would have met all losses to depositors from bank failures in the last five years, and left a surplus of $2,000,000. An annual assessment of $225 for forty years would have paid all such losses in that period. He would have the Government supervise this insurance. Discussion of the subject ended without action.

Harvey D. Goulder, President of the Merchant Marine League, delivered an address on "Our Commerce." He said in part:

"Transportation, its availability on equal terms to every one, its extension by every legitimate means, is one of the great questions. It would be idle to raise wheat or corn or cotton or to mine iron ore and copper, raise cattle, or bring forth any of the products of the forest, the farm, or the factory, without that exchange which depends primarily, almost absolutely, on transportation.

"We in the Great Lakes region boast cheapest transportation in ships which bear comparison with any in the world, with credit of being the finest working fleet afloat, and this beyond fair argument has come through direct Government support of the coasting laws and money to so improve our channels that a modern freighter carries in a trip what her prototype carried in an eight months' season of navigation.

"Our railroads, hauling freight at less than half the cost of any other country, are improving their service by reducing grades, and, so far as possible, taking out the crookedness of the tracks, and the American people are going forward in determined spirit with President Roosevelt and the Congress to remove so far as possible any other crookedness.

"Only through apathy of our people, unmatched in world history, nourished by specious argument of our opponents in the shipping interest, can it be that, when the United States shall have spent a possible $500,000,000 for a commercial canal at the isthmus, our flag shall go through that canal only on an occasional man-of-war or millionaire's yacht.

"We see each year that we pay over to foreigners about $180,000,000 in freights, of which a good share should be circulated in this country, as are the freights paid in the internal land and marine commerce of the United States.

"Free trade nations uniformly have selected the shipping interests, for reasons of far-reaching national importance, as the one single interest to be maintained and encouraged at any proper cost.

"I ask you gentlemen, when you go home, to take up the question of discriminating duties as a purely business problem, and see if with no duties on exports, with 90 per cent. of our goods coming in free from South and Central America, half our goods from all over the world coming in free, with the duties laid precisely the same regardless of the distance traveled by the ship, how a system of discriminating duties could he devised that would be workable.

"What we most need is the delivery wagon style of ship provided with a general subsidy. The price of a single battleship for the navy would more than meet the expense of a thorough experiment."

CHILDREN TO SEE THE WORLD

Illustrated Lectures for Them at the Museum of Natural History.

The American Museum of Natural History announced yesterday that a series of informal illustrated lectures for the school children will begin on Monday. These lectures are to be given by members of the scientific staff of the museum in the museum lecture hall on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays at 4 o'clock.

The lectures will he little more than simple talks accompanying carefully chosen groups of colored stereopticon slides. The subjects, mainly views of American and foreign scenery and life, are designed to supplement the children's classroom studies in history and geography by giving them little glimpses of how the world really looks.

The series begins with a talk on the Philippines by G. H. Sherwood. G. H. Pepper, the authority on Indian lore, will speak on Oct. 23 of "Life Among Our Indians," and on Oct. 25 F. M. Chapman, the bird specialist, will describe "City Bird Life." The other nine lectures will be: "The Industries of the United States," by G. H. Sherwood, Oct. 27; "The Development of New York City," by L. P. Gratacap, Oct. 30; "A Trip Through Mexico and Panama," by M. H. Saville, Oct. 20, and "The Physical Divisions of the United States," by E. O. Hovey, Nov. 6. Each lecture is to he repeated three times dring the season.

The Clearance Stock of P. F. Collier & Son,

ONE OF THE WORLD'S LARGEST PUBLISHING HOUSES, AT MOST SENSATIONAL PRICES IN BOOK HISTORY.

The firm of P. F. Collier & Son are actually the largest publishers of standard works in this country. The same superior character of letterpress and illustrative work that have assisted so materially in making Collier's weekly the leading periodical of our time is equally displayed in the production of all their book publications. Through agencies established throughout the United States they conduct a subscription book business that is enormous.

From all these channels there comes a constant accumulation of books that are more or less marked with handling. The bulk, however, are practically perfect. So great had this accumulation become, an entire warehouse was packed with them from basement to roof. The Collier firm were desirous of disposing of them. They wanted the books out of their way. The space they occupied was sorely needed for other purposes.

They offered and sold this immense stock to us at the greatest actual bona fide sacrifice we ever heard of.

SPECIAL NOTICE. We wish to correct an error of description which inadvertently appeared in our first announcement. This is not the Trade Stock of P. F. Collier & Son. It is the clearance stock of returned and handled books. THEY ARE IMMENSE VALUES.

DELCASSE INVITED WAR WITH BRITISH BACKING

Revelation Made by Mouthpiece of Berlin Foreign Office.

GERMAN INDIGNATION GROWS

French Government Issues a Statement Which Does Not Deny the Truth of the Allegations.

PARIS, Oct. 13.—An even more sensational statement than that published recently in the Matin in regard to the events which preceded the resignation of M. Delcassé is printed in to-day's Figaro. It is written by Alexandre Ular, who is generally regarded as the mouthpiece in Paris of the German Foreign Office.

The French Government has at last issued a semi-official note on the reports regarding the Moroccan crisis. The language of this note is remarkable. It declares that the "published reports upon the incidents accompanying the resignation of M. Delcassé, and notably the details regarding the Cabinet Council preceding his resignation, are inexact."

That details may be inexact in a story which is nevertheless true is the general saying here to-night.

In his article in the Figaro M. Ular says that what actually occurred was as follows:

Before the Moroccan crisis became acute the British Government made three distinct overtures to learn if France were disposed to conclude a treaty of defensive alliance. France declined to consider the question.

Later, when the Moroccan crisis became acute, M. Cambon, the French Ambassador to Great Britain, reopened the question and obtained a verbal assurance from Foreign Secretary Lansdowne of Great Britain's effective aid in the event of a conflagration. M. Cambon was thereupon able to announce to M. Delcassé, (who was then Foreign Minister,) that if a casus foederis (case coming within a treaty) were desired Great Britain would reiterate her assurance in writing.

The German Ambassador in London, Count Wolff-Metternich, learned of these assurances and informed Berlin. Emperor William decided on a counter move and made Italy the medium of its execution. He informed Italy that any treaty whereby Great Britain gave France military support relative to Morocco would constitute a casus belli.

M. Ular asserts that this amounted to an indirect ultimatum, and that the Italian Government communicated the situation to M. Barrère, the French Ambassador to Italy, who informed Paris on June 4.

Immediately thereafter M. Delcassé resigned (June 6) as the result of a violent scene in a Cabinet Council. At this council M. Delcassé is alleged to have said:

Premier Rouvier is represented as answering:

"And I have M. Barrère's telegram proving that this means war if we continue your policy. I refuse to indorse what you seem to treat so lightly."

The other Ministers are said to have upheld M. Rouvier, whereupon M. Delcassé resigned.

COLOGNE, Oct. 13.—The Cologne Gazette prints another inspirted dispatch from Berlin apropos of the Figaro's additions to the Matin's story, which can only be interpreted as a plain hint to the British Government to explain its rôle in the matter.

The dispatch notes that, while the Matin's version only gave ground for the assumption that the suggested alliance of France and Great Britain against Germany had an official character, the Figaro's version confirms this assumption by giving the names of parties. The dispatch says that this makes the case against M. Delcassé all the stronger.

The mention of the name of Lord Lansdowne in connection with the matter sheds upon the story an embarrassing light for Great Britain, according to the dispatch, which says:

"It is exceedingly repugnant to us to regard British statesmen like Premier Balfour and Foreign Minister Lansdowne as capable of such a game, but if such revelations are repeated and remain uncontradicted, one cannot avoid growing more and more skeptical about the matter. The question arises as to how it was possible that French statesmen, who are undoubtedly men to be taken seriously, could have believed that there was an offer of a British alliance if no adequate basis existed for such an exceedingly serious matter."

The dispatch goes on to point out that neither the British nor the French Government has hitherto shown a disposition to come forward with explanations, while the semi-official note regarding the matter issued in Paris to-day is inadequate and calculated rather to increase than to allay suspicion.

A DENIAL BY ENGLAND?

She Is Said to Have Communicated a Statement to Germany.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 13.—A British authority here says that Alexandre Ular's article in the Figaro is, so far as England is concerned, a pure invention.

He says that in point of fact the British Government was displeased with the half-hearted manner in which the Anglo-French convention was voted by the Chamber of Deputies. He adds that when the Colonial Group in the French Parliament put forth feelers to ascertain if England would consent to a closer understanding on the basis of a division of interests in Siam and a condominium in that country, the reply was that the British Government was satisfied with the status quo and was absolutely opposed to any new arrangement or concessions.

LONDON, Oct. 13.—With reference to the Paris Matin's alleged disclosures, it is authoritatively said that the British Government does not intend to issue a formal statement on the subject.

The Associated Press, however, is in a position to announce on high authority that the British Government has communicated to Germany a statement to the effect that Great Britain did not offer to assist France in the event of an attack by Germany, and that France did not ask for such assistance.

REVOLUTION NEAR—GORKY.

He Says It Will Come Like an Avalanche, When Least Expected.

MOSCOW, Oct. 13.—Voicing the sentiments of the extreme wing of the Russian Reformers, Maxim Gorky to-day expressed sincere sorrow at the death of Prince Troubetskoy as a man and a Russian, but declared that Russia had nothing to hope from the activities of such men as the Prince. He added:

"I regret Prince Troubetskoy as a frank, just, and honest man, not as a representative of the Liberal Party, which can never effect great reforms in Russia. The ancestors of Troubetskoy, Galitzin, and Golovin went hand in hand with imperialism. The taint is still in the blood. They are incapable of realizing their splendid opportunities to know and further the needs of the people.

"The revolution will come soon, like an avalanche, when least expected. The disorders at Moscow will perhaps cease temporarily, but will be resumed in a month or two with renewed force."

The case against Gorky has not been tried, but the writer reiterated his determination not to permit the proceedings to be dropped. He said he would force the Government to bring him to trial.

CAPT. TAGGART WINS HIS DIVORCE CASE

Judge Also Places the Children in His Custody.

MRS. TAGGART NOT IN COURT

Judge Eason Says the Charge of Drunkenness Against the Army Officer Was Not Sustained.

WOOSTER, Ohio, Oct. 13.—Judge Eason, who heard the divorce case of Capt. Elmore F. Taggart, rendered his decision today, granting to Capt. Taggart the divorce and the custody of his two children. The court decreed that Mrs. Taggart should be permitted to see the children at stated intervals. Capt. Taggart was in court when the decision was rendered. Mrs. Taggart is ill, and was not present.

Judge Eason before giving his decision reviewed the petitions, cross petitions, answers, and affidavits. The charge of drunkenness against Capt. Taggart, the court said, was not sustained.

In his decision Judge Eason scored "Billy" Taggart, characterizing him as a social outcast. He declared that the charges involving Capt. Bach had not been sustained, but he put Lieut. Fortescue almost on the same plane with "Billy" Taggart. The decision also touched upon Mrs. Taggart's alleged relations with Gen. Miner.

The court declared that Capt. Taggart had been remiss in his duty in not smashing the sideboard and throwing all liquor out of his house. The decision laid the blame of Mrs. Taggart's conduct upon "Billy" Taggart and Fortescue, and denounced both men in the plainest terms. Judge Eason occupied six hours in reading his decision.

Culver, the eldest child of Capt. and Mrs. Taggart, told his mother to-night that no matter what the court said he would rather remain with her. This afternoon before the decision of the court was announced the child went to his mother and said: "Mamma, I won't have to leave you, will I?"

The Taggart home is being watched to-night because of a fear that the children might be kidnapped.

The trial lasted seven weeks. The case went to the court a month ago. The suit was first started in July, 1904, by Capt. Taggart, who filed a petition charging his wife with conduct unbecoming a wife and alleging the excessive use of intoxicants. Mrs. Taggart heard of the proceedings in San Francisco several weeks later, and immediately started for Wooster, tho home of the Taggarts, where she filed a counter petition for divorce against Capt. Taggart alleging cruelty and neglect.

Capt. Taggart is a well-known army officer. He is a graduate of West Point, and has served at various army posts of the country. He was commissary of a division in the Cuban campaign, aided in the relief of the Cubans, served with distinction in the Philippines, was Chief of Police of Manila, and commanded the hospital ship Relief and the transport Sherman.

MISS ROOSEVELT SAILS.

Mr. Harriman Also Starts for Home—He Is Delighted with Japan.

YOKOHAMA, Oct. 13.—The Pacific Mail steamship Siberia sailed for San Francisco this afternoon with Miss Alice Roosevelt and her traveling companions and E. H. Harriman and his party on board. A great send-off was given to the Americans by the Japanese public, the resident foreigners, and the city officials. Before his departure, Mr. Harriman said:

"We have been treated with the utmost courtesy and consideration by all classes of the Japanese people, and largely because we are Americans. We had no disagreeable experiences. At Tokio Dr. Lyle was accidentally hit with a stone when not with the party, he being unknown to his assailant. From all we met with the same direct, straightforward treatment as at home, and experienced no difficulty from the Orientals.

"I believe there is a market here for American goods, but they should be handled by Americans directly representing the shippers, who should closely follow the styles and quality of goods demanded in this market. The market here, like others, has to be carefully watched and competed for. If this is done there will be increasing trade between the two countries, but it cannot be developed suddenly.

"Some previous statements regarding the Oriental trade have been exaggerated. It is very much like trade elsewhere, and needs care in competition.

"I am leaving with regret. Our stay was too short, but I believe it marks the beginning of an association which will result in a lasting commercial alliance between America and Japan. Our interests, however, must be husbanded by direct, straightforward methods."

TWO POLICE CHIEFS SLAIN.

One, It Is Said, Was Largely Responsible for Kishineff Massacre.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 13.—Col. von Eltmann, Chief of Police at Krasnoyarsk, has been murdered.

O. Ossosky, the Assistant Chief of Police at Kishineff, was assassinated to-day. He is said to have been largely responsible for the massacre of Jews in 1903 and the more recent anti-Jewish disturbances at Kishineff.

LOMZA, Russian Poland, Oct. 13.—Several wagon loads of rifle ammunition in charge of Jewish teamsters were captured here to-day.

They were on the way to Warsaw and it is thought that the ammunition is a portion of a supply imported by a band for use in an uprising.

THE REV. MR. LONG TO GO.

Rector Who Quarreled with Mrs. Drexel Will Leave Vincentown, N. J.

Special to The New York Times.

MOUNT HOLLY, N. J., Oct. 13.—The Vestrymen of Trinity Episcopal Church, at Vincentown, and the Rev. J. Franklin Long, the rector who quarreled with Mrs. George W. Childs Drexel, are to part company. Mr. Long has made it known that he intends to leave for Chicago on Oct. 19.

Mr. Long's resignation as rector of the Episcopal church at Vincentown, Medford, and Pemberton was forwarded to Bishop Scarborough a few days ago, and in reply the head of the New Jersey Diocese sent a complimentary letter.

GROUT FIRES SARCASM AT MAXWELL'S HEAD

Controller Calls the School Superintendent an Autocrat.

DERIDES $3,000,000 INCREASE

The Board of Education's estimate for the 1906 budget came before the Board of Estimate yesterday. The Board wants $25,126,040.96, an increase of $3,129,023.19 over its figures for 1905.

E. T. Devine of the Charity Organization Society and Homer Folks appeared before the Board of Estimate and urgently requested that all of the demands of the Board of Education be granted, but urged that, if this were found to be impossible, there be great liberality for supplies and for the evening schools. Mr. Folks spoke for more attendance officers. Controller Grout replied sarcastically that there was no wisdom in forcing unwilling children to school when there were thousands of children who wanted schooling and who could not be accommodated. Mr. Devine then urged the establishment of five more elementary and three more evening high schools.

"If we make appropriation for that purpose," asked the Controller, "could you guarantee that the Board of Education would segregate the money for the purposes intended?"

"While I could not guarantee this," said Mr. Devine, "our society would do all we could to have such action taken."

"It seems to me," Mr. Grout said, "that the only way to achieve anything in the way of improvement in the schools is to give the Board of Education all it wants and demands and then trust to good fortune that the good things are done along with the useless things."

"The Board of Education is like slavery," said the Mayor, "a peculiar institution."

"But, alas! not yet abolished," said President Littleton of Brooklyn.

"Alas!" chorused Mr. Grout.

Clarence A. Davis of the North Side Board of Trade, complained that the money appropriated to the Board of Education was spent on "fads and fancies" instead of giving the children a proper education. He said the mangers of big department stores here had written to him that the public school graduates who applied to them for employment were deficient in penmanship and arithmetic, grammar, and spelling, and their "nature studies" had not increased their observation or initiative.

Controller Grout told Mr. Davis that in the matter of "fads and fancies" the Board of Estimate is restricted by the overshadowing power of Supt. Maxwell, whom he described as "one of the rare men who can stand up against the community and spend the city's money as he pleases."

Dr. David Blaustein of the Educational Alliance told Mayor McClellan that more schools were needed on the east side, and asked that the estimate submitted by the Board of Education be not lessened.

"You seem to be laboring under a misapprehension," said the Controller. "This board has never cut down the estimates for educational purposes. It has been increased annually, and now 25 cents of every dollar turned in by taxpayers goes to the educational fund. We cannot say how the money shall be spent, because Supt. Maxwell is an autocrat who asks for an increase in the amount for more teachers without taking into account the resignations during the year. The money which he gets in that way he can expend in increasing what he calls 'special studies.' The growth of the expenses of the Board of Education has been far greater than the percentage in the growth of population. We cannot say how the money we appropriate shall be used or that a school census ought to be taken.

"There are some members of the Board of Education who do not understand even what it is asked for, and others admit that $1,000,000 of the estimate could be eliminated. The Board of Education simply wants to put this board in the position of cutting down the estimate when it has been giving a large yearly increase. A year or so ago the Board of Education threatened to close the evening schools, but did not do so. That was simply a case of bluff."

The city department heads have asked about $20,000,000 more than the budget of last year, $110,000,000, and the Mayor and Controller are on record as agreed that drastic cutting of the estimates will be necessary.

Curiously enough, of the forty or more persons who appeared before the board yesterday, not one suggested any curtailment of expenses. Mr. Grout told the Mayor that the speakers evidently wanted an advanced tax rate.

ULTIMATUM TO CASTRO.

France Has It Ready, and America Will Make No Objection.

PARIS, Oct. 13.—Official quarters here show growing impatience at President Castro's failure to withdraw his offensive action toward M. Taigny, the French Chargé d'Affaires at Caracas.

Although no definite determination has been reached, intimations are made that the situation may not permit of indefinite delay, as President Castro's inaction may lead French public opinion to require the Government to adopt more decisive measures.

The Foreign Office, however, has given out a categorical denial of a report that the cruiser Chasseloup-Laubat is preparing to join a naval division going to Venezuela.

The officials say that no decision whatever has been reached concerning the measures to be taken against Venezuela. These are awaiting the result of Ambassador Jusserand's conferences with the authorities at Washington.

CARACAS, Oct. 13.—President Castro has gone to La Victoria, Province of Miranda, about forty miles from Caracas.

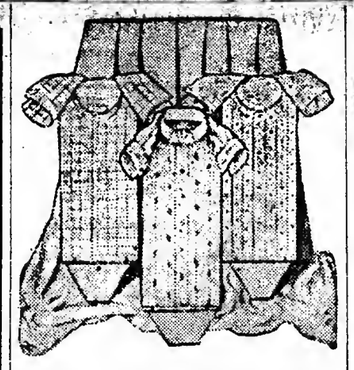
WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Despite the assurances of Foreign Office officials at Paris, it is stated here that a French ultimatum to Venezuela has been practically ready to dispatch for a week or more, and that France will have the full assent of the Washington Government if she decides to adopt an effective course of action in order to obtain the renewal of diplomatic relations and the restoration of French property seized by the Caracas Government.

The French ultimatum, however, will be held up until further conferences between the French officials here and the State Department. So far as Judge Calhoun, the American special Commissioner, has reported to the department, there is nothing in the situation at Caracas that cannot be settled by patient and firm diplomacy.

This Government will give France every possible assistance toward a diplomatic adjustment. A thorough understanding exists between Paris and Washington on this subject, and even if France finds it necessary to establish a pacific blockade against Venezuela the Washington Government will offer no objection, having already assured itself that the Monroe Doctrine is not involved in any way.

Torpedo Boats Bump Off Newport.

NEWPORT, Oct. 13.—While engaged in torpedo flotilla practice off the Brenton's Reef Lightship to-day the Blakeley was in collision with the Dupont. The Blakeley's bow was bent, but she was able to navigate. She will have to go into dry dock. The Dupont was uninjured.



Imported Shirtings to Measure $2.50.

No stunt to produce made-to-measure shirts from domestic materials at 4 for $10. The trick's to make 'em at that price from imported goods. We've turned it.

Here is WOVEN Madras, no prints, from a certain Scotsman, world-famous for shirtings. The patterns are new, varied, and the colors right.

We'll make these shirts to your measure, guaranteeing a fit; embroider your initials on the sleeve; and make them stiff bosom, soft bosom, or plaited.

4 for $10.

W. L. DOUGLAS

THE BEST $3.50 SHOES FOR MEN

W. L. Douglas makes and sells more men's $3.50 shoes than any other manufacturer in the world.

$10,000 REWARD to anyone who can disprove this statement.

W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes have by their excellent style, easy fitting and superior wearing qualities, achieved the largest sale of any $3.50 shoe in the world. They are just as good as those that cost you $5 to $7—the only difference is the price. If I could take you into my factory at Brockton, Mass., the largest in the world under one roof making men's fine shoes, and show you the infinite care with which every pair of Douglas shoes is made, you would realize why W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes are the best shoes produced anywhere.

If I could show you the difference between the shoes made in my factory and those of other makes, you would understand why Douglas $3.50 shoes cost more to make, why they hold their shape, fit better, wear longer, and are of greater intrinsic value than any other $3.50 shoe on the market to-day.

AS GOOD AS $7.00 TO $8.00 CUSTOM SHOES.

"I have worn the W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoe for the past twelve years. Find them to be just as comfortable, more stylish and wear just as long as custom made shoes that cost me $7.00 to $8.00."
MARTIN KELLY, 103 E. 113th Street.

BOYS' SHOES, $2.00 AND $1.75.
Just the same as my men's $3.50 shoes, the same leathers, for $2.00 and $1.75.

Only Fast Color Eyelets used; they will not wear brassy.

WROTE OF HOPKINS'S THREATS TO MURDER

His Sister's Letter to Slain Wife Put in Evidence.

WIFE FIRED FIRST, SHE SAYS

Mrs. Bruyn Testified That Hopkins Shot Twice, Once After His Wife Had Fallen.

Denton H. Hopkins, who killed his wife, Jessie, at 46 Johnson Street, Brooklyn, last Saturday, was held without bail in the Adams Street Court yesterday.

Mrs. Jennie Bruyn, sister of the defendant, was the only witness examined. District Attorney Clarke introduced a letter written by Mrs. Bruyn tending to show that Hopkins had threatened to kill his wife. The letter is as follows:

Dear Sister: Your letter received. Glad you are settled in a home, and I do hope you and Denton will get together again. It is better to die together.

Jess, I started this letter on Saturday and I got your letter to-day, so I will write to answer this one. Jess, I don't know, but I think he must be crazy. He wrote me a nice letter, and wants me to come down. He said he has been poisoned. Melvin ought to know. If he is crazy he ought to be taken in hand. I am not afraid of him; not at all. If he attempts to shoot me I would have him taken to some sanitarium. If I would talk to him I could tell. I think it is rum that he is drinking. Keep out of his way. Harry, too. He wrote me a nice letter, and wants me to come down. He said you have got him to sign his money over to you, and then he did not die soon enough to please you, and you lied when you said those things about Jen. He does not want her, but if he wants to talk to any one he will do it. You never asked him when you speak to any one, but you want to tell him when he can speak. I will write to him to-day, and tell him to cut that shooting out, and I will talk to him. But I am not afraid of him. The first thing I would do I would have that revolver taken away from him. He wants me to come down and go with him to the doctor's, and he will prove all he said. If he is crazy he must be attended to. Melvin ought to know. Look out for him, and take good care of yourself. Love to Harry. JEN.

Mrs. Bruyn said that on the morning of the tragedy she had been sitting in the dining room with Mrs. Hopkins when she heard a knock at the door. Mrs. Hopkins responded, and Mr. Hopkins entered.

Then, Mrs. Bruyn swore, Mrs. Hopkins fired one shot, and Hopkins held up his left hand as if to ward it off. After firing the shot Mrs. Hopkins turned just as her husband fired. She staggered a few feet and fell. The man fired again, and, turning, left the house.

Mrs. Bruyn was cross-examined briefly by ex-District Attorney James W. Ridgway, but did not change her story. Mr. Ridgway said he would waive further examination, and Hopkins was taken back to Raymond Street Jail.

CALL HIM BLACK HAND CHIEF.

Detectives Say Pitira Is the Most Desperate Man in New York.

The most desperate character in New York and one of the shrewdest of the Italian blackmailers, according to the description of him given by Detective Sergeant Petrosino, is in the custody of the police. He is Filici Pitira, a saloon keeper at 36 Elizabeth Street. He was arrested on Wednesday and was charged in the Yorkville Police Court yesterday with implication in the murder of Stefano Delluvio of 334 East Sixty-third Street, who died on Tuesday night from a stab wound received in the street near his home last Saturday afternoon. The police were unable to get much information from the Italians near by.

Detective Sergeants Benoli and Petrosino told Magistrate Walsh yesterday that they believed the prisoner Pitira to be the organizer and chief plotter of the "Black Hand" society, which has been operating in New York and Brooklyn. They had been watching his movements, they said, for eleven months, and had seen him with the most desperate Sicilians and Calabrians. Magistrate Walsh held the prisoner until this morning to give the police time to get more evidence.

Benoli said yesterday, after Pitira was held:

"We received an anonymous letter yesterday morning saying that this man Filici Pitira was the one who stabbed Delluvio. When Pitira was searched he had $1,308 in his possession for which he could give no account. Detectives have been out all day and will be out all to-night looking for witnesses who were present when Delluvio was stabbed."

LAKEWOOD, Oct. 13.—At a meeting of the Directors of the Lakewood Young Men's Christian Association last night it was announced that by the will of Mrs. Julia J. McCartee, who died last April, $95,000 will accrue to the association. A modern Y. M. C. A. building will be erected. Mrs. McCartee was for years a Winter resident of Lakewood.

A FULL HEARST TICKET

To be Put Up To-night—100,000 Votes Sure, Says Ihmsen.

William R. Hearst opened headquarters yesterday in the Hoffman House, from which to conduct his canvass as candidate for Mayor on the Municipal Ownership ticket. Max F. Ihmsen, manager of Mr. Hearst's political fortunes, will be in charge.

Mr. Hearst visited the headquarters last night and conferred with ex-Senator Ford, candidate for Controller; Thomas F. Gilleran, who was Chairman of the City Convention; Judge Ssabury of the City Court, and others. Judge Seabury was appointed Chairman of a campaign committee which is to be organized immediately.

After the meeting it was announced that "a number of prominent Republicans have taken a lively interest in Mr. Hearst's campaign," and that a "Committee of One Hundred, composed of the strongest Republicans," would be organized in a few days to help out the Municipal Ownership ticket and Mr. Hearst's candidacy. No information was to be had as to how this committee was to be composed, and who the leaders of the Republican Hearst movement are, but it is supposed that the initiative in this action to muster up a following among the Republicans was taken by Mr. Ford.

Announcement was also made of a mass meeting, the first one so far arranged, at which Mr. Hearst, Senator Ford, and J. G. Phelps Stokes, candidate for President of the Board of Aldermen, in all probability will speak. It will be held next Thursday evening at Zeltner's Hall in the Bronx, where Coroner William J. O'Gorman leads the Hearst forces. It was also announced that Mr. Hearst would make at least two speeches in Brooklyn and would address at least one meeting on the east side and another on the west side in Manhattan.

Mr. Ihmsen announced that owing to the unexpected and altogether remarkable enthusiasm that characterized their City Convention at Carnegie Hall on Thursday night, the Municipal Ownership forces would put not only a city ticket, but a full county and borough ticket, in the field.

The County and Borough Conventions will not be public like the convention at which Mr. Hearst and his running mates on the city ticket were put up. In all probability it will be held in the United Charities Building.

Clarence J. Shearn, who for some years has been Mr. Hearst's own counsel, is said to have been selected as candidate for District Attorney. Thomas F. Gilleran, who was Chairman of the City Convention, will probably be put up for a Supreme Court Justiceship, and City Court Judge Joseph F. Palmieri for General Sessions.

Mr. Ihmsen announced that a campaign committee would be organized immediately to gather funds and make plans for a campaign of the whirlwind variety. Some 200 orators are to be provided to help out the Hearst speeches. Cart-tail oratory and plenty of red fire are ligely to be features of the campaign.

Petitions were sent out broadcast over the city yesterday from the headquarters of the Municipal Ownership League, and Mr. Ihmsen said that he expected that in two or three days these would be returned with a sufficient number of signatures to give the nominations valid force.

Mr. Ihmsen predicted that Mr. Hearst and the other candidates on the ticket would poll at least 100,000 votes.

HEARST TICKET IN BROOKLYN.

Coler for Borough President and Flaherty for Sheriff.

The Municipal Ownership League ticket for Brooklyn was made complete last night after a series of meetings between the Nominating Committee and the committee of Manhattan Borough. Here it is:

For Borough President—BIRD S. COLER.
For Sheriff—MICHAEL J. FLAHERTY.
For Register—ALFRED J. BOULTON.
For County Clerk—CHARLES T. HARTZHEIM.
For Coroners—HENRY J. BREWER, M. D., and Alderman WILLIAM BOERNER.

The ticket would have been complete a week ago except for the interference of Candidate Hearst. He was opposed to the nomination of Coroner Michael J. Flaherty for Sheriff, and insisted on the substitution of another name. This Flaherty's friends declined to permit, and Mr. Coler, ending the debate, told Hearst plainly that he would not run at all unless the Coroner was given the best place on the ticket.

The Municipal Ownership movement was first instituted by Coroner Flaherty and his friends in Brooklyn over two years ago. Mr. Hearst's organization is much younger. The candidacy of Justice Joseph A. Burr, the Republican nominee for the Supreme Court, is indorsed.

It has been arranged to ratify the borough and county nominations in the Johnson Building, Nevins Street, near Fulton, next Monday evening.

BOARDMAN FOR M'CLELLAN

Republican and Former Partner of Ivins Indorses the Mayor.

Albert B. Boardman of the law firm of Boardman, Platt & Soley wrote an open letter to Mayor McClellan yesterday indorsing him for re-election. Mr. Boardman is a Republican, and formerly was a law partner of William M. Ivins, the Republican Mayoralty candidate. One of his present partners is Frank H. Platt, son of Senator Thomas C. Platt. In his letter Mr. Boardman said:

Although I am a Republican, I have determined to vote for you at the approaching municipal election for the following reasons:

First—You are entitled to a re-election on your record. You have given the City of New York the most intelligent administration which it has had during the past twenty years, and upon this point I feel that I can qualify as an expert witness.

Second—You are as well equipped as any man I know by temperament, character, and experience, to solve wisely the important municipal problems of the near future. Unless the growth of the City of New York is retarded by dishonesty or stupidity, it is destined to become, within a period of time short in the life of a great city, the most important metropolis of the world. Its present limit of debt-incurring capacity is small, and nothing should be done to weaken its credit. It needs new school houses, improved water fronts, better paved and cleaner streets, more small parks, and a substantial enlargement of underground rapid transit facilities. Additional subways must be provided without the expenditure of an unnecessary dollar of the city's money.

In other words, private capital must be obtained for construction. This result must be accomplished without the sale of perpetual franchises. To obtain the best results all along the line we must have at the head of the city government a man of tact, experience, and business ability. He must also have sufficient courage to do what is best for the city, irrespective of ignorant popular clamor. In my opinion you are the man for the place, and you should receive the votes of the intelligent and conservative electorate irrespective of party affiliations.

TAMMANY'S SAFE OPEN,

But It Took an Expert to Get It Ready for the Campaign.

Tammany's huge safe, which stands in the main room of the Wigwam, where Charles F. Murphy's desk is, and where he receives his lieutenants and political visitors, was the centre of interest at the Fourteenth Street headquarters yesterday. Mr. Murphy was at Good Ground, where he will remain until Monday.

Secretary Thomas F. Smith started yesterday to get the big safe into commission for the campaign, but the combination would not respond to his most insinuating efforts. It had been several months since the safe had been "worked," and the mechanism did not respond at all. Mr. Smith was chaffed. Then a safe expert was called in.

Even the expert could not get the combination in running order, so he took the mechanism apart, and at last succeeded in getting the massive doors open, revealing books, papers, and other property of the Tammany Society and of the political organization. A new combination was put on the door, and the safe now is ready for its business of the campaign.

Things were very quiet at Tammany yesterday, as they also were at Mayor McClellan's political headquarters in the Hotel Bartholdi. As a matter of fact nothing will be done in a campaign way until next week. Tammany will hold its ratification meeting in the Wigwam on Thursday night. All of the candidates will speak. The Commercial Travelers' League will start its noonday meetings at 397 Broadway on Monday. Herman A. Metz, candidate for Controller, and several other speakers, will be there.

WHAT USE? PARKHURST SAID.

He Was About to Discuss Flammer's Chance to Succeed Jerome.

"What's the use in discussing Magistrate Flammer?" said the Rev. Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst when a TIMES reporter told him last night of the Republican choice for District Attorney. "I have nothing against Flammer, but his chances are about one in a thousand. What's the use?

"The situation is chaotic. It certainly is true, as has been said, that if we had been lacking in good men as much in '76 as we seem to be now, the country would have gone to the bow-wows. But that isn't it, exactly. There are enough good men, but the politicians don't want them. They want men whom they can influence, sway. They have absolutely no use for the broad, sturdy men with backbone. Yes, there are some exceptions.

"Jerome is an exception. I feel convinced that he will be elected. There is a certain bravado—no, that isn't exactly the word I would like to use—but there is certainly a something about him that the public likes.

"McClellan? I have said some nice things about McClellan. I think he will be elected. I fear, however, that the vote which will be cast for him will be construed as being rather more for the party which he represents than a tribute to the personality of the man."

Then Mr. Parkhurst thought.

"The poor Republicans," he continued in a soliloquizing way. "They certainly have had a time of it.

"Ivins! Oh, yes, I know him. He's a very good man, but I haven't heard much about him in late years. I don't think that he has been in public life recently, has he? I believe he figured in the Fassett investigation.

"And Hearst—no, I don't think he will be elected. Now I am in favor of municipal ownership—mind you, very strongly in favor of it. But—well, I simply don't think Mr. Hearst a safe man. I am sure, too, that many others think as I do about it. He is for the poor, and against property."

"Don't you think that the entire situation may be changed before election—that there may be some political juggling—some getting together?" Dr. Parkhurst was asked.

Dr. Parkhurst shook his head. "No," he said, "I hardly think so. There isn't time enough.

"It certainly has been a singular campaign thus far," Dr. Parkhurst added; "the most singular I remember."

MINOR TICKETS.

A Few Belated Nominations for Assembly and Aldermen.

In the Fifteenth Assembly District last night the new leader, The McManus, picked out Owen W. Dohan for the Assembly candidate. Dohan's election is a certainty. He is a member of the law firm of Levy & Unger.

In the Eighteenth District, William P. Kenneally was nominated as Alderman Gaffney's successor. He is a steamfitter. His election is also certain. Edward B. La Fetra was renominated for Assembly.

In the Tenth District Cornelius Huth has been named for Assembly. He will be opposed by Samuel Hoffman, and the fight will probably be close. Jacob Stiefel was nominated to succeed Alderman Leopold Harburger.

In the First District Elmer E. Cochrane was nominated by the Republicans for member of Assembly. The district is heavily Democratic.

BERMEL OUT IN 8 MINUTES.

Cassidy Men Expel Him from a Club of Which He Was President.

It took exactly eight minutes for the friends of President Joseph Cassidy of Queens to organize the regular monthly meeting of the Second Ward Democratic Association last night and to expel Joseph Bermel, its organizer and President, on the ground that he had betrayed the association by accepting the Republican nomination for Borough President.

McClellan In Brooklyn.

Mayor McClellan will make a "whirlwind trip" through Brooklyn next Friday night. Accompanied by Herman A. Metz, the candidate for Controller, he will make two speeches in Williamsburg, one in East New York, and another in Prospect Hall, South Brooklyn. From there he will go to Saengerbund Hall, at Smith and Schermerhorn Streets, and talk to the voters in the lower part of the borough. After this meeting a short reception in his honor will be held at the Kings County Democratic Club.

Anti-Tammany In the Bronx.

At a meeting of committees representing the Committee of One Hundred, the Municipal League, and the Citizens' Union held at Bathgate Avenue and 177th Street last night, to select candidates for an anti-Tammany campaign, these names were announced as the nominees on the Municipal Ownership ticket:

For Assemblymen—Thirty-fourth District, Charles Campbell; Thirty-fifth District, John D. Atherton; Annexed District, J. Mayhew Wainwright, Rep., (renominated.)

For Aldermen—Thirty-eighth District, Charles Kuntze; Thirty-ninth District, Joseph Weil; Fortieth District, Francis J. O'Neill; Forty-first District, John Muller; Forty-second District, Michael Redmond; Forty-third District, Thomas Dinwoodie; Forty-fourth District, Thomas J. Mulligan.

Citizens' Union Rejects Tompkins.

At the Citizens' Union Assembly Convention, in the Fifth District, last night, a majority of the delegates refused to nominate Assemblyman Leslie J. Tompkins, who opposed so many vicious measures in the House last session. Tompkins had the indorsement of the Citizens' Union Legislative Committee in the strongest terms. The district is close, Tompkins defeating Richard Van Cott last year by 64 plurality in a total vote of more than 8,000.

ANOTHER BROOKLYN FIREBUG.

Fourth Blaze While the Fire Marshal Is Hearing of the Others.

Fire Marshal Beers of Brooklyn had another case of incendiarism reported to him yesterday by Mrs. Kate Hahn of 103 Knickerbocker Avenue. Since Oct. 4, Mrs. Hahn says, four attempts have been made to burn down the three-story tenement in which she lives.

The first attempt was made on Oct. 4, when fire was discovered in the cellar under the stairway. Some one had ignited a pile of kindling wood soaked with kerosene. The fire was extinguished. Later on the same day Mrs. Hahn's daughter, Barbara, found a pile of paper and wood burning in the hallway on the second floor outside the door of her mother's flat.

Two days later a fire was discovered in the same place. In the pile of wood was found a cigar end. The fourth attempt was made yesterday, while Mrs. Hahn was in Fire Marshal Beers's office lodging her complaint. Again it was Barbara, her daughter, who discovered the fire, and again it was in the same place. The girl put out the fire with a bucket of water and then fainted. In the pile of half-burned paper and wood was a cigarette end.

ANOTHER DISAPPOINTMENT.

We remarked a day or two ago upon the opportunity Secretary SHAW wasted when he addressed the American Bankers' Association in platitudes upon banking ethics and neglected to say anything practical regarding the financial problems which have caused him anxiety in the exercise of the functions which he is about to resign. We have now to record another disappointment of the same sort. The association itself hilariously adopted a resolution upon subsidies and had nothing to say regarding the report of its Currency Committee. As a personal tribute to Secretary SHAW a complimentary approval of the subject of his eloquent remarks might have been allowed to pass unnoticed. But the contrast indicated by the perfunctory dismissal of the one topic and the enthusiastic adoption of the other challenges attention How came the excellent Secretary to talk about subsidies to bankers, anyway? Politically and economically the topic is contentious, whatever its merits, and neither politically nor economically have the bankers any especial function or information about the matter. Are we to infer that this is the only one of the Republican proposals which the bankers approve? Do they disapprove the railway rate regulation project, which is equally suitable for their approval, or which is rather equally unsuitable? Or did they indorse subsidies by way of helping their guest's Presidential boom? Such questions suggest the imprudence of bankers abandoning their especial aptitudes and wandering afield toward goals whither they have no call to lead.

On the other hand the bankers have a very special call to lead and stimulate opinion regarding financial topics, and they were even less equal to the occasion than the Secretary himself. And they have less excuse. Secretary SHAW, when he neglected to speak about matters peculiarly within his province, at least did talk about affairs relating to banking. And when he had another opportunity to speak, although subsidies was his topic, he did append or inject, apparently as an afterthought, a repetition of his Ohio remarks retracting or at least amending his sarcastic remarks regarding "rubber" currency. Nor did Mr. VANDERLIP neglect the subject. Wall Street's sagacious bears in their search for ammunition eagerly seized upon what they took to be a market tip regarding the speculative position of the important interest for which Mr. VANDERLIP sometimes speaks. But Mr. VANDERLIP attached importance rather to other portions of his address. "First," he said, among the rocks ahead, "is our illogical and unscientific currency system. We know that this system may at any time breed us trouble." We cordially commend this paragraph in its entirety to the prophets of ill. We heartily approve the remedies suggested by the association's Currency Committee. And we indicate for every thinking man's consideration that the association shirked the duty placed directly before it by three such authorities and enforced by day to day events which absorb the attention of every banker.

A stronger word than disappointment is applicable to this lame and impotent conclusion. Yet there are compensations. A year ago it was the committee itself which avoided its call to duty. Its excuse then was that agreement was impossible and inaction was better than divided action. This year the committee has been able to agree, and its agreement commands approval. It does not cover every topic, nor if all its recommendations were enacted would financial disturbance disappear. It is probably necessary to add that not everybody will entirely approve all it says. Yet the great body of instructed financial opinion will approve such axioms as the retirement of our fiat currency, the provision of a specific means of redeeming our silver currency in gold, the authorization of relief from the Treasury's absorption of currency into safe deposit, thus withdrawing it from the uses of the money market, and the stimulation of the issue of bank currency by facilitating its retirement. The programme is incomplete, but it ought to be non-contentious. True, there are neither dividends nor votes in it. Neither was any magnetic speech delivered in favor of it. Nor would it be to the pecuniary interest of the bankers to have it adopted. They thrive best in troublous times, when borrowers will pay any interest and lenders can choose their collateral. The topics upon which the committee delivered itself, and which the convention has thus far shirked, are in the interest of worried investors and perplexed seekers for banking accommodation. The "big people" know very well how to protect themselves. It is the numerous little people who have a right to be disappointed by the silence and inaction of those who ought to give a lead upon obscure topics peculiarly within their province.

THE FLAMMER NOMINATION.

Mr. IVINS has been most shabbily treated by the Republican machine. If there was any one motive that more than another prompted his acceptance of the Mayoralty nomination it must have been a desire to help Mr. JEROME in his brave fight for re-election. That was the one object for which he would have put forth his whole strength in the campaign. The candidate for Mayor had a prescriptive right to insist that Mr. JEROME'S name be placed upon the ticket. Mr. IVINS pleaded, but the machine was obdurate. It would not even soften the blow by nominating a serious candidate, for the nomination of ex-Magistrate FLAMMER is of course a piece of cheap and vulgar pleasantry.

There was no reason capable of being presented to the minds of honest men why the Republicans should not have made Mr. JEROME their candidate for District Attorney. The theory that they refused to nominate him in pursuance of an agreement with Tammany is at least plausible. If Mr. MURPHY could be sure that the Republicans would not take up Mr. JEROME, he could safely leave his name off the Tammany ticket. The suspicion that such a bargain was made is not without supporting evidence in the behavior of the two conventions. Mr. IVINS would be abundantly justified now in refusing to permit the use of his name at the head of the ticket. He at least must have wanted to make a serious canvass. The nomination of FLAMMER puts the Republican campaign into quite a different category.

BRITISH DECADENCE.

Lord ROSEBERY'S preface to Mr. ALFRED STEAD'S "Great Japan," of which we gave an account yesterday, is calculated to startle the British public as well as other publics. Lord ROSEBERY is almost the last man in the British Empire from whom we should have expected such a jeremiad. A political jeremiad we indeed might have expected from him, on the slight but to him sufficient ground that he is not in office. It is quite true that his performances when in office were not calculated to inspire confidence in his wisdom. Rather they were calculated to promote a belief that witty and even seemingly wise speeches do not tend to the salvation of a nation as compared with sensible and considerate action. As Prime Minister and as Foreign Secretary Lord ROSEBERY had the opportunity, ten years gone, to exert a decisive influence upon foreign and domestic politics. His effect upon domestic politics was to deepen and widen the schism in the Liberal Party begun by the premature ambition of Mr. CHAMBERLAIN to occupy the shoes of Mr. GLADSTONE before Mr. GLADSTONE had done wearing them. His effect on foreign politics was to involve his country in a frightful predicament from which it has only just recovered, if indeed it have recovered, by the new Anglo-Japanese alliance. All the complications which this alliance is assumed to simplify were avoidable. If Lord ROSEBERY had spoken up "loud and bold" ten years ago, and declared that Great Britain would not consent to the bullying of Japan out of the fruits of her victory over China, in which Russia persuaded France and Germany to join her, there need have been no further trouble and no Russo-Japanese war, at least not for many years.

Practically, Lord ROSEBERY'S personal procedures are the strongest ground of the British pessimist. In spite of which, Lord ROSEBERY, as a Fortunate Youth, generalizing from his own experience of British life, has continued to be the leading optimist, the very Pangloss, of British politics. Everything to him is for the best in the best of all possible worlds. And the shock is the greater when this rosy optimist suddenly breaks out and tells his countrymen that they are "inefficient" and that it behooves them to take pattern by Japan. Lord ROSEBERY'S advice is very much like that given in the Scripture to the young man who had great possessions. "Sell all thou hast and give to the poor." For it is quite plain that all the Japanese virtues, which Lord ROSEBERY commends to his countrymen, are virtues connected with poverty, while all the vices of the British system, of which we should have said that Lord ROSEBERY was one of the most shining and contented products, are connected with a secular prosperity. The "simple life" in Japan is the result not of choice but of necessity, just as it was for the American colonists, for instance, at the beginning of the American Revolution, and long afterward. The noble Earl is in effect advising his countrymen to dematerialize themselves and their standards. Such advice, to perhaps the most materialized people on the face of the earth, whose standards of success are all based upon money and social distinction, and among whom what we call "pull" has more to do than it has anywhere else with advancement, is likely to remain the voice of Wisdom crying in the streets and no man regarding her. Lord ROSEBERY'S jeremiad is quite in the line of the similar jeremiads of Mr. KIPLING, notably in "The Islanders." Without any doubt self-sacrificing patriotism is better for a nation than self-seeking, and the pursuit of the ideal than the accumulation of the material. But the statesman and the bard will have their work cut out for them if they really mean to substitute self-sacrifice for self-seeking as the working hypothesis of the average Briton.

THE WIDOW'S CRUISE.

A Widow Woman whose husband was Dead longed to re-enter the Married State. Approaching the Grand Inquisitor one day she importuned him thus: "Won't you Take me, Mr. Hughes? We could be so Happy together." "Doubtless you could be happy with Anybody, Madam," replied the Inquisitor, edging Rapidly away, "but I have Fish to Fry ye know not of."

The Widow resumed her Cruise. Many men did she Implore, and upon some she laid Compelling hands, but they Eluded her all, until she was in Despair and worn almost to Skin and Bone, and was in Sharp distress, insomuch that she sought the Waterfront with intent to jump off the Dock.

There by fair Good Fortune she espied an Old Campaigner coming Ashore, and at once in great Joy as one Saved, she cried out: "He is the one I long have sought!

Bei ihm, bei ihm, ist Seligkeit,
Und ohne Wilhelm Hoelle!

Oh, Sir, be my helpmeet, my Candidate!" And as one who hears a strain of long-forgotten Music that Old Campaigner pinched himself, wondering if he were living in present time, or whether some magician had transported him back to the Days of Grace.

"Your offer is honorable," he ruminated, "though Sudden. Not an unseemly Match, after all. I've been Out of It for Twenty years; you never were In. Yes, yes! I accept. I'm yours." And the Old Campaigner unflinchingly faced the Comers, humming:

So he thinks he'll take to the seas again
For one more cruise with his buccaneers,
And singe the beard of the King of Spain,
And carry away the Dean of Jean
And sell him in Algiers.

IS THE REPUBLICAN PARTY DYING?

A partisan contemporary asks, "Is the Democratic Party dying?" The basis of the question is the Administration's adoption of some Democratic ideas, and the praise of the President by some Democratic leaders and conventions. Thus the Rhode Island Democratic Convention on Thursday approved Mr. ROOSEVELT'S railway rate regulation ideas, and Tammany, like Mr. BRYAN, has indorsed a political opponent.

These and similar incidents suggest to us rather the question whether the Republican Party is dying, or perhaps it might better be said committing political hara-kiri by abandoning possible sources of strength and adopting extravagancies and erraticisms adapted to weaken it with conservative men of all parties. Praise by Tammany and BRYAN for the adoption of semi-Socialistic fads are doubtful signs of Republican vitality or of Democratic decease. On the other hand, the deliberate repudiation by the Administration of measures demanded by sober Republicans certifies that it is losing strength in its own house. Thus the Ohio Republicans condemned by silence and inaction Mr. ROOSEVELT'S railway rate vagaries, and the Massachusetts Republicans indorsed the tariff reform programme which Mr. ROOSEVELT rejected.

Democratic interpretation of such incidents is less authoritative than Republican. We learn from the stoutest of Republican sheets that Gov. CUMMINS tells the Iowa Republicans that Republican disruption is imminent:

Slowly but surely we are making a clear issue upon the tariff and reciprocity between the members of the Republican Party.

Reasonable revision, reasonable reciprocity, and reaaonable railway regulation go hand in hand, the invincible trio of reform. If, temporarily, they do not win, mark my prediction that they will go down in defeat together.

Those are the ideas of a leading Republican. They certainly are more Democratic than Republican in their quality. Those who wish may discern Democratic decease in Republican insistence upon an irrational tariff, oppressive and confiscatory railway regulation, and the denial of measures demanded by commercial bodies of no politics whatever. While the Democrats are adopting Mr. ROOSEVELT, it appears to us that Mr. ROOSEVELT is presenting the winning issues to his opponents if they will have them. The next campaign will not repeat the precedent when Democratic votes elected a Republican President. Conditions are ripening rather for repetition of the defeat of the candidate of the extremists of all parties by the coalescence of the reasonables and conservatives of all parties.

M. DELCASSE'S INDISCRETION.

There is no doubt that the late French Minister of Foreign Affairs has committed a "blazing indiscretion" in confiding to a newspaper that Great Britain was prepared to go to the armed assistance of France against Germany in the Mediterranean. But it is still possible that M. DELCASSE knew, humanly speaking, exactly what he was about. Considering the circumstances under which he was forced out of office at the demand of Germany, in consequence of the military weakness which Japan had developed in France's ally, the political object of M. DELCASSE may now be assumed to be the isolation of Germany. To this object nothing could more powerfully contribute than such a revelation as he has now made.

But it is extremely unlikely that Germany has gone, or is going, the length of "demanding an explanation" of Great Britain. Founding such a demand upon a reported interview of a former French Minister in a newspaper is by no means a diplomatic procedure. If M. DELCASSE were still a member of the French Cabinet it would be in order for Berlin to demand explanations from Paris. But a demand for explanations from London would be met by one of those "dementis" which are understood to be only diplomatically denials. In fact, the answer of London to Berlin would have to be some polite version of the assertion that it is none of Germany's business what Great Britain did or did not promise France, in view of a contingency which was not realized. And in the meantime the political isolation of Germany would be emphasized. If, we repeat, that was M. DELCASSE'S object, he has attained it. And he will have attained it with all the more completeness the more Germany stirs up a matter which Germany is mainly interested in dropping.

AUTUMN BOOKS.

THE NEW YORK TIMES to-day comprises, besides its voluminous news section, the regular Saturday supplement, increased in size to forty pages, largely devoted to a general view of the literary output of the Autumn of 1905, and including classified lists, filling many columns, of new and forthcoming books in every department of literature. THE NEW YORK TIMES SATURDAY REVIEW OF BOOKS treats, first of all, of books as news, and the good news of the book world it has to set forth for its many readers this morning is that the publishing trade is flourishing and that the supply of good new books is large. This is a wholesome condition upon which we congratulate our readers, who are all interested in the production of good books.

But the lists of Fall publications, the descriptive articles pertaining thereto, with the publishers' announcements accompanying them, (in themselves entertaining and instructive reading,) do not make all or nearly all of this special number of THE NEW YORK TIMES BOOK REVIEW. There are many pages of sound, impartial, well-written reviews. The articles, for instance, on the new edition of ALFRED DE MUSSET'S complete works, Prof. EDWARD DOWDEN'S study of Montaigne, the new volume of the American Nation series, HUTTON'S "Cities of Umbria," and some of the new novels, such as "The Ballingtons" and "The Edge of Circumstance," are of the tone and quality which, we believe, best help the reader in his selection of new books, and are the kind of literary reviews that are therefore most influential in the development of culture. There are others equally good.

It will be seen that we are proud of this special number of THE NEW YORK TIMES SATURDAY REVIEW OF BOOKS. We cordially commend it to all our readers, every one of whom will receive a copy of it with to-day's paper.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Dangers and Dangers.

According to Mrs. STEVENSON, President of the Massachusetts Woman's Christian Temperance Union, "the open-work stocking is full of danger." This statement will come with the shock of a great surprisa to the often-mentioned man-in-the-street, who from his occasional glimpses of the garment in question has always supposed it to be full of—that is, he never saw any room in it for anything except—we mean that the President of the Massachusetts Woman's Christian Temperance Union ought to, and no doubt does, know all that is to be known on a subject like this, and when she says that the open-work stocking is full of danger the question is settled. A ribald ruffian who writes pieces for The Baltimore Sun has tried to explain Mrs. STEVENSON'S condemnation on the theory that open-work stockings have an exhilarating effect upon beholders that amounts to intoxication, and that antagonism to them is therefore as consistent as it is reasonable in a lady who specializes in the abolition of all giddy joys. For our own part we can and will believe that Mrs. STEVENSON had in mind when she spoke—if a lady President ever does speak and doesn't always lecture—only the welfare of her weaker and unwiser sisters, and that the danger she fears is that of taking cold. Any doctor, we are sure, would confirm her belief in the existence of this danger and of others, thoracic but analogous; probably many doctors have confirmed it, for doctors are always talking nonsense of that sort and ignoring the evidence of their own eyes that women can safely wear anything that fits and is becoming in their own eyes, utterly regardless of meteorologic conditions and the awful consequences to men that would follow if they took the same chances with wind and weather. The doctors thus convince a few women of the lady President type and so provide the latter with interesting occupation for their old—with something useful and superior to do, that is, after the emptiness of common joys has been thankfully and reverently realized. We are ashamed of the ribald ruffian on The Baltimore Sun, and would respectfully suggest to his owners—we mean to his employers—that he be set at some more soothing job—the selection of verses on Love and Autumn, for instance, to put in the southeast corner of their editorial page.

Apprehensions of an Admiral.

Admiral DEWEY'S assertion that all our naval officers except the Lieutenants are so much too old for their respective positions that in case of a war on the sea the Nation would surely meet with disaster will strike a good many of those who read it as coming under the description of "important if true"—no, of "important IF true." The Admiral seems to think that he takes the sting out of this contention, for his brother officers, at least, by calling attention to the fact that he is, and for some years has been, what is called "well along in life," but if he should be incautious enough to lend an attentive ear to murmurs coming from the fleets in the next week or two we fear he might hear expressed by one euphemism or another—naval officers are notable for delicacy of speech—the opinion that, however it may be with the service in general, the Admiral himself need not regret that sge has robbed him of the impulsiveness or the hair-trigger judgment supposed to be characteristic of youth alone. It is even possible that he may learn that others still credit him with a capacity for indiscretion which many a middy would be proud of while on shore leave for a night—and extremely sorry for the next day. However, the good Admiral only echoed, though he may not have known it, the ancient Gallic moan, "si la jeunesse savait, si la vieillesse pouvait," and it is the easiest thing in the world to ascribe his apprehension of National disaster to an overmodest estimate of his own present powers, combined with time-dimmed memories of youth's knowledge—which is not always as small as it might be, either in war or love. But Admiral DEWEY was doubtless serious, and we must be serious with him. Innumerable people on innumerable occasions have very wisely lamented the impossibility of grafting old heads on young shoulders, but the world has been getting along so well for so many centuries with the two divided that there is much reason for suspecting that it's a pretty good way, after all, and that the change so confidently suggested as an improvement on existing methods would be a mistake. Yet slowness of promotion is a terrible discouragement to young officers, and in theory, perhaps in fact, it drives many of them from the navy before the country gets back its expenditures for their education and training. The prospect of early retirement, however, with any solatiums within reason as understood by a Congressional committee, might do as much, or even more, evil of the sama sort, and the public mind has a firm conviction that the American Navy is at any given moment—say, 9 A. M. to-morrow—quite capable of giving a good account of itself in any company.

More Peace for the President.

Everybody will observe with heartfelt satisfaction and a sense of peril passed that Charleston, S. C., has at last consented again to recognize the existence of the President of the United States; that it has sent compliment-bearing delegates to the White House, and that citizens as representative as its Mayor and its ex-Mayor have ratified the peace for which all the world was anxiously waiting by sitting down to luncheon with him in the very room and at the very table where BOOKER WASHINGTON affrighted gods and men. What brought about the reconciliation—the forgiveness? Why has there been forgotten what never was to be forgiven while grass grew and water ran? We do not know, but something done for or at the Charleston Navy Yard seems to have had its part in the great renunciation of the great renunciation of President ROOSEVELT by Charleston, S. C. Dr. CRUM, we understand, is still Collector, and yet Charleston, S. C., can smile and smile and accept invitations to luncheon! We are glad for the President's sake—and just a little for the sake of Charleston, S. C., which can rest confident that her noble rivers will continue to flow into the bay that looks so much like New York's and that the flowers will blossom as happily as ever out in the Magnolia Gardens.

A PROHIBITIONIST APPEALS.

Says 25,000 New York Voters Could Sound Death Knell of the Saloon.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Under the leadership of Jesus Christ, our King, and in behalf of thousands of helpless mothers and innumerable innocent children, suffering untold misery, poverty, and premature death, directly through the legalized liquor traffic, the Prohibition Party, for the thirty-fifth consecutive year, pleads with the conscience voters of our city to unite with them at the ballot box and cast their votes for the home, against the saloon.

A majority of our citizens believe our cause is right and ought to win, but have withheld their ballots only because of gross indifference. The saloon will die only when men are loyal to God and humanity. The need of the hour is strong men who will not bow the knee to King Gambrinus, but "in the strength of the Lord" will unite with the forces of righteousness until the battle is fought and the victory won. Twenty-five thousand votes for Prohibition in our city at the coming election will sound the death knell of the liquor traffic.

Awake, men, from your lethargy, and strike down this monster evil, which, in the words of Gladstone, "is worse than war, pestilence, and famine combined." "Do it now," and the coming ages will call you blessed, and God will bless us and give us a city whose principles shall be righteousness, joy, and peace.

Wants Seth Low Back.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Is this great city going to rest content under the disgrace of what happened to poor Annie Thornton on Tuesday evening? Was such a crime ever committed in London or Paris. Fourteen! And are we to have another term of Tammany rule, which has made it possible here by emboldening these gangs? Give us back Mayor Strong. Or give us Seth Low, with more than two years to accomplish something in. Every anti-Tammanyite who remains away from the polls during the coming election will deserve to have the franchise taken from him. Let him blame himself and his ilk if his own wife or daughter falls victim to Annie Thornton's terrible fate.

ONE NOT ENFRANCHISED.

New York, Oct. 13, 1905.

One Fifty-millionth of an inch.

From The London Standard.

In recent science nothing is more remarkable than the refinement which has been made in instrumental measurements. Dr. P. E. Shaw recently explained to the Royal Society an electrical micrometer which, it is stated, can be made to measure the two-millionth of a millimeter, or the fifty-millionth of an inch. This measurement, the smallest ever yet made, was in connection with the movements of a telephone diaphragm. The problem was to find what movement of the diaphragm produces a sound which is only just audible. The measurement was effected by means of an electric current connected with the micrometer and telephone.

Look Out for Jerome's Accent.

From The London Chronicle.

The English writer has never quite "arrived" until he arrives in America to give readings from his writings. And now Mr. J. K. Jerome is about to depart for America with several thousand words up his sleeve—the best 20,000 words he ever wrote. He has been advised to memorize them, and he has done it. For America resents the sight of the crutch—the printed page. The man who described Stageland in his youth from the inside is probably a quick study. But what will America make of this accent that J. K. Jerome cherishes—a Midland anarl with kindliness, humor—and a seriousness behind? His friends love that accent, and sometimes try an analysis, failing.

DEFECTS IN BASEBALL RULES.

Pointed Out by Henry Chadwick, So-Called "Father" of the Game.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I read in THE TIMES of Oct. 11 an editorial article, headed "Modern Baseball," in which the peculiar merits and demerits of our National game of baseball were dwelt upon with characteristic ability, and with marked impartiality, the article having been suggested by the remarkable contests witnessed in Philadelphia on Monday last and in this city on Tuesday of this week, in which the champion teams of the National and American Leagues were the contestants and nearly 50,000 deeply interested people the spectators.

I noticed one point of the writer's interesting comment in his article, upon the peculiarities of our American National game, well worthy the attention of our baseball rulemakers at their coming annual December convention in this city, and that is the existing inequality of the respective powers of the attack and defense in the game. I should judge that the writer was either a cricketer, or one well versed in the English national game, for he certainly made a good point when he mentioned that, while we baseball players were troubled over the fact of our pitchers in baseball having a great advantage, under the existing code of rules, over the batsmen, in England in cricket the very reverse was the case, as cricketers were equally troubled over the fact that the batsmen had the best of the bowlers by long odds, even to a greater extent than our pitchers did over our batsmen.

Singularly enough, while writers on cricket in The London Field have proposed the lessening of the width of the cricket bat, in order to offset the superiority of the batting over the bowling, your writer suggests the widening of the baseball bat, to offset the pitcher's existing advantage. In this connection, allow me to state that I experimented with the use of a flat bat in a match game played at Prospect Park, Brooklyn, in the decade of the seventies, and found it a dead failure, while, on the other hand, a decade before that I saw a cricket match played on the old Fox Hill cricket grounds, at West Hoboken, in which one side used baseball bats to bat with, while the opposing side used the regular cricket bats, the latter being easily defeated, owing to the difficulty experienced in fielding the hard-hit balls from the baseball bats.

Another peculiar feature, illustrative of the different nature of the two games in this respect, as regards the powers of the attack and the defense in both, lies in the fact that, while fielding in cricket is a sadly neglected art, in baseball fielding has almost reached the point of perfection, and this latter marked superiority is due to the amount of attention paid to training in fielding, while batting in baseball, as far as training goes, is the neglected art.

The trouble in our American game is in this very neglect of regular training in batting in baseball management. Too much attention is given to the method of batting known as "slugging for homers," a habit that marks what is called "record batting," which takes the place of what is called "teamwork at the bat"—in other words, using the bat to "play for the side," and not for a baseball record. It is this mere record batting—so frequently resorted to at the Polo Grounds this season—that materially aids in giving the advantage over the batsman which the pitcher now possesses.

The article is most timely in the one respect that it calls attention to a marked defect in the existing code of rules at a period when the discussion of needed amendments to the code is in order.

Maybe They Could Hit It Then.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Flat Bat for Baseball.

From The Boston Herald.

The post-season contests in baseball are serving to keep up a popular interest in the sport that is remarkable, considering the cooler weather and the fact that football is due to absorb most of the attention in outdoor games at this time. It has occurred to an editorial writer in THE NEW YORK TIMES to suggest, in spite of this strong renewal of interest in the great National game, that it is a one-sided sport, over-developed as to the pitching side and most impotent as to batting. He thinks that tha batter now has no idea where he may send tha ball when tha impact with his bat comes, and that the only way to give him any show in the game is to give him a flat bat. Then, as he believes, the batamen will be more on an equality with the cricketer, who is able to place his hits with some degree of accuracy. It is no doubt true that pitching skill in baseball, aided by the lack of restrictions as to means of speed in delivery, is a great test of the batsman's capacity, but it is no less true that many batsmen can and do hit the ball with much force and accurate placing—at times. The chances of failurs to place or even to hit at all add to the fascinations of the sport and tend to keep up the interest. The failures to hit successfully are probably no more frequent than the failures of the pitcher to put the ball just where he desires to put it. The foul balls and the popped up flies are no more common and no more annoying to the spectators than the "gifts" of the pitcher by which batsmen take their bases instead of having a fair whack at the sphere. The flat bat would prove a poor expedient against the swift delivery of any good pitcher. It is awkward and unwieldy, and if made as wide as the cricket bat would be found very difficult to connect with a swiftly pitched ball. The cylindrical form of the baseball bat is the perfection of form for accurate guidance and concentration of force upon the ball. The point of successful contact between ball and bat is, of course, reduced to tha minimum, but in striving to reach that point the batsman finds ample scope for his best effort. When the point is reached tha satisfaction is commensurate with the difficulty. Oh, no, players and public don't want any flat bats in baseball.

Eugenie Sells an Estate.

From Tha London Telegraph.

PARIS, Oct. 3.—According to an announcement in a Bordeaux paper, the Empress Eugenie has sold to a firm of timber merchants of that town tha whole of the estate owned by her at Solferino, in the Landes. The estate, or demesne, was selected by the Emperor Napoleon III. toward 1857, when a valuation was made of property in the Landes. Since then the Solferino estate has largely increased in value, owing to the drainage of the marshes, the construction of roads, and the planting of trees. It is estimated that there are now 400,000 trees on the estate.

Slavonic Society Tells Tale of Woe at Skibo Castle.

From The Anglo-Russian.

Last month a deputation from the Slavonic Society of Moscow waited upon Andrew Carnegie at Skibo Castle and presented him with a diploma of honor and a silver cup of Slavonic workmanship. Col. Tcherep Spirodorovitch, President of the society, explained in a pathetic speech how he had seen rows of Christians decapitated by Turks in Macedonia and in Armenia. He had seen children impaled upon lances and thrown into fires. He appealed to Mr. Carnegie, as builder of the Temple of Peace, to lend his moral aid in stopping these shameful massacres. Otherwise the Slavonic nations and Armenia would soon be plunged in a sea of blood.

Mr. Carnegie promised to examine the question, and we may assume that he will probably contribute something to the funds of the Slavonic Society.

Is the Moscow Slavonic Society quite unaware that Christians, Armenians, Jews, &c., are shot down in their thousands, thrown alive into burning flames, (Baku,) have nails driven through their noses and eyes, and their children flung from the windows into the streets, (Kishineff,) &c., all under the rule of and for the sake of the safety of the Christian Czar of Slavonic Russia? We hope that Mr. Carnegie instead of sending money to the Slavonic Society of Moscow, which is under the patronage of the Czar, will reply to them laconically: "Physician, first heal thyself, and look to the beam in thine own eye!"

POLICY HOLDERS' HARDSHIPS.

Court of Appeals Opinion That Indicated Need of Enlightenment.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

At its last meeting, Tuesday, Oct. 10, the Bar Association passed a resolution that its committee on the amendment of the law consider what legislation is desirable to prevent the hardships to holders of life insurance policies resulting from the existing state of the law. Attention was called to a case decided by the Court of Appeals, (160 N. Y., Greef vs. Equitable,) about six years ago, against a policy holder, who brought an action against the Equitable Life Assurance society to recover a proportionate share of the company's surplus. The association was greatly amused when the mover of the resolution, Mr. Ferdinand Shack, read the following from the opinion:

"When the plaintiff obtained his policy he knew, or, at least, could have easily ascertained, what principles and methods the defendant adopted in the distribution of its surplus, and that they were the same as were employed by all the successful mutual insurance companies doing business in this State."

The Court of Appeals was evidently in as blissful ignorance of the existing state of things as the community at large prior to recent revelations.

We Don't.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Some days ago I wrote you asking what you regard as the proper way to punctuate such a phrase as "faith, hope, and charity." In reply, you simply printed over my letter "No final comma needed," without assigning any reason. Now, in to-day's paper I find as a heading to a most excellent editorial the words, "Facts, Feers, and Counsel." Prey, will you tell me what is the subtle distinction between "faith, hope, and charity" and "facts, fears, and counsel," which necessitates deleting the comma in the one phrase but not in the other? I am anxious to know how you justify this inconsistency. M. S. L.

Football in 1730.

From The London Chronicle.

We who complain of hoops and whipping tops and other games played in the streets to the annoyance of foot passengers, may congratulate ourselves that football is no longer to be reckoned with these. "In Winter," we are told by an old writer, "football is a useful and charming exercise. It is a leather ball about as big as one's head, filled with wind." We do not know if this description is intended to be humorous. "This is kicked about from one to another in the streets by him that can get at it, and that is all the art of it," concludes this disparaging writer, who thinks so little of our heads and our games. There is an old print extent of football players in the Strand in 1730, all in hats, coats, and wigs. This sport among the traffic lends a new significance to the words of the Lancashire poet: "To play at loggets, nine holes, or ten pinnes, To try it out at footballe by tha shinnes."

As Canada Politely Puts It.

ALDIS DUNBAR.

MR. LEITER'S BUSY DAY; APPEARS IN TWO SUITS

Trouble in the Shape of a Wheat Corner Note Bobs Up.

IT'S A MATTER OF $52,021

Chicago Operator Tells the Jury All About Puts and Calls--Says He Ought to Know.

Walking out of one courtroom where he had just testified in the suit brought against him and Joseph Hoadley by Franklin, Scott & Co., brokers, Joseph Leiter went yesterday into another courtroom in the same building to testify in another action brought by William F. Zeller. In the first suit Franklin, Scott & Co. are trying to recover money lost in International Power Company stock. They allege that an account in the name of Cyrus Field Judson was really a pool account, in which Hoadley and Leiter were interested.

In the other suit William F. Zeller is trying to recover $52,021 on a promissory note given to the Chicago brokerage firm of Allen, Greer & Zeller. The note was made by Mr. Leiter on Dec. 18, 1898, when he was trying to corner the wheat market. Mr. Leiter says that he engaged the Allen, Greer & Zeller Company when he began to purchase wheat, and declares that when an accounting was had a claim for the amount sued for was put in against him. He gave his note for it, but says he subsequently learned that, although the account rendered was correct, various amounts that should have been credited to him on the firm's book had not been made.

"Have you had some experience with puts and calls?" inquired Mr. Baldwin, Mr. Leiter's attorney.

"Some," answered Leiter smiling.

"How much?"

"Well, I sold 100,000,000 calls and 16,000,000 puts."

"Then you undestand what they are?"

"Indeed I do."

"Did you deal extensively in wheat at one time?"

"Somewhat," answered Mr. Leiter, grinning. "I once held calls on 90,000,000 bushels of wheat."

Juror No. 4 leaned forward and stared admiringly at the witness.

Mr. Leiter's counsel moved to dismiss the complaint on the ground that if there was any money due on the note it was a gambling debt, and could not be collected. This motion, with several others, Justice Greenbaum said he would consider and render a decision later. Adjournment was then taken until Monday.

In the other suit before Justice Amend the principal witness of the day was Henry A. Herbert, who kept various accounts for Cyrus Field Judson, and practically managed Mr. Judson's speculations in International Power.

On April 29, 1902, Mr. Herbert testified, he sold 2,300 shares of International Power stock in Judson's name and 500 in his own name. That day Franklin, Scott & Co. got a check from Judson for $65,000, the witness said.

"Judson was short of money that day," explained Mr. Herbert, "and tried to borrow money from Hoadley. Joseph H. Hoadley and George W. Hoadley, his brother, came to the office. Judson told them he needed $800,000. George W. Hoadley said our records showed that we ought to have about $2,000,000 on hand, and I said that no matter what our statements showed we wanted $800,000 to take care of our deliveries that day. That night I put two experts to work on our books. On the following day Judson came down to the office."

"What was his condition?" asked the lawyer.

"He was practically drunk," answered Mr. Herbert. "He asked me how things were and then disappeared. Later he called me up and said he was in the Produce Exchange Baths."

This was the day the crash came. The next day, May 1, George W. Hoadley took charge of Judson's office, the witness said.

Under cross-examination Herbert admitted that a certain account between Judson and Hoadley for the trust account of 6,900 shares gave Judson 800 shares more than he should have had, which amounted to $70,000 at that time.

"And what did you do?" asked Mr. Mooney, counsel for the plaintiffs.

"I advised him to accept the account as correct," said Mr. Herbert.

Mr. Herbert admitted that on Oct. 10, 1904, he had written a letter to Lawyer Mooney declaring that he had an offer of a $2,500 a year job in Mexico, and saying that he knew he could be of assistance in several suits, and especially in the action against Hoadley. He added that he had never received any compensation for the work he had done for the lawyers, and that unless the parties interested in the litigation paid him he would have to go to Mexico to take the $2,500 job.

Mr. Herbert was next questioned about a conversation he had with Judson's cashier, Edward F. Thyson.

"Didn't you say to Thyson," asked Mr. Mooney, "'I have made up my mind to leave the sinking ship, and, you know—well, if Cyrus Judson were well off again to-day he would not do a lot for me, so I have made up my mind to go over to Hoadley'?"

"I didn't say, though, that I had made up my mind to go over to Hoadley," the witness replied. "I never mentioned Hoadley's name in that conversation."

The witness denied that Hoadley had given or promised any money to him, and said he had not talked with Mr. Leiter since the Fall of 1900.

The trial will be continued on Monday.

IT'S ABOUT POST BILLS.

And '78-'79 Is the Date—Mr. Littleton's Guessing the Rest.

Borough President Littleton of Brooklyn put in some time yesterday wrestling with this communication, which be found in his mail:

To the Honorable Mayor of Brooklyn:

Dear Sir: Since we beg you most friendly excuse that your honored name is unknown to us, we hereby allowe us most courteous to take us your readiness to serve, because we beg you to be so kind for inclosed $1.00 (in a note) to let purchased different prospect-Postbills of Brooklyn (and perhaps the nearest neighbourhood, however not from the very city New York,) one card of each and particularly from views of the city and the harbour around the years 1878-79, if the friends, and especially colorated, and if them be forwarded us prepaid under crossband as "printed matter."

If prospect-postbills from the city and the harbour around the years 1878-79 is not to be found, please send them some from the present time.

MR. ROOSEVELT A MEMBER.

New Constitution Club Also Includes Mr. Cleveland and the Mayor.

At a luncheon in the Hofbrauhaus, Broadway and Thirtieth Street, yesterday, were a number of men interested in the establishment of a new club, to be known as the Constitution Club. The organization has already been incorporated. The officers of the committee which is doing the preliminary work of enroling members and furthering the scheme in general are First Vice President John C. Dewolf, Treasurer H. B. Edwards, and Secretary Charles I. Bolles. The President will not be chosen until the permanent organization is effected. Among those who have already joined the club according to the organization committee are: President Roosevelt, Grover Cleveland, Mayor McClellan, and the Rev. Thomas R. Slicer.

The object of the club, as outlined in the prospectus, is: "To bring together gentlemen who are good citizens, and who are representative upholders of the Constitution of the United States, no matter what their positions are or to what creed they belong."

The club is to be run as a proprietary organization, like some of the best clubs in London. The members will have full control of the social features, but the financing and the management of the club will be done by a separate organization. This will exempt members from all liabilities except their dues and café and restaurant bills. Those who wish to share in the profits of the venture can purchase stock.

The exact location of the club has not yet been decided upon. The building of the old Colonial Club, at Broadway and Seventy-second Street, has been spoken of.

NEW COTTON LEAK CHARGES.

Moses Haas and F. A. Peckham Surrender to Marshal Henkel.

Moses Haas and Frederick A. Peckham, who have been mentioned in the cotton leak scandals in Washington, which cost Assistant Chief Statistician Holmes his place, were surrendered yesterday by their counsel, Joel M. Marx, to United States Marshal Henkel. In the hands of the Marshal was a new warrant, based upon a complaint sworn to by Assistant United States District Attorney Houghton, and issued upon a new indictment against the accused and Edwin O. Holmes and L. C. Van Riper.

When Haas and Peckham were arraigned before United States Commissioner Ridgway counsel moved for their discharge on the ground that the charge did not constitute an offense against the Government. The hearing was adjourned until Oct. 21, and bail was fixed at $10,000 each. It was furnished by Isaac L. Levy and Charles J. Opper.

There are two counts in the indictment, one charging them with having conspired to procure advance crop reports through Holmes, and the other with conspiring to defraud the Government by playing the cotton market on the advance information.

Mrs. Sarah H. Peckham, who is said to know all about the cotton leaks, appeared before Commissioner Peter B. Olney yesterday afternoon. She refused to go into her private life when questioned by Attorney Maurice Marks, and was upheld by Commissioner Olney. Mr. Marks appeared as counsel for the Royal Trust Company of Chicago, trustees in bankruptcy of the defunct Sarah De Faye Company, a mail-order millinery concern that failed in 1903. Mrs. Peckham admitted knowing L. C. Van Riper, but denied that he had given her money to start the De Faye Company.

Mrs. Peckham said that she had abandoned a European trip and would remain in New York and fight her enemies.

SAVED CHILD FROM BURNING.

Stranger Then Left Without Giving His Name—Her Clothes Ablaze.

The prompt action of a man whose name is not known, who passed in front of 964 Park Avenue yesterday morning just as seven-year-old Mary O'Grady, her clothes ablaze, ran down the steps, may save the child's life. She is in the Harlem Hospital in a serious condition.

The little girl was watching a boy swinging a tomato can filled with flaming chips. One of the chips fell out of the can on the child's dress. Instantly her clothing was ablaze. She fled from the back yard, through the lower hall of 964 Park Avenue, where she lives, to the street and into the arms of a shabbily dressed young man.

He caught her, threw her to the sidewalk, whipped off his coat and rolled her up in it. After he had carried her into the house he ordered the family to get a can of sweet oil from the nearest drug store. With this he soothed the child's burns until the arrival of the ambulance from Harlem Hospital in response to a call sent in by Policeman Hughes.

When Dr. Reed arrived the stranger slipped on his remnant of a coat, lit his pipe, and, refusing his name and address, left.

WHITNEY ADMITS LOBBYING.

To Save Nickels for the Poor, He Tells G. Fred Williams.

BOSTON, Oct. 13.—Henry M. Whitney, Democratic candidate for Lieutenant Governor, made a formal reply to-day to George Fred Williams, who in a letter published yesterday alleged that Whitney wrongfully influenced legislation in petitioning for an elevated railway charter while President of the West End Street Railway.

Mr. Whitney says that Mr. Williams, as a member of the Legislature, suggested a plan of transit which would "filch from the pockets of the poor an additional 5 cents every time they traveled over the road," and adds:

"I freely admit giving dinners, employing counsel, and making use of the lobby, but it was to prevent the accomplishment of an infamous purpost which was championed by you in violation of your oath."

FLORENCE DAVIS APPLAUDED.

Friendly Audience Seems Pleased with "The Player Maid."

A large and friendly audience applauded Florence Davis, who appeared at the Liberty Theatre yesterday afternoon in "The Player Maid," by Louise Malloy. The play has done service through the country, but has not previously been seen in this city.

It deals in a highly colored way with an imaginary incident in the career of Eleanor Hallum, an actress at Drury Lane, during the Garrick régime. The actress impersonates another woman to save her from an undesirable marriage, herself falls in love with the man in question, and eventually comes to the end met by all good heroines in plays of this kind—that is, she marries the hero and presumably lives happily ever after.

Miss Davis had engaged the theatre for the afternoon to provide her friends with an opportunity to judge of the merits of herself and her play. It was obvious that those who had availed themselves of the opportunity were well satisfied.

Many Opera Orchestra Rehearsals.

The Metropolitan Opera House orchestra will have an unusually thorough course of rehearsals before the opening of the opera season this year. Instead of five or six preliminary rehearsals the orchestra, under the direction of Alfred Hertz, will come under Mr. Conried's control next Sunday and there will be between thirty and forty rehearsals before the curtain goes up on the opening night.

WRIGHT KEEPS PLACE; CABINET BLAMES LOEB

Deposes White House Secretary as Spokesman of Councils.

MANILA GOVERNOR TO RETURN

News About Resignation Gleaned from a Private Letter—Philippine Papers Forecast Shake-Up.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Private Secretary Loeb's announcement at the White House yesterday that Governor General Wright had resigned as the executive of the Philippines and President of the Philippine Commission proves erroneous. Secretary Taft, consequently, was correct in his denial of a White House statement.

Secretary Taft said that Gov. Wright would return to Manila after his visit to Washington in December to assist in passing on the bids for railroad construction in the Philippines. Officially, nothing is known of Gov. Wright's plans after that.

The official explanation of yesterday's incident is that Mr. Loeb's information was derived, not from the President, but from some gossip which was contained in a private letter. This letter was shown him and he observed in it some rumors of Wright's resignation.

Mr. Loeb spent an unhappy day as a result of his mistake. He had to explain it to the President, a task which has been known to unstring fairly good nerves. He also became the subject of an animated discussion at the Cabinet meeting. Mr. Loeb had several opportunities to explain. Each time he denied that he ever had made the statement that Gov. Wright had resigned.

At the Cabinet meeting it was suggested that Mr. Loeb be relieved of the duty of communicating the news of these conferences to the press. It was observed that, as he was not present at Cabinet meetings, and only knew at second hand what had occurred, he was hardly the proper channel through which to inform the public about these deliberations.

It was decided that one of the Cabinet should be designated for the duty hereafter. The member so chosen will take notes of what is to be given out, and communicate this information to the press. It has not been decided who shall undertake this task. It is but a short time since Mr. Loeb was selected as the Cabinet's press representative.

Manila newspapers received here to-day indicate clearly the understanding there that there are to be several changes in the personnel of the Philippine Commission. It is stated with assurance that Commissioner Ide is to retire soon on account of advancing years.

While Gov. Wright's resignation is not so directly forecast, it is intimated that he will retire soon after he returns to the islands from his visit to Washington in December. Commissioner Ide thus would be allowed to serve for a few months as Governor of the islands. He is ambitious to do this before quitting.

A LONG CABINET MEETING.

Judge Baker's Case and Venezuelan Matters Under Discussion.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—To-day's Cabinet meeting lasted two hours and forty minutes, all members remaining until adjournment.

The subject of campaign contributions and the participation of Federal Judges in political campaigns with particular reference to the case of Justice Baker of Indiana was discussed. The President talked over his approaching trip to the South. It is surmised that one of the important questions discussed was the verbal report made by Judge W. J. Calhoun to the President and Secretary Root on the Venezuelan question.

PHILIPPINE LINE PAYS WELL.

The Manila-Dagupan Railway Makes a Profit of 15 Per Cent.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—According to the annual report for the year 1904 of the Manila Railway Company, owning the line connecting Manila with Dagupan, the road paid 15 per cent. net profit. The total receipts were $1,475,069, and the expenditures $669,724.

The original cost of the road was $5,353,700. It is stated that by American methods of accounting the property would have paid almost 35 per cent. on the investment.

It is thought at the Insular Bureau that this showing may have an important influence upon the bidding next month by American capitalists for the right to construct additional railways in the Philippines.

ASHBRIDGE ON THE STAND.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 13.—Abraham L. English, ex-Director of Public Safety; John W. Henderson and Henry E. Baton, members of a contracting firm; Philip H. Johnson, an architect, and James D. Finley, formerly a Building Inspector, who are charged with conspiracy to defraud the city, were arraigned to-day before Magistrate Eisenbrown. The prosecution was instigated by Mayor Weaver and is the result of an investigation made by W. Bleddyn Powell, City Architect, into the construction of one of the buildings of the new City Hospital for contagious diseases. The contract for the building was awarded to Henderson & Co. on March 6, 1903, the price being $142,700.

Samuel Ashbridge was Mayor at that time. Ashbridge and Architect Powell were the most important witnesses called at to-day's hearing, which was continued until to-morrow.

City Architect Powell produced the original plans, which were dated Feb. 6, 1903. He also produced another set of specifications for the same building, which had been drawn by Philip H. Johnson on June 1 of the same year, after the contract had been awarded. Numerous changes had been made in the second drawings, and Mr. Powell said that his investigation developed the fact that even the revised specifications had been disregarded by the contractors. Mr. Powell testified that the grading about the hospital building was done by inmates of the House of Correction instead of regularly employed laborers.

Ex-Mayor Ashbridge said he had approved the contract on the recommendation of Director English. He said also that the work of drawing the plans was awarded to Johnson before the agreement was signed, because it was customary to distribute such work among the various architects.

English and Johnson, the architect, both of whom were out of the city when the warrants were issued yesterday, returned last night and furnished bail this morning.

Guests at White House Dinner.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—The President and Mrs. Roosevelt entertained at dinner to-night the Secretary of War and Mrs. Taft, the Postmaster General and Mrs. Cortelyou, the Assistant Secretary of War and Mrs. Oliver, Joseph B. Bishop, Executive Secretary of the Canal Commission, and Mrs. Bishop, Gen. Dodge, and Mrs. Shepley. Gen. Dodge spent the night at the White House.

TRIMMINGS COST 25 CENTS.

Michigander Thought 50 Cents for the Whole Lobster Salad Enough.

The difference in the way they serve lobster salad in Michigan and in New York caused the arrest last night, of Harry Layhe, an electrician recently from Michigan. His present address is 204 East Fourteenth Street.

Sitting down in a restaurant at 1,281 Broadway, Layhe, who is a husky young man, ordered a lobster salad. The menu said it would cost 50 cents.

"Will you have anything else?" said the waiter.

"Sure; I'll have some trimmings; green peppers and so on."

When he had eaten, the waiter wanted to charge 25 cents extra for "the trimmings." Mr. Layhe contended that in Michigan and the world over "the trimmings" go in tree. A dispute arose between him and the waiter, and it grew so bitter and loud that Policeman Haneffy had to separate the disputants. Layhe said he'd die before he'd pay for lobster salad trimmings, so he was taken a prisoner to the Tenderloin Station.

GUESTS AT THE WEBB FARM.

Wedding of Miss Webb and Ralph Pulitzer Takes Place To-day.

Special to The New York Times.

BURLINGTON, Vt., Oct. 13.—About 150 persons, close friends and relatives of Miss Frederica Vanderbilt Webb and Ralph Pulitzer, who are to be married to-morrow at noon, are guests at Shelburne House and on the steamboat Vermont at Shelburne Farm dock to-night. They will compose the wedding party, as the little church will accommodate no more.

A special train of ten cars, bringing friends who will attend the reception at Shelburne House, will reach Burlington at 8 o'clock to-morrow morning. After breakfast, the guests will be taken to Shelburne House on a special steamboat.

The chief effect of the church decorations will be Autumnal avenues through which the bridal party will pass. The bride will kneel at the altar on a white satin pillow embroidered with pearls, which was used by her mother when she was married and has her name, "Lilah," embroidered on it.

At Shelburne House the decorators were kept at work to-night. They completed the decorations there yesterday, but the heat to-day withered them so it was necessary to do them all over again.

WHAT IS DOING IN SOCIETY.

The wedding of Miss Frances Pell of this city and Pellwood, Highland Falls, N. Y., to Major Archer Shee of the British Army, Nineteenth Hussars, will take place to-day at Highland Falls. Miss Pell is in mourning for her mother, the late Mrs. Alfred Pell, and the guests asked are relatives and intimate friends only.

***

The marriage of Miss Mildred Harrison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Harrison of Philadelphia, to Count Holstein is set for Nov. 16.

***

Mrs. De Grasse Fox and Miss Sylvia De Grasse Fox, who were at Newport, will spend the rest of the Autumn at their country home, Idlewild, near Philadelphia.

***

Mrs. Henry Villard will give a musicale next Wednesday afternoon at her country place, Thorwood, Dobbs Ferry. Francis Rogers will sing.

A DAY'S WEDDINGS.

EYNARD—HYDE.

Special to The New York Times.

WARE, Mass., Oct. 13.—Miss Sylvia Sage Hyde was married to-day to Baron Camille Eynard of France at the home of the bride's mother, by the Rev. Arthur Chase, rector of Trinity Episcopal Church. The bride is a Smith College graduate and has added to her education by travel. She met Baron Eynard in Paris last June while traveling with her mother. Mrs. Hyde and Miss Hyde returned here on Saturday and Baron Eynard came with them. Mrs. Hyde expects to go to Paris this Winter to visit the bridal pair. She declares that there is no doubt of the genuineness of her son-in-law's title.

MARYLAND TRUST AGREEMENT

Bond Plan Accepted by All Parties to Reorganization.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 13.—A satisfactory adjustment of the difficulties which have seemed likely to retard early reorganization of the Maryland Trust Company was reached to-day by Bernard N. Baker, President of the Baltimore Trust and Guarantee Company, who represented the Baltimore Bankers' Committee, and Hugh L. Bond, Jr., counsel for the New York interests, headed by Speyer & Co., which will furnish money to rehabilitate the company.

An agreement was signed stipulating that all holders of stock deposited under the bond plan before the close of business to-morrow shall receive $35 a share in cash for their holdings, in case they do not wish to participate.

HURT GETTING OFF A TRAIN.

Robert C. Thirkle May Die of Injuries Suffered at Cos Cob.

Special to The New York Times.

STAMFORD, Conn., Oct. 13.—Robert Cecil Thirkle, 63 years old, a New York business man who has a farm at North Cos Cob, adjoining Clyde Fitch's place, was seriously hurt in getting off a train at Cos Cob last night. He was brought to the hospital in this city, and it is feared he may not recover.

Mr. Thirkle had not waited until the train stopped, and was thrown violently against an iron pillar. He was picked up insensible. An examination showed that a number of ribs had been broken, he had suffered a severe gash in the groin, and his head was badly injured.

The injured man was hurried to Stamford in an automobile. His family physician and Dr. Henry G. Derd, physician for the New Haven road, attended him.

MANY STATE OFFICERS AT THE NIXON FUNERAL

Governor, Judges, and Assemblymen March to the Church.

SIMPLE BURIAL SERVICES

Minister Pays Tribute to the ex-Speaker's Public Career—Assemblymen as Pallbearers.

WESTFIELD, N. Y., Oct. 13.—All Chautauqua County paid tribute to-day to the memory of S. Fred Nixon, late Speaker of the Assembly. Mr. Nixon was buried in the family plot in Westfield cemetery. A special train from New York brought members of the Legislature, the Assembly, and other public men to attend the funeral of their colleague.

The train arrived at Westfield shortly after 2 o'clock and the funeral party, headed by Gov. Higgins and ex-Gov. Odell, marched to the First Presbyterian Church, where the services were held. At the request of Gov. Higgins there were no carriages provided, and every man walked to the church.

The altar, the chancel, and the rostrum of the church were banked with flowers. The Rev. Mr. McClellan spoke of Mr. Nixon's life and work and his service to the State.

The procession which had followed the body from the train to the church formed in the same order and proceeded to the cemetery. Members of the Assembly acted as honorary pallbearers. The services at the grave were brief and simple.

The cortège was led by Gov. Higgins and ex-Gov. Odell. Following the Governor came ex-Lieut. Gov. Woodruff. Then came the respective State officers, led by Secretary of State O'Brien. Following came the members of the Assembly, led by Col. Baxter. The Judiciary followed, led by Judge Laughlin, Judges Hooker, Woodward, County Judge Fisher of Chautauqua, and Judge Emery of Erie County following. Every department of the State was represented by one or more of its members.

The legislative funeral train is said to have been the largest that ever passed across the State. It took on additional cars at Albany, Utica, and Syracuse. Aside from the augmentation of the party at the various stopping points, the journey was uneventful. There were no demonstrations along the route.

The special bearing the State officials and members of the Legislature started back for New York immediately after the funeral.

MATHEWS FUNERAL.

To be Held To-morrow in St. Agnes Church—Club to Honor Him.

The body of Armitage Mathews, the Secretary of the Republican County Committee, who committed suicide on Thursday morning, was taken to the mortuary chapel of St. Agnes's Church, Ninety-second Street and Columbus Avenue, last evening. Many of his friends called there to pay their last respects to the dead. The body was in an oak coffin, and the only floral offering was a bunch of violets.

At the Riverside Republican Club, of which Mr. Mathews was President, a meeting of the Executive Committee was held last night to arrange for the memorial meeting to-night. The funeral will be held in St. Agnes's Church at 2 o'clock to-morrow afternoon, and the members of the club will attend in a body. The other arrangements are in the hands of Mr. Mathews's sister, and have not yet been completed.

POOR-BOX THIEF CAUGHT.

Priests Capture Italian in Their Church After a Struggle.

Surprised by the priests while he was robbing the poor boxes in the church, a man was captured yesterday afternoon by Fathers Thomas S. Duhigg and Theodore J. King of the Roman Catholic Church of St. John the Evangelist, in Twenty-first Street, near Fifth Avenue, Brooklyn, after a struggle.

A woman parishioner saw a stranger acting suspiciously near the poor boxes and told Father Duhigg about it. With his assistant, Father King, the Rector hid himself in the church and watched. The man, it is said, was fishing coins through the openings in the boxes with a piece of whalebone covered with fresh glue. The priests seized him, and overpowered him with difficulty.

At the police station the prisoner described himself as being Vito Desalina, with no fixed place of abode. His pockets were filled with small coins and bills, there being $81 in all. Desalina will be arraigned this morning in the Butler Street Court.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Frosts were again general Friday morning over the entire country east of the Mississippi River except along the South Atlantic and Gulf Coasts. During the day, however, there was a general rise in temperature which was most marked in the Ohio and Upper Mississippi Valley, and upper lake region.

Rain continued Thursday night along the lower lakes and there were also light local rains and snows, mostly rains, Friday in the Dakotas, Montana, Wyoming, and Northern Utah, and showers in the Lower Missouri Valley. There was no other precipitation of consequence.

In the Atlantic States and lake region the weather will be generally fair Saturday and Sunday.

It will be warmer Saturday in the East and South and colder in the West, where rain and snow are indicated.

It will be colder Sunday in the Central Valleys, the lake region, and the Middle Atlantic and Gulf States.

Winds along the New England Coast will be fresh southwest to south; on the Middle Atlantic Coast, fresh south; on the South Atlantic Coast, fresh southeast to south; on the East Gulf Coast, fresh to brisk south, probably shifting to north Sunday; on the lower lakes, fresh south to southwest, becoming north by Sunday; on the upper lakes, fresh to brisk south; on Michigan and Huron, shifting to north, and on Superior, fresh north.

Steamers departing Saturday for European ports will have fresh southwest to south winds with fair weather to the Grand Banks.

FORECAST FOR TO-DAY AND SUNDAY.

Eastern New York, New Jersey, Eastern Pennsylvania, and Delaware—Fair, warmer Saturday; Sunday, fair, cooler in afternoon or night; fresh south winds, shifting to north Sunday.

New England—Fair, warmer Saturday; Sunday, fair, colder in west portion; fresh south winds, becoming west Sunday.

3 A. M.	41	42	4 P. M.	52	58
6 A. M.	42	42	6 P. M.	50	56
9 A. M.	44	46	9 P. M.	48	54
12 M.	47	54	12 P. M.	46	52

The thermometer registered 44 degrees at 8 A. M. yesterday and 55 degrees at 8 P. M., the maximum temperature being 58 degrees at 4 P. M. and the minimum 41 degrees at 4 A. M. The humidity was 80 per cent. at 8 A. M. and 70 per cent. at 8 P. M.

Hot Biscuit and Cakes made with Royal Baking Powder are anti-dyspeptic.

L. G. BLOOMINGDALE DEAD.

He Was Noted as a Merchant, Philanthropist, and Patron of Art.

Lyman G. Bloomingdale died yesterday at Elberon, N. J., after a short illness. As soon as news of his death was received, his department store, at Third Avenue and Fifty-ninth Street, was closed. The funeral will be held on Sunday morning at Temple Beth-El at 10 o'clock.

He was born in this city in 1841. He received a public school education. He established the department store of which he was the sole proprietor in 1872 together with his late brother, Joseph B. Bloomingdale, who retired from the firm in 1896.

Mr. Bloomingdale was always a public spirited citizen taking the greatest interest in the welfare of his city and ever ready to lend his aid to any public enterprise. He was a member of Lafayette Post, 140, G. A. R.; the Chamber of Commerce, the Republican Club, the Harmonie Club, the Lotos Club, the National Arts Club and many kindred organizations.

He was a liberal patron of American art and owned a collection containing many of the best examples of the American painters. He was a Patron in Perpetuity of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, to which he donated several important works. He took the liveliest interest in the welfare of young artists who showed ability.

As success came to him he did not forget his less fortunate brethren. He was noted for his widespread and generous charities. He was always a regular contributor to the Hebrew and non-sectarian organizations and took pleasure in dispensing private charities.

Mr. Bloomingdale was one of the founders of a country sanitarium for Consumptives in connection with the Montefiore Home, to which he had devoted a great deal of time, care, and attention. He took a personal pride in the growth of this institution and the benefits that have been bestowed through this medium upon the poor and needy sufferers of the tenement house districts.

Mr. Bloomingdale was a Director of the Montefiore Home and its Treasurer for many years, as also Treasurer of the Temple Beth-El, and Director in many other institutions prominent in commerce and finance.

He leaves a wife, one daughter, and three sons who have been associated in business with their father for many years. They have had the active management of the establishment and will be his successors in Bloomingdale Bros.

DEATH LIST OF A DAY.

Mrs. Ann Eliza Kitchell.

Mrs. Ann Eliza Kitchell, widow of Ambrose W. Kitchell, died on Thursday at her home, 17 Cambridge Place, Brooklyn. She was born at Hanover Neck, N. J., ninety-five years ago, and was a descendant of John Mulford, one of the earliest settlers of the eastern end of Long Island. Her husband was for many years a chair manufacturer in Manhattan. Mrs. Kitchell had written several books of reminiscences and verses. She was for a long time active in the work of the Sunshine Society, and was a member of Fort Greene Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution. Mrs. Kitchell leaves a son, a daughter, eight grandchildren, and thirteen great-grandchildren.

William Hall.

William Hall, founder and first President of the Middlesex County Bank, the Perth Amboy Water Company, the Gas Light Company, and formerly President of the Perth Amboy Savings Institution, died at his home in Perth Amboy, N. J., Thursday night. He was born at Liberty Corner, N. J., 90 years ago. In 1851 he was a Councilman, and for several terms was Recorder of the city. A son, William H. Hall, of this city, and a daughter, Mrs. N. C. J. English of Elizabeth, survive him.

The Rev. George Ira Taylor.

The Rev. George Ira Taylor, who was one of the oldest clergymen of the Dutch Reformed Church in this country, died on Monday at his home, 1,129 Park Place, Brooklyn. He was born 82 years ago in Northumberland, Saratoga County, N. Y. His first charge was at Lawrenceburg, Ind., where he succeeded the Rev. Henry Ward Beecher. When he retired twelve years ago he was pastor of the Second Dutch Reformed Church, Cohoes, N. Y.

Nathaniel Potts Hobart.

EATS ORANGE, Oct. 13.—Nathaniel Potts Hobart, a veteran of the battle of Gettysburg, died yesterday at his home here of pneumonia. Mr. Hobart was connected with the American Brake Shoe and Foundry Company until two years ago. He was born 58 years ago in Orwigsburg, Penn., and leaves a widow and two children. Mr. Hobart was a member of the Pennsylvania Society, the Engineers' Club of New York, and the New York Railroad Club.

Obituary Notes.

JOHN N. BOSTWICK, a business man of Amsterdam, N. Y., died yesterday of heart trouble. He was 60 years old and had served as a member of the Board of Education.

JAMES J. MCCARTHY, an ex-Alderman of Chicago, died at his home in that city yesterday. The Alderman, who was known as "Buck" McCarthy, was a famous figure in Chicago politics a decade ago, and was a participant in a number of sensational personal encounters growing out of hard-fought campaigns.

Col. JOSEPH L. PROSEUS, 76 years old, of Yonkers, died suddenly at Fordham on Thursday, while on his way home. He stepped into a drug store and complained of being ill, and before an ambulance arrived he was dead. IT WAS A PITCHERS' BATTLE

Plank Did Well, but the Athletics Couldn't Hit McGinnity When Hits Meant Runs.

John J. McGraw, New York's diminutive baseball Napoleon, calm and impassive, sat on the home players' bench in the ninth inning at the Polo Grounds yesterday afternoon. In one hand he held a jackknife; in the other a baseball bat. The score was 1 to 0 in New York's favor, two of the Athletics were retired, and Dan Hoffman, Philadelphia's premier emergency batsman, was up with two strikes on him. McGinnity, New York's iron pitcher, uncoiled, shot a wicked-looking ball over the plate with sizzling speed and arrow-like accuracy. As the sphere lodged in the catcher's mitten McGraw pressed the knife blade against the stick with the yell of a conquerer:

"Three notches, boys," he cried, jumping three feet into the air and swinging his arms about like a madman. One more and the championship is New York's.

As McGraw jumped up 14,000 victory-crazed baseball enthusiasts rose from their seats and roared volcanic approval. Apparently insane with delight, they jumped, climbed, and fell from the stands, swept aside a weak-looking string of police and rushed upon the grounds to surround the vanquishing players. But quick and wary, the ball tossers, smiling and joyous, had dashed with lightning speed for the clubhouse, and before their excited admirers could intercept them they were safe behind lock and key. Defeated in this, the crowd went home, and a happy crowd it was, for the Giants had added another to their string of victories for the inter-league championship.

The contest—for yesterday it was a real contest—was remarkable in several respects, conspicuously so in the pitching department, and it was not until the last of the Athletics had been sent to the bench that the victory was anything like safely, New York's. New York likes a well-played game of baseball, and that played yesterday filled its heart with delight, for it was resplendent with clean fielding, rapid headwork, and over and above everything, the curbing of the slugging contingent.

For New York it was an especially brilliant contest. In every department the Giants exceeded the Athletics. But even for Philadelphia, fall as it did, the battle was a source of satisfaction in that the victors were obliged to fight for every inch, and to the final tap of the gong both fields waged aggressively.

McGinnity and Plank Battled.

McGraw manifested clever generalship when he decided to have McGinnity pitch, for the Iron Man; with an even break, would have captured his game on Tuesday. Yesterday he twirled to perfection, and at no time did the raiders give evidence of seriously hammering his delivery. Plank, be it inscribed to his credit, hurled them over with almost equal skill, and had not a fatal error by Monte Cross been made in the fourth, when the single tally of the game was recorded, baseball history might tell a different tale to-day. McGinnity had everything on the list that was desirable, and with perfect fielding support carried the day. His delivery was mainly of the speedy type, an occasional floater going over, and he struck out the Athletics every time when strike-outs were needed most. A total of only five hits to each pitcher was the aggregate, but New York's came at times when they looked big, and Philadelphia scattered hers. Both men allowed a minimum of passes to first base. Another feature of the contest was the all-around work of Devlin at third base. He repeated his fine performance of Thursday at Philadelphia, and ran about his base apparently with a peck measure in one hand and a fishing net in the other, grabbing everything that ventured near him. His teammates appreciated his performance, for when in the seventh he offered emphatic objections to O'Day's decisions on strikes, McGraw ran out and called him in:

When the multitude went to the Polo Grounds on Tuesday it was there to yell and to roar. No opportunity was given in that contest, but yesterday it had chances to its heart's delight, and it wasn't slow in accepting them. The lone tally of the Giants was received with a roar of vocal plaudits that must have been heard up State, for as Mertes crossed the plate the stands rose in their might and yelled themselves to a state of physical exhaustion. And it was a comparatively good-natured crowd, bent on cheering its favorites to conquest, but with a particularly marked aversion to the two quiet umpires. The weather was raw, but that didn't cool the enthusiasm, and when McGraw and his hand marched into the field they were met with a volley of applause.

"Send 'em back to the hothouse, Mac," cried the bleachers, indicating the despised Athletics.

"Bring on the Indian, we'll macerate him," cried another.

McGraw smiled as a deep-voiced fan bawled:

"We'll try to tear off another," replied McGraw, waving his arm. Mathewson, the hero of Thursday, was noticeably demure in his appearance, and was on the grounds only a few moments. He got a hearty reception. Bresnahan was a particular idol of hundreds of fans, who yelled at him in praise. So was Donlin.

"We'll take this game in planked style, Mike," called one when it was announced that Plank would pitch for the visitors.

"We'll take it any old way we can get it," returned Donlin. The keeper of the Polo Grounds had prepared for the victory by inscribing his sentiments in whitewash on the grass in front of the grand stand:

Look Out for the Championship.

LOOK OUT FOR THE CHAMPIONSHIP TO-MORROW.

The admonition pleased the crowd.

For the first time in the series the umpiring was questioned seriously, and the players and crowd on several occasions expressed their disapproval in no mistakable fashion. Sheridan and O'Day were emphatically told by the fans that they were perpetrating an injustice on the community by daring to live, and the players went through a series of gymnastic gyrations at several stages of the game which expressed their feeling to the intense delight and with the entire sympathy of the crowd. But O'Day and Sheridan, especially the former, brooked no back talk from the players. When McGann had been called out on strikes in the first he yelled a loud and emphatic "No!"

O'Day looked at the big player critically for a moment and then contemptuously remarked:

New York had men on bases in the first, second, third, fourth, and eighth innings, but could score only in the fourth. Philadelphia managed to get a representative or two on the bases in every inning except the sixth and ninth, but when the stickwork demanded for a tally was called the hits were not forthcoming. A base by Mertes on an error, a sacrifice by Devlin, and a spanking single by Gilbert won the game for New York. It was a small play, but it did the business.

The game started with a hurrah at 2:30, and a deafening roar went up from the throng as the first ball McGinnity pitched to Hartsel was called a strike. The crowd was ready to cheer on the faintest provocation, and it released its vocal floodgates whenever it got a chance. When the Giants went to the bat the crowd began to yell, and didn't cease until the side had been retired. Bresnahan started the racket by getting to first on balls, and Browne, who followed, was beseeched to break the ball into thirty parts. Browne, however, went out weakly trying to bunt. McGraw was anxious to accomplish something at the very start. As Donlin walked to the plate he yelled:

"You can do it, Mike; line it out." But try as they might the Giants failed to score until the fourth.

The Run That Won the Game.

In that inning Mertes smashed the ball to short, and Monte Cross dropped it. This gave the crowd its cue for another demonstration and it arose in its excitement and yelled everything it could think of. Dahlen hit to Seybold, and as the ball soared the crowd shrieked. Seybold was under the sphere as it descended, however, and Dahlen retired. Devlin, the next man up, bunted along the third base line, sacrificing Mertes to second.

"Now for a hit," roared McGraw to Gilbert as the latter stepped to the plate. Gilbert nodded in assent and then made good in deed as well as spirit. He sent the sphere bounding past Lave Cross and Mertes raced home. The crowd almost fell off its seats yelling its approval, and the din didn't subside for fully a minute.

It looked as if the Giants would score again in the eighth, but they failed. As Bresnahan stepped to the bat the crowd begged him to hit it. He got his base on balls. Browne hit to Davis and right there Philadelphia played, for once, like an aggregation of town lot tossers. The ball went to Davis, who was obliged to run in to field it. When he picked the ball up and turned to throw the runner out no one was covering first. It was all a piece of headless work. With two on bases and no one out it looked good for the Giants, but there were no more runs, even though McGann succeeded in advancing Bresnahan and Browne on a sacrifice.

In the ninth inning McGinnity struck out two of the Athletic batsmen, the last man out being the heavy hitting Hoffman. When the third strike was called Bresnahan, after catching it, started to run to the clubhouse before O'Day had decreed whether it was a ball or otherwise. The crowd, thus prompted, jumped from the stands and swarmed into the field.

The Game in Detail.

Hartsel, the first man at the bat, was thrown out at first base by Devlin, and Lord was an easy victim for McGinnity and McGann. Davis was more successful, however, hitting a ball past McGinnity. It rolled into centre field. Davis, however, was unable to make any advance, for Lave Cross put up a foul fly, which Devlin easily got. According to the decisions of Umpire O'Day, Plank's delivery to Bresnahan was rather wild at the start, for three balls were called on the first three balls pitched. Then came a called strike, but the next ball sent Bresnahan to first. Browne's efforts were useless, however, for he attempted to bunt the third strike, and was declared out. Donlin's sacrifice, from Plank to Davis, gave Bresnahan second, and a passed ball, evidently coming from a misunderstanding of signals of the battery, placed the runner on third. The "rooters" shouted for McGann to bring Bresnahan home, but he was called out on strikes.

Seybold started the second inning by reaching first on called balls, and Murphy's well-executed hit to McGinnity advanced him to second. He was left on that base because Monte Cross struck out and Powers hit to Dahlen, who easily threw the runner out at first. Mertes was unable to connect with Plank's swift in-drops, and struck out. Dahlen was thrown out at first by Lave Cross, but Devlin produced plenty of enthusiasm by hitting to the left field fence for two bags. Gilbert was unequal to the emergency, and sent up a foul for Cross at third base.

In the third inning Plank, after allowing two good balls to pass him, sent a sharp grounder between short stop and second base, which gave him a base. Hartsell's sacrifice to Devlin placed him on second, where he was left, Lord being thrown out at first by Gilbert and Davis's fly being well caught by Donlin. McGinnity started off for the New Yorks by hitting a fast fly to right field, which looked safe for at least one base. Seybold, however, after a hard run, made a splendid catch. Then came safe hits by both Bresnahan and Browne. Donlin retired on a weak fly, which Davis tried to trap, but failed, and McGann ended the inning by placing a fly in centre field, to which Lord clung.

After Donlin had made two good catches in centre field, retiring both L. Cross and Seybold, in the fourth inning, Murphy hit a ball which passed through McGinnity, and M. Cross caught Devlin off his guard and reached first on a bunt. Powers ended the suspense by sending a ball to centre, which Donlin nabbed.

The New Yorks' part of the fourth resulted in the run which gave the game to them. Mertes led off with a grounder, which M. Cross should have handled cleanly, but he overran the ball slightly and fumbled it, allowing Mertes to reach first. Dahlen hit out a fly to Seybold, but Devlin's grounder to Plank, on which he was thrown out at first, placed Mertes on second. Gilbert's strong hit went toward third base, but bounded badly when L. Cross attempted to gather it. Mertes kept on running from second and reached home in safety, Hartsel's throw being rather slow and wide. Gilbert got to second on the throw, but was left there, as McGinnity hit out a fly to Lord.

Plank was soon sent back to the bench in the fifth inning, Devlin making a fine catch of his deep foul fly. Hartsel waited patiently, and was rewarded by a base on balls. After Lord's foul had been taken by Bresnahan, Hartsel made the only steal of the game. It was a close call for the blond-haired fielder, and Dahlen, McGann, and one or two others of the New Yorks strenuously protested. Hartsel got no further, for Davis put out another fly for Donlin. The New Yorks were put out in one-two-three order, Bresnahan and Browne on flies to Hartsel and Donlin on an easy bounder to Davis. In the sixth and seventh innings not a man reached first base on either team, and only one ball was hit to the outfield, McGinnity being caught out by Seybold.

The eighth inning on the part of both teams was exciting. For the Athletics, Hartsel, after two strikes had been called, was sent to first for the second time on called balls, and both McGinnity and Bresnahan vigorously protested. With Lord out on a fly to centre field and Davis's foul fly caught by Devlin, the spectators seemed to breathe more easily, but when L. Cross hit safely to centre field and Donlin fumbled the ball, allowing Hartsel to reach third, the excitement was intense in all parts of the field. The Quakers confidently hoped that Seybold would send Hartsel home with the tieing run, but the best he could do was to strike out, and McGinnity was cheered to the echo.

For the New Yorks Bresnahan got first on called balls. Browne should have been an easy out at first on his bounding ball to Davis, but Davis was compelled to hold the ball and see both Bresnahan and Browne reach their bases in safety, because neither base was covered by a player. It was a ridiculous position for a champion team to be in, but as it turned out, the mistake was not damaging. Bresnahan was forced out at third on Donlin's hit, Browne reached second on McGann's sacrifice, Plank to Davis, and Mertes was easily thrown out at first by the pitcher.

Murphy opened the Athletics' last inning with the longest hit of the game, to left field, but Mertes made a magnificent catch close to the fence. M. Cross struck out, and Hoffman, who took Powers's place at the bat, was unable to gauge McGinnity's delivery, and was called out on strikes. The score:

DIAMOND FLUSH WON THE STAKE AT 30 TO 1

Lightweighted Outsider Cleverly Took the Fordham Handicap.

FOUR FAVORITES BEATEN

With the single difference that the winner was at a longer price, the R. W. Nelson stable at Belmont Park yesterday exactly duplicated the unexpected victory of Cedarstrome on Thursday by winning the chief event of the afternoon's programme with the rank outsider in the betting, Diamond Flush, which was even less considered that was Cedarstrome in the Ramapo Handicap.

Two stake winners in two days from a stable that has been as inconspicuous through the season as the Nelson establishment and at the prices that were laid against the two horses, Diamond Flush starting yesterday at 30 to 1, while as good as 50 to 1 was laid, made the stable's triumph the sensation of the afternoon.

Diamond Flush's race was the fifth on the card, and the only stake fixture of the day, ten horses running, including the added starter Dolly Spanker, which had up the top weight and backed down to be one of the choices, Aeronaut and Jocund starting equal favorites at 7 to 2.

The race was over the seven-furlong course of the main track, and there was a long delay at the post before the horses were sent away with Athlone first to move, followed immediately by Aeronaut, while Jocund was last off, and as good as left at the post, though his rider sent him on after the field. Aeronaut took the lead from Athlone in the first dozen strides, and went on in front, with Ginette second, these two still holding their places in front to the turn into the stretch, where Race King, Dolly Spanker, and Diamond Flush followed in that order, Aeronaut at that point seeming to have the race won. On the stretch all except Aeronaut were driven to the whip, Aeronaut holding his lead until close on the winning post, where Diamond Flush went through the field like a flash, and catching Aeronaut in the last strides, beat him a neck for the stakes, while a head away Black Prince and Dolly Spanker were third and fourth in that order. The time of the race, 1:26 4-5, was the fastest that the stake had been run in.

Surprises were provided in the results of two other races, the practically unbacked Sterling, at 10 to 1, making all the running and winning the six and a half furlongs for two-year-olds in handy style from a field made up of so-called "good things," while in the mile and a half handicap the last-chance outsider of the field of five that ran filled the two leading places at the end, Palette, who raced out in front all the way, winning, ridden out, from Sailor Boy, while the warm favorite, The Southerner, finished last.

The day's misfortunes of the form followers and the general public began with the first race, in which Embarrassment got away so badly as to be out of the race the moment the barrier rose. The 20-to-1 chance Ninnasquaw went on in the lead, and lasted in front into the very last jump, where Hippocrates, on the rail, and Goldsmith, on the outside, got up, and the three passed the judges noses apart, with Hippocrates the winner and Goldsmith second.

Roseben, in the last race, a condition event which let the great sprinter in at his own distance, six furlongs, with 126 pounds, drove out all the entries except two that ran for second and third money, there being no betting in consequence, as Roseben was held out by the bookmakers, while Consideration was the choice, at 5 to 1 on, for the place. The running of the race would have been ridiculous but for the fact that D. C. Johnson had decided to send Roseben against his own world's record for six furlongs, Roseben accordingly racing out in front, far away from the other horses, and finishing ridden out in the effort to reduce his own time of 1:11 3-5. The track still was a trifle below its fastest after the recent rain, and Roseben fell just two-fifths of a second short of equaling his mark, running in 1:12.

The single result of the afternoon on which the general public profited was that of the mile for two-year-olds, which the smart colt Disobedient, at about even money, won handily from Holscher, after Disobedient had made all the running. The weather was clear and pleasant and the attendance large. Summary:

DAN PATCH EQUALS RECORD.

LEXINGTON, Oct. 13.—Dan Patch to-day failed to lower the world's pacing record of 1:59¼ for a mile, without the aid of a wind shield, held jointly by Star Pointer and Audubon Boy, but the challenger for the record equaled his best time. A stiff breeze that struck Dan Patch in the face on the third quarter tired the pacer, so that he could not maintain his speed through the stretch. The time by quarters was 0:30, 0:59, 1:28½, and 1:59¼.

Hersey was behind Dan Patch, and Scott Hudson drove a runner alongside. At the head of the stretch a second runner was picked up, and Dan Patch came home between two runners. He showed that he was tired. Hersey, who drove Patch a mile on last Saturday behind a pacemaker and dirt shield in 1:55¼ without touching him, to-day whipped vigorously through the last eighth. But urging was of no avail.

Star Pointer was driven on the track, and after an ovation from the crowd, stood at the head of the stretch during Patch's trial. The three regular races on the card were eclipsed by the speed trials.

WORLD'S SERIES RECEIPTS.

According to the conditions of the world's championship series, yesterday's game was the last from which the players will receive any revenue. Their portion of the receipts yesterday was $5,772.33, and of the first three games $21,622.55, making a total of $27,394.88. This amount will be divided upon the basis of 75 per cent. to the winning team and 25 per cent. to the loser. This will make the apportionment to the team finishing first in the series $20,546.16 and to the losers $6,848.72. Each of the eighteen players eligible to compete on the winning team will receive $1,141.45 and each of the eighteen players on the losing team $380.48.

After the 10 per cent. of the gross receipts is deducted for the National Commission, and the 60 per cent which forms the players' pool from the first four games, the balance of the gross receipts will be divided equally between the two clubs.

POST-SEASON BASEBALL.

Nationals and Americans Quit Even in Games of Yesterday.

Games in the post-season series between National and American League teams yesterday resulted in an even break, each winning and losing two. Of the Nationals the champion New Yorks and Chicagos were successful, while the American League teams at Boston and St. Louis finished in the lead. The game at Boston was the deciding one of the series of seven, the Americans winning four and the Nationals one. The remaining two will be played as a "double-header" to-day. Bases on balls, Tenney's error, and Dolan's poor judgment of fly balls gave the Americans four runs in the first inning yesterday. At Chicago the American team outbatted the Nationals two to one, but lost the game by a run. The game at St. Louis was brilliantly played in the field, but the Americans won by more timely hitting. The scores:

AT BOSTON.

Americans	4	0	1	0	0	0	0	1	..	6	6	1
Nationals	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	2	0	2	8	4

It was a splendid testimonial to McGinnity when, in the eighth inning yesterday, with Hartsel at third base and L. Cross at first, he struck Seybold out, ending the inning. The spectators in all portions of the field arose from their seats and gave the "Iron Man" a reception that he will not soon forget. He had got his team out of a dangerous situation, and he realized it as he went back to the bench, his face wreathed in smiles.

John M. Ward, one of the original Giants, who is now as skillful a golfer as he was a baseball player, chatted with Manager Griffith of the Greater New Yorks throughout the game yesterday, and both were evidently much pleased with the exhibition.

When Mertes caught Murphy's long hit ball close to the left field fence in the ninth inning yesterday, many "rooters" were of the opinion that had the ball dropped safely the Quakers would have received their best chance to tie the score.

It is not often that Devlin questions an umpire's decision, but he lost his temper somewhat yesterday, when he denounced O'Day for calling him out on strikes in the seventh inning.

Plank's windmill motion in the act of delivering the ball amused the "fans" yesterday. They kept time with his movement by shouting "One," "two," "three," the latter coming just as he sent the ball to the batsman.

J. P. B., Boston.—Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, is a native of Brookfield, Mass. He was born there forty-three years ago. He has been with the Athletics since their entry into the American League in 1901.

Hartsel made the only attempt to steal a base yesterday, and it resulted successfully, in the sixth inning.

When Manager McGraw was asked after the game yesterday whether he had any doubt about the result of the world's series, he replied: "Not a bit. We've got the prize sure. And it is just as I said before the series commenced. I've got the best team in the world, and this series proves it."

There was talk at the Polo Grounds yesterday that Ames might go in the box for the New Yorks to-day, while the Athletics will present Bender.

ENGLISH IDEAS AT HARVARD.

Coach Filley Has Revolutionized Rowing Among Crimson Oarsmen.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 13.—After repeated defeats Harvard will adopt the English rowing methods and style this season. O. D. Filley, who will have charge of the crew candidates, was brought up in England and has imitated the British ideas, and is making Harvard rowing more of a sport and less of drudgery in the expectation of getting more work out of the men.

Hereafter Harvard men will row by dormitories, corresponding to the smaller colleges of England making up a university. Filley also inaugurated the professional coach for Harvard. This is distinctly American, but the two coaches he secured are Australians using English strokes and methods of training.

He added the 'Varsity race with Cornell on the Charles River, which has the English spirit of making rowing fun instead of long drudgery for one big contest. He also picked up a crew last year and sent them down to Philadelphia.

In the training life, Filley made his English ideas prominent. At the boathouse, where all was formally cold and barren, he fitted up a lounging room where a great open fireplace and easy chairs afforded a pleasant place to gather and talk over the work before and after training. He did this to encourage the men to make the boathouse their headquarters, as do the oarsmen of England.

MISS BISHOP LOSES IN GOLF.

Miss Mackay and Miss M. Curtis Will Meet for Championship.

Miss Margaret Curtis and Miss Pauline Mackay, both Boston golfers, will meet to-day on the links of the Morris County Golf Club, near Morristown, N. J., to determine the woman's National championship for the coming year. With the defeat of the present title holder, Miss Georgianna Bishop, yesterday by Miss Mackay in the semi-final round the last representative of the New York district was eliminated from the contest, and the Boston women now have everything their own way. Miss Mackay won through superior work in her long game and steadier putting by 3 up and 1 to play. The second match brought two Bostonians together—Miss Margaret Curtis and Miss Grace Keyes—the latter entering, however, from the Concord Golf Club. Miss Curtis was a strong favorite and won handily by the high score of 6 up and 5 to play.

Aroused to expectations of a probable victory by Miss Bishop due to the latter's splendid playing of the day before, the metropolitan women united in following the Bishop-Mackay game. The first two holes were disastrous for the local representative. The champion topped her approach shot, and a short put cost her the first hole in 4 to 5. The second hole Miss Mackay won in the par score of 3, Miss Bishop making a bad drive and needing 5. Three holes were then halved, and Miss Bishop won the sixth through a streak of poor putting by Miss Mackay. The next three holes were halved, Miss Mackay missing a twelve-foot put to win the ninth, and the Bostonian led by one on the ninth green.

Miss Bishop again gave evidences of erratic driving by topping her tee shot to the tenth and lost the hole, but she won the next through a poor second shot by Miss Mackay, the ball dropping into the sand bunker, and she needed 8 to hole out. By a splendid 4 on the twelfth, Miss Bishop tied the game, and the New York women were jubilant. Their joy did not last long, for Miss Mackay took the next three by accurate play. Miss Bishop literally threw away the fourteenth through her carelessness in putting. With her ball less than an inch from the hole, a sure half in 6 was looked for. Miss Bishop made a hasty one-handed stroke, barely touching the ball, and it failed to drop into the cup, and Miss Mackay won in 6. Miss Bishop excelled in approaching to the sixteenth, and she won in 5 to 6, but she lost the next, and the match was ended on that green. The cards are:

Miss Mackay, out.....4 3 5 6 6 6 5 5 6—46
Miss Bishop, out......5 5 5 0 6 5 5 5 6—48
Miss Mackay, in.......4 8 5 5 6 7 6 5 —46—92
Miss Bishop, in........5 6 4 6 7 8 5 6 —47—95

Miss Margaret Curtis played in grand form in her game with Miss Keyes. Her driving was far and true, and few of her approach shots failed to go just where she intended. She led easily from the start, being 5 up at the turn, and closed the match on the thirteenth green. Miss Keyes made a fifteen-foot put on the long eleventh hole, halving it in 6. The cards:

Miss Curtis, out.......4 4 4 6 5 4 4 6 4—41
Miss Keyes, out.......4 4 5 5 7 6 6 8 6—51
Miss Curtis, in........5 6 4 5 —20—61
Miss. Keyes, in........3 6 5 6 —20—71

Newspaper Men Play Golf.

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—The Hobart Chatfield-Chatfield Taylor Silver Loving Cup, the trophy emblematic of the newspaper men's golf championship of Illinois, was won at the Onwentsia Club links to-day by A. W. Copp of The Associated Press, who defeated J. G. Davis of The Chicago Tribune by 6 up and 5 to play in the finals.

Notes of the Thoroughbreds.

Jockey Walter Miller, the light-weight boy who caused a racing sensation Thursday by riding four winners in his only four mounts, still was in winning form when he began riding again yesterday, and with his mounts in the first two races won twice more, making the record of six straight winnings without a losing mount. Miller's winners yesterday were Hippocrates, 9 to 2 at post time, and Sterling at 10 to 1.

Thomas C. McDowell, the Lexington (Ky.) turfman, sold at private sale to J. G. Lyman the horses Geranium and Roycroft. The price paid was reported to be $10,000. The horses are intended by the new owner for racing in California in the coming Winter.

The entire stable of race horses owned by Capt. S. S. Brown and trained by Robert Tucker will be shipped to-day to the Brown Winter quarters at Lexington, Ky.

On the way to the post for the Fordham Handicap at Belmont Park yesterday the horse Athlone, ridden by the small boy Notter, bolted and tried to run away through the back stretch. Notter managed to get control of his mount again before he passed the barrier.

A sale of Whitney horses, some from the estate of W. C. Whitney and others from the racing stable of Harry Payne Whitney, will be held at Belmont Park to-day, thirteen yearlings, most of them by Meddler, and several horses in training, among them the half-brother to Ethelbert, being in the lot to be offered. At the same sale draughts from the stables of R. T. Wilson, Jr., H. M. Zeigler, F. E. Brown, and others will be disposed of.

Following are the weights for the Pierrepont Handicap, one mile and a furlong, to be run on Monday at the opening of the Jamaica meeting: Broomstick, 125 pounds; Eugenia Burch, 120; Dolly Spanker, Humo, and Knight Errant, 119 each; Almo Du Four, 117; Bad News and Monsieur Beaucaire, 116; Merry Lark, Bedouin, and Mercury, 115; Ostrich and Jacquin, 114; Right Royal, 113; Pretenelon, 112; Ormonde's Right, 111; Sidney C. FOR WINTER PLAYGROUNDS.

Ahearn Has a Plan to Inclose and Heat the Recreation Piers.

Borough President Ahearn has asked the Board of Estimate to authorize him to have the recreation piers in the congested districts inclosed and heated during the Winter for playground centres. He said that the Board of Education had agreed to furnish instructors in physical culture, free of expense, if the piers were equipped as gymnasiums.

The Mayor thought the scheme a good one, and on his motion it was decided to refer the matter to Mr. Ahearn and Dock Commissioner Featherson for a report as to the probable cost.

SULLIVAN WON TWO-MILE RUN

Irish-American Athlete Outclasses Field at Physical Culture Show.

J. P. Sullivan of the Irish-American Athletic Club won the two-mile run last night at the Madison Square Garden Physical Culture Show. The event was the feature of the athletic programme and attracted six of the best local long-distance runners. A hot pace was set from the start and at half the distance the field was weeded out to three contestants. Sullivan and Freeman of the Xaviers alternated in the lead up to the last 100 yards, when Sullivan drew away from Freeman and won as he pleased by twenty yards. Freeman was second, the same distance in front of Frank of the Irish-Americans.

S. Northridge won the first heat of the 220-yard dash, but was disqualified for cutting the corner of the track. C. R. Pettit of Chicago captured the three-mile run for the Physical Culture championship after an exciting contest with S. Olstead. Summary:

GALLAGHER WON MATCH.

Defeated McLaughlin at Balk-Line Billiards by 15 Points.

Thomas Gallagher last night defeated Edward McLaughlin in the five-night match at eighteen-inch balk-line billiards by the score of 1,500 to 1,485. The contest began on Monday night, and Gallagher secured a commanding lead in the first three nights' play, but on Thursday McLaughlin, by a brilliant exhibition, made up 115 points of his deficiency. Last night he was again in form and passed Gallagher, but the latter by some all-around table shots regained the lead and eventually won by fifteen points.

McLaughlin during the evening scored 339 points to 300 by Gallagher. Both players started off well, McLaughlin putting together 39 in his fifth inning. He supplemented this with a break of 58 two innings later, and in his tenth essay made 62, which was the high run of the evening. At the twenty-fourth inning he led Gallagher by 35 points and needed but 10 points to win the match. Gallagher ran 38 in his twenty-sixth inning, and after McLaughlin had missed, added the necessary 13 points. The score follows:

Gallagher.—12 1 1 36 10 28 27 22 35 17 1 3 0 2 8 2 32 2 1 25 2 0 0 0 38 13. Total, 300; average, 11 3-27; high runs, 38, 36, 35; grand total, 1,500.

McLaughlin.—15 1 5 0 39 1 58 0 11 62 5 1 7 6 0 28 21 27 6 8 7 4 3 3 1 0 0. Total, 339; average, 12 15-27; high runs, 62, 59, 58; grand total, 1,485.

SWANSON THROWS HIGASHI.

Swedish Wrestler Beats Jiu Jitsu Expert Handily in Match.

The Swedish wrestler Swanson made the Japanese jiu-jitsu expert, Higashi, look like a tyro in the match between the two at the Harlem River Casino, Second Avenue and 127th Street, last night. There were over 500 devotees of the game present to see the contest and they were pleased with the way the big fellow handled the exponent of the vaunted Oriental game. It took him less than twenty-six minutes, all told, to score three falls over his agile and wiry opponent, and many believed he could have turned the trick in less time.

The conditions of the match compelled the catch-as-catch-can expert to pin the Jap to the mat and hold his shoulders there for a full minute. Several times he secured a fall, only to have the Oriental slip from his grasp before the expiration of the interminable minute. He did the trick at last the first time within 15:10 of the start of time, securing the fall from a collar-and-elbow catch. The second fall followed in 4:10 from a similar hold, while the third occupied 6:05, just 25:25, actual time, and less than 45:00 including the intermissions.

The Swede simply toyed with the Jap and only once was the latter able to throw him over his head. This was before the second fall and the trick cost the Asiatic dearly. In going over, the Swede caught his opponent around the head and wrenched him badly, and the fall followed within a minute and a half, before the Jap could recover from the shock.

FOOTBALL LUCK TURNS FOR COLUMBIA TEAM

GAMES SCHEDULED TO-DAY

Harvard and West Point Weakened Because of Many Injured Players —Details of Team Practice.

With the football matches to-day the leading college teams finish what is regarded as their preliminary trying-out. Several, notably Princeton and Pennsylvania, appear to be endeavoring to find the right material from among the many aspirants, while at Columbia the chaotic influence of the wholesale disqualification of players seems to be developing a new start for the team. From the football fog that has hung over Morningside Heights may yet emerge one of the best elevens that has ever flaunted the Columbia colors. The most important of the matches that will be played to-day are as follows:

Columbia vs. Williams, at American League Park.

Yale vs. Holy Cross, at New Haven.

Harvard vs. Springfield Training School, at Cambridge.

Princeton vs. Bucknell, at Princeton.

Indians vs. Virginia, at Richmond.

Annapolis vs. Dickinson, at Annapolis.

Pennsylvania vs. North Carolina, at Philadelphia.

Trinity vs. New York University, at Hartford.

Columbia's team will be strengthened by the presence of Duncan Hodge Brown, the left tackle on the 'Varsity eleven for the past three years. His case has been before the Athletic Council for some time, and it was announced last night at the university that favorable action had been taken. The facts in the case, as given out, were that Brown came to Columbia in 1899, but failed to pass his entrance examinations. He then went to Princeton, where he became an enrolled student, but soon left there and entered Trinity. He was at this institution only two months, having entered on a certificate from Princeton. During this time he played on the 'Varsity eleven, but at the expiration of the two months left the college without having attempted to take any examinations. His partiality was for Columbia, and he studied for two years preparatory to entering the freshman class.

When the question of his eligibility came up this season, under the four-year rule, Columbia sent a letter to her own Committee on Admissions, quoting Rule 5, and also inclosing a statement from Trinity as to what Brown had done. The committee was asked to decide whether the work at Trinity, or any credit that he might have got for that work, would bring him under the conditions of the rule. The result was a report favorable to Brown's playing.

No student shall represent Columbia in intercollegiate athletics for a longer period than four years in any one branch of sport, or more than four years diminished by the number of years during which he has represented another college or university in such branch of sport. In applying this rule to a student coming from another institution to Columbia only those years are to be counted which are regarded as the equivalent of college years in Columbia.

With "Tom" Thorpe out of the position of Captain, Brown looks to be the most likely candidate for the place. He is popular and a good football player. The practice yesterday was light in preparation for the Williams game this afternoon. No scrimmage work was indulged in, and the feeling is that the eleven will have little difficulty in defeating the men from Massachusetts.

The preliminary season of football matches for Yale will be closed to-day, when the wearers of the Blue meet Holy Cross on Yale Field. The Holy Cross team has run up good scores, and Yale expects to have a stiff contest if a score of four touch-downs is made. The Yale line-up will again be experimental at end and quarter back, the coaches expecting to try out Beebe, Jones, and Stuart on the wing and T. Jones and Hutchinson again at quarter-back. The work yesterday was some of the snappiest seen on the field this season. The coaches drove the men hard and forced the 'Varsity to score against the strongest defense the second team could put up. Erwin, Tripp, and Flanders played brilliantly at centre and at quarter back. Jones worked in a sensational 70-yard run, vaulting the scrub tackles and putting the ball on the scrub's one-yard line. The Yale Law School is to have a football eleven this Fall, and it is now being organized by O. M. Reid of New York, son of Ambassador Reid, with the plan to meet the Harvard school legal lights at the end of the season.

The Princeton team took its last practice yesterday before meeting the Bucknell team, and every man played in a spirited manner. Dillon was again in his place at left guard, as his injured shoulder has shown great improvement in the past few days. He added much strength to his side of the line and on the attack made several neat openings. The eleven still manifests a constant tendency to fumble, which makes its plays very uncertain. In the practice the 'Varsity was downed on the twenty-yard line, after a kick, and on the first line-up the ball was fumbled and fell into the hands of the scrub, resulting in an easy score. Harlan, who played quarterback on the scrub, distinguished himself by his brilliant work. Probably the only changes in the regular line-up for the Bucknell game will be Waller at centre and Dillon at left guard.

The feature of Harvard's practice on Soldiers Field yesterday was the shifting of Speare, the big tackle, to end, where Harvard is in need of good men this year. Speare, who tips the beam at 190 pounds, is one of the fastest men in the squad. As a schoolboy in Worcester Academy he had a record of close on to ten seconds in the 100-yard dash. It was this speed which brought him into prominence this Fall. When the coaches saw that he was getting down the field faster under punts from tackle than the end men themselves, they were not long in making a change. The practice was light yesterday in preparation for the game with the Springfield Training School to-day. Harvard men are keenly interested in this contest. On Wednesday, Yale defeated the Springfield eleven, 20 to 0, but with so many cripples, Crimson students hardly expect so large a score.

Coaches at the University of Pennsylvania on Franklin Field yesterday seemed to realize that the team was scheduled to meet an unknown quantity to-day in the University of North Carolina eleven. The practice appeared to be along those lines, for although the work and scrimmages at times were especially severe, yet no chances were taken to bruise any of the squad. "By" Dickson had plenty of assistance. Graduates of "Old Penn," who have made their mark in the college football world, are keen to the dire straits in which the Red and Blue coaches have found themselves. Plenty of material is available, but as yet undeveloped and the Harvard game less than one month away.

The West Point team showed little improvement in practice yesterday, but as yet the men exhibit much lack of experience. The injured list continues to swell. It seems as if the men are made of glass. Smith was taken off the field with an injured shoulder. He will probably be out of the game for some time. Sutler was able to play, but Weeks and Erwin are still on the sick list. Abraham has a slight injury, but will be able to play to-day. In the practice the team made one touchdown against the scrub. Smith made the score by a beautiful run around right end just before he was hurt. West Point will be satisfied to barely win against Virginia Polytechnic to-day since so many "subs" are in the game. Philoon will play in Erwin's place, and Shute in the place of Weeks. Beavers will probably fill Smith's place. The team will line up as follows: Left end, Ellis; left tackle, Philoon; left guard, Shute; centre, Abraham; right guard, Christie; right tackle, Mettler; right end, Gillespie; left half back, Beavers; right half back, Hill; full back, Torney; quarter back, Garry.

The midshipmen had their last practice line-up yesterday previous to meeting the eleven of Dickinson College for the first hard contest of the Annapolis season. Dickinson and the navy played a draw game last year, and it is no secret that the navy is somewhat anxious over the result of to-day's game, as Dickinson defeated Haverford last Saturday, 14 to 0. The navy's line-up will be strong. Douglass, the big half back, will start in the game for the first time since he broke his leg last season. Doherty will be at the other half, Ghormley at full, and Norton, the drop kicker, will be at quarter. The line will be: Dague, left end; Capt. Howard, left tackle; Pierson, left guard; Causey, centre; McConnell, right guard; Grady, right tackle; Welch, right end.

Coach Warner gave the Cornell 'Varsity squad another session of secret signal practice yesterday. First, however, there was a long drill in punting and handling punts between the 'Varsity and scrub elevens. The 'Varsity is being drilled in signals for the running back of kick-offs. The absentees were Hodge, Cook, and Thompson. Wilder, Oderkirk, and Furman took their places. Rice, at quarter back, did better work than heretofore. In running the eleven through the formations, he is keeping them going in better shape, and has also got over most of the fumbling that has marred his work. The game to-day with an alumni team has been called off. There will be a practice contest with the scrubs and freshmen.

The past week of training for the Carlisle Indian School football eleven has been radically different from that gone through in the preliminary training season, in that there has been an elimination of all kinds of work generally classified as the Yale exercises, which does not bear directly upon work actually done during the progress of the game. The hours of practice have been cut down to two a day, and those from 3 to 5 P. M. The scrimmage work has been lengthened by half and the period given to individual coaching has been also elaborated upon to the exclusion of all other kinds of work. The Indians are gaining an average of one pound a week in their weight.

Sixteen members of the football squad of Vanderbilt University, headed by Capt. Brown, arrived at Ann Arbor yesterday, in readiness for their game to-day with the University of Michigan eleven on Ferry Field. Coach McGugin was not with the team, having been called home by the illness of his sister. Coach Yost of the Michigan team turned Ferry Field over to the Southerners for an hour's practice. All were in good condition except Guard Stone, whose ankle was sprained a few days ago.

Coach Mills was easy on his men at Ohio Field yesterday in preparation for the game with Trinity at Hartford to-day. He lined the men up for two five-minute halves and played all of the men that are going to make the trip for a few minutes each. The players have shown great improvement in team work and snap since, and the backers at the "Heights" fully expect to see the team defeat Trinity to-day.

Cyclists Enter for Tuxedo Run.

Many of the leading cyclists of the metropolitan district have entered for the seventy-five-mile pleasure trip of the Century Road Club of America to be held to-morrow with Tuxedo Park as the objective point. From the entries now received, it is evident that more than two hundred wheelmen will participate in the run. Every rider will receive a souvenir badge, and, in addition, there will be a five-mile handicap race during the dinner rest at Tuxedo. Among the entries received are the following: W. E. Baum, formerly of Chicago, but now of New York, who rode over fourteen thousand miles on a bicycle last year; Miss Margaret Gast of the Century Road Club of America, Emil Leuly, the transcontinentalist; Ernest Fischer, the Jersey century rider; Robert S. Campbell, head of the New York State Division; William L. Russell, A. Selle, and Ernie Grupe, the last-named four being from Brooklyn.

THE ART OF PUBLIC SPEAKING
thoroughly and practically taught from the beginning to the highest perfection of the art, by EDWIN GORDON LAWRENCE, 39 West 42d St. Circular on application.
(From the late Hon. George F. Hoar, United States Senator from Massachusetts.)
Worcester, Mass., Aug. 21, 1901.
EDWIN G. LAWRENCE, Esq., New York.
My Dear Mr. Lawrence:
Your suggestions and rules seem to me extremely wise and valuable. You do not overrate the importance to a good orator or a public speaker of a good voice. You truly say that this is the most important part of an orator's education, as well as the part most neglected. I am, faithfully yours,
GEORGE F. HOAR.

INSTRUCTION. New York City. | INSTRUCTION. New York City. | INSTRUCTION. New York City.

If you knew how easily you could acquire speaking and writing familiarity with any or all of the four great living foreign languages would you be content to remain longer ignorant of this delightful and important accomplishment? We wish to tell all who have not yet availed themselves of this new marvel of language-study a few facts about this system. The coupon below is all that is necessary to bring this information. Isn't it worth while to find out?

French
German Quickly Easily Delightfully Acquired Italian
Spanish

Uniform success has marked the experience of over half a million people who have acquired one or more of the foreign languages by this marvelous system. Among this immense number are business and professional men and women, students, and all classes of wide-a-wake, intelligent people. Every claim we make has been realized by them. Isn't their success worth investigating? The coupon below will bring you proof from great authorities.

The Language-Phone Method

The Most Perfect, Natural, and Successful Method Ever Devised for Acquiring a Foreign Language

With Rosenthal's Practical Linguistry

A Priceless, Lifetime Advantage in the Mental Equipment of Every Man or Woman

In Your Travel you will miss half of the enjoyment, ease and meaning of journeying in foreign lands if you don't know the native languages. You will also meet with many distressing embarrassments through such ignorance. The foreign phrase books are almost worse than useless. You must be able to pronounce, write, speak and understand if you would feel at ease.

In Your Business the knowledge of more than one language is a profitable asset. Lord Salisbury recently said: "I believe that our fault is that in commercial education, at least, we do not sufficiently cultivate the knowledge of contemporaneous languages. All those who have to make their living by commerce, from the highest to the lowest, ought to know French, German, and Spanish."

In Your Study, whether you are teacher or student, the Rosenthal Language-Phone Method will enable you to quickly master any one of the four languages. It will insure students passing their examinations in languages with flying colors; it will make it possible, too, for teachers to brush up and be better qualified to conduct their classes during the present school year.

In Your Reading and Conversation an understanding of the live languages is essential. Literature, from the daily newspaper to the novel, is full of foreign words and phrases which you need to be able to pronounce and understand. Such knowledge is a sure mark of culture.

"OF INCALCULABLE VALUE," SAY EMINENT AUTHORITIES

Instructors and professors of language study representing all of the great American colleges and universities, besides eminent public and professional men have given this method their unqualified approval. These men are among the most conservative and careful authorities that could be found.

Ten Minutes, Two or Three Times a Day for a Short While,

Will make you versatile with another language. Isn't this little expenditure of time, within reach of the busiest men and women, worth making when it will yield you such a rich reward? Can you longer remain content with a knowledge of only one language, when so slight an effort will give you the knowledge of several languages?

WOULD YOU IF YOU COULD?

Spend a few minutes a day whenever convenient, and attain proficiency in another language? Would you, if you could, receive direct instruction from the living voices of native professors? Would you, if you could, without taking any risk on your part, examine at your leisure, in your own home, this wonderful new system?
In your home, you or any member of your family, may use the Language-Phone Method. There is no waiting for the professor, or his waiting for you, no evening destroyed with inconvenient appointments. It is ever ready for you whenever desired.
Mail to us Free Inquiry Coupon opposite, and it will bring you the facsimile letters from many university and other authorities, public and professional men; also booklets and explanatory literature.

IMPORTS OF DRY GOODS.

Imports of dry goods at the Port of New York for the week were valued at $2,836,332, as against $2,977,610 for the previous week, and $1,579,124 for the corresponding week last year. The value of the amount marketed was $2,930,738, as against $2,929,058 for the previous week, and $2,127,211 for the corresponding week last year.

THE FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Higher; Call Money Rates, 5@6 Per Cent.

Market Strong in Expectation of Better Bank Statement—September's Exports.

The prospect of a fairly favorable bank statement to-day and the absence of any flurry in money rates were the two factors of most direct influence in yesterday's trading on the Stock Exchange. Moderate firmness marked the opening, and thereafter prices generally tended upward to the close. The volume of business was small, the activity and extreme gains being confined largely to specialties. Substantial advances, however, were made by all the standard issues. Expectations of a better bank statement were founded on the known movements of currency during the week. These indicate a loss of from $50,000 to $500,000 in cash held by the banks. There has been some liquidation of loans, and this fact, with the probability of further participation in the money market by non-Clearing House lenders, seems to foreshadow an increase in reserves. Whether this is accomplished will depend largely on the direct movement of money to the interior. This has been, to all appearances, in small volume. The receipts of gold have been of weight in bringing about the better outlook for to-day's return, but the $2,600,000 gold which arrived on Thursday will figure for only one day in the averages. Owing to the shifting of accounts incidental to the payment on Monday of the final installment, some $30,000,000, on the Japanese loan, a flurry in call rates was counted as among yesterday's possibilities. A rather general belief that this might occur resulted in a comparative congestion of demands in the fore part of the day, but no pinch followed, although the bulk of the loans was made on a 5¾ per cent. basis. Demand sterling advanced some 20 points, the present rate of 4.8575 seeming prohibitive of gold imports. Discount rates advanced in London, where gold supplies were menaced by a sharp decline in exchange at Paris.

News of the day was confined largely to unsupported reports affecting various corporations whose shares were active in the day's trading. The agitation for ship subsidies was accompanied by a demonstration in the preferred stock of the International Mercantile Marine Company, and Pacific Mail was similarly influenced, although in less degree. The acquisition by the Lehigh Valley Railroad of the extensive and valuable coal, railroad, and other properties controlled by Coxe Brothers & Co. in the Pennsylvania anthracite region was generally regarded as a sagacious move by the road's management, which thus further intrenches the company in its exceptional position among the coal-carrying roads. Publication of the September returns of agricultural exports disclosed a loss of $3,445,000, compared with the figures of 1904, but an increase of some $20,000,000 over August. The changes, compared with September, 1904, included an increase of $6,560,000 in breadstuff shipments and a decrease of $10,952,000 in cotton exports. How much of this falling off in cotton shipments is due to the reported abundance of English supplies and how much to an indisposition to pay prevailing prices are questions yet to be answered. Whatever the reason, the effect on our power to draw gold from Europe has been clear.

CHICAGO QUOTATIONS.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—New York exchange was at par. Time and call loans 4@5 per cent.

During the morning Subway ruled from 52⅝ down to 52. La Salle Street heard the mysterious statement that "The desired Subway has been accomplished." Just what this means is a puzzle, though there was a conjecture that it forecasts a change in management. Box Board preferred was strong, running up to 14 on the statement that the advance of $5 a ton on Straw Board prices means profits for the Box Board company.

Elsewhere morning business was quiet. Match sold at 141. Tool eased from 48 to 47 on small lots sales. Biscuit went at 55. Tool bonds sold at 80 and West Chicago first mortgage 5s at 97.

In the afternoon Kansas City Light moved up to 56. Box Board weakened fractionally, and Subway dipped below 52. Quaker Oats moved up to its new high-record price of 110, and Western Stone sold at 37. List:

LONDON STOCK MARKET.

LONDON, Oct. 13.—Rates for money were strong in the market to-day owing to the Stock Exchange demand. Discounts were firm, partly due to the Continental exchanges.

Trading on the Stock Exchange opened with prices heavy owing to the prospects of dearer money and the absence of fresh business. There were no indications of material difficulties. The name of one small firm, jobbers in Americans, particularly in Norfolk and Western, was mentioned, but the outcome has not developed. The report, however, exercised an all-round restraining influence. Consols were dull, but recovered a fraction. Home rails were irregular.

Americans opened steady. The movements were narrow and mixed at mostly a fraction over parity. The market was inactive and entirely subject to New York's lead. Prices closed quietly firm. Canadian Pacific was buoyant, and Grand Trunk had a better tone.

Japanese imperial 6s of 1904 were quoted at 102.

Gold premiums are quoted as follows: Madrid, 28.65; Lisbon, 4.50.

Money, 3½@3¾ per cent. Discount rates: Short bills, 3¾ per cent.; three months' bills, 3 15-16@4 per cent.

Bullion amounting to £18,000 was taken into the Bank of England on balance to-day.

TRADE CONDITIONS.

Discussing trade conditions, Dun's Review says in its issue of to-day:

Recent mild weather might have been expected to retard business, but freight blockades and several similar conditions testify to the contrary, and the last half of the week brought a seasonable fall in temperature. Higher rates for money tend to prevent excesses in Wall Street, yet there is no difficulty in securing funds for mercantile undertakings. In some cities Fall trade has become more quiet, first necessities being covered, but supplementary orders are confidently awaited, especially in dry goods, of which stocks are not burdensome at any point. The first interest in holiday trade is noted, and this element promises to supply unprecedented business this year. Manufacturers are so fully occupied that contracts for early delivery cannot be considered in most cases, and the amount of business that will be carried over into 1906 will certainly eclipse all records.

⁂

Few reports regarding the iron and steel industry fail to indicate steady progress, although complaints are heard as to tin plates, which are in less active demand and cheaper, whereas operators are compelled to pay more money for bars. This instance is the exception, however, pig iron going freely into consumption, and the steel rail mills reckoning that orders carried over into the new year will be over 1,500,000 tons. Structural shapes are in practically the same condition, some mills only accepting contracts that do not call for delivery within six months.

Textile fabrics continue an important factor in the industrial development that is seen on all sides. In the primary markets prices for cotton goods tend upward in some cases, or are fully maintained at the recent advance. Strength becomes more conspicuous as contracts are placed that carry deliveries further into the future. The market is more completely bare of desirable cottons than in any recent year, and prospective purchasers are no longer reluctant to operate for subsequent shipments, recognizing the fact that the situation is not improving in this respect.

Bradstreet's says:

Cool weather, later than usual in arriving this year, has given a stimulus to retail trade throughout a wide area, and helped the already active jobbing trade through the medium of reorders. Much delayed business has also materialized through the lifting or abolition of quarantines throughout the central South. Further strength has likewise developed in iron and steel, which, though perhaps quieter so far as new business is concerned, are more firmly held, or show further advances. Premiums for quick delivery are now almost universal, and contracts far into 1906 are announced for both crude and finished products.

⁂

The only flaw in the situation at present—one, by the way, flowing from intense activity in all lines of industry—is the growing inability of the railroads to handle the freight traffic offering. This complaint is well-nigh universal. The grain movement in the Northwest would be larger and collections better if the eastward movement from the farms could be accommodated. In the West the movement of coal and coke is checked. Buffalo is a centre of congestion in the grain trade, and export business is seriously hampered. The lumber trade North and South sends complaints of delayed shipments, and the eastbound soft coal trade is likewise affected.

⁂

In wholesale lines the features are still the active demand for dry goods, clothing, shoes, rubber goods, lumber, hardware, building material, leather and hides, which are all bringing high, in some cases record, prices.

⁂

Bank clearings for the week ended with Oct. 12—$2,831,265,772—are 6 per cent. smaller than last week, but 15 per cent. in excess of last year. Exchanges outside of New York City total $1,035,410,537, 2 per cent. under last week, but 15 per cent. above last year.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Wall Street has evidently been wrong in attributing the principal initiative on the bull side of the stock market either to Mr. Morgan personally or to the so-called Morgan party. The Morgan interests doubtless have been somewhat optimistic all along, and have given the bull campaign some moral support, but it now appears that it is Jacob Field who really sustains the market, standing under it heroically when it is weak, bidding it up when he can, and saving the situation generally. On Thursday he personally bought nearly all of the American Locomotive offered at 60, ostensibly to help along the bull movement in that stock. Yesterday he took a hand unexpectedly in the Wisconsin Central movement, and when the preferred stock was selling at 64 he bid 65 for 25,000 shares. He might as well have bid for the whole capital stock, for all the danger there was of being landed with 25,000 shares in a block. That would be nearly a quarter of the preferred capital stock. Only a few days ago he was equally conspicuous in Southern Pacific, which he bulled to above 70. It would take altogether too much space to enumerate his activities in the last two or three weeks. This is just the kind of market in which Field is at his best—a dull, narrow, and professional market wherein one of Field's peculiar genius may in turn wheedle, bluff, and bulldoze the room crowd in a manner surprising to think of. He can turn a bigger line of stocks in a professional market than any other operator on the floor.

Once when United States Leather common was selling around 40, with a furious speculation going on in it, a broker, acting presumably for the pool, rushed in and bid 40 for any part of the capital stock. The prevailing quotation was an eighth or a quarter higher. Field happened to be in the crowd. "What's that?" he said. The bid was repeated: "Forty for any part of the capital stock!" This meant that the bidder was obliged to take any amount of Leather common up to the entire capital stock. Field, when there could no longer be any misunderstanding, cried: "Sold! Thirty-eight thousand shares." It was a trade. Nobody but Field and the other party to the transaction knew then or knows now for sure whether it was a bona fide trade or a meeting of manipulative orders, but Field has always said that the 38,000 shares represented stock that he had been accumulating for himself on the advance.

⁂

Trading in puts and calls began on Thursday on the Chicago Board of Trade, the Directors setting aside the smoking room to be used for that purpose between 1:30 and 2 P. M. Transactions in privileges were for a long time prohibited on the Chicago board. The put and call market was in Milwaukee. Now that the business has been restored to Chicago, memberships on the Milwaukee board are selling at a big discount. One sold on Thursday for $100. The best bid reported yesterday was $50.

⁂

A private wire message from Chicago says it is authoritatively stated there that no disbursement of the Pullman Company's surplus will be made at the approaching meeting. Notice of such an intention would have to be given in the call for the annual meeting, and also in soliciting proxies, and it has not been done in either case.

⁂

It was rumored yesterday that one or more banking institutions had been excluding from their loans an industrial stock which has recently been a very prominent feature of the market. This was probably the basis of a report that the pool handling the campaign in the stock had about reached the end of its financial resources. Discrimination in loans against such a stock does not necessarily spell disaster for the pool that is running the thing. For example, another industrial stock is known to have been thrown out of loans recently when it was selling around 30, and it has since sold above 40.

⁂

The so-called Hill following in the stock market is loyal beyond any other because it has been permitted to make a great deal of money.

⁂

Well-informed foreign houses report that a very large bull account in American securities is being carried in London for American speculators. The extent of this account, of course, can be estimated only roughly, but it is large enough to make many foreign observers of this market feel a little dubious about following the high-priced stocks any further. The best buying recently for foreign account has been in low-priced American railroad stocks, and this continues steadily, irrespective of immediate speculative conditions.

⁂

The ease with which prices are advanced by a moderate amount of aggressive buying and the corresponding ease with which they fall when real stocks appear in any volume, or when the professional element is in a selling mood, are equally indicative of an extremely narrow market. The more aggressive of the professional traders seemed inclined yesterday to hold to the bull side and work for a further recovery in prices, believing still, as on Thursday, that Wednesday's decline had been a little too violent, and that a number of stocks were oversold. The market opened with an exhibition of considerable strength, and without any quantity of stocks in sight, and further recoveries of ½ to 1½ per cent. occurred throughout the active list. Prices closed generally at the highest eighths of the day. It is for the "volume sharps" to determine what significance, if any, attaches to the fact that on yesterday's advance the volume of trading fell off very perceptibly. It was the dullest session in several weeks, transactions approximating only 400,000 shares. There was hardly any outside business. The trading was of a highly professional character from beginning to end. Brokers complained that there was no market.

⁂

"The market," one dissatisfied broker observed yesterday, "reminds me of Jim Fisk's graveyard. Those who were in couldn't get out, and those who were out didn't want to get in. I don't say exactly that people cannot get out of this market, but my experience is that it is tedious work to sell a line of long stocks, and certainly it is very much like the graveyard in the respect that people who are out are not at all anxious to get in. I have been all day working off 1,000 shares of a stock which has had the appearance of being very strong. I can only say that they took my stock reluctantly. That may not mean anything at all. I had the same experience a few weeks ago with another high-priced stock, and the next day it advanced 5 points. What you may say, and be sure of, is that it is a very narrow market to do business in."

⁂

There was evidently some pressure upon Reading yesterday forenoon, as there has been off and on for several weeks. The heaviest concentrated selling yesterday was that of John Wallace, who sold in all about 15,000 shares. He seemed to have three selling orders of 5,000 shares each. Under this and some other selling from miscellaneous sources the stock declined to 120⅝, and for several hours was the weakest feature of the whole active list. In the afternoon, however, it recovered to 121¾, and closed at a net advance of ¾ per cent. One report about yesterday's selling was that it came from the Wasserman crowd and was probably for the account of the pool. The actions of the stock after the selling stopped did not indicate that the pool had been liquidating. Reading common is constantly pointed out as an example of a dividend-paying stock that has been advanced much beyond the price at which it is theoretically entitled to sell, yielding at 120 only 3 1-3 per cent., with money worth 5 to 6 per cent. in the open market. There is reason to believe that the high level at which the stock is selling is a source of annoyance to conservative interests in the property. The bull crowd which has made so much money in the stock, however, is still very confident of its position, and, what is more, it is apparently willing to take stock when it is offered for sale. One thing that is helping to support the market for Reading is the existence of an obstinate short interest.

⁂

The real origin of this movement in American Locomotive common is successfully concealed from the Street. A great mystery is made of the matter. The stock was put to 61 yesterday morning, the highest price so far reached on this advance. It became less active after the first hour, but closed at a recession of only ¼ per cent. from the top. A Philadelphia crowd has been very active in the stock recently, and a lot of the bullish information so freely disseminated has come from a speculative house having a large professional following here and in Philadelphia. It is often referred to as a Philadelphia house, but it has also the business of several members of the so-called uptown crowd. In the uptown places where the professionals foregather at night American Locomotive has been bulled for several weeks. Field has been one of the most active bulls in it. Everybody who is at all interested denies that the Hoadley crowd has had anything to do with this movement. Thursday's rumors of an early dividend on the stock were followed yesterday by intimation seemingly authentic, that dividends are not to be thought of this year.

TRADING IN BALTIMORE.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 13.—Trading to-day was quiet, with the greater part of the attention of the brokers converging upon the class of investment bonds that have been the backbone of the market for the last week. Prices generally were unchanged to a fraction higher, with the maximum advance of the morning call made by City stock. Small lots of Gottlieb-Bauernschmidt-Strause Brewing Company common changed hands at a small gain. On the bond list Seaboard 4s opened steady at 89⅞, advancing later to 90. Atlantic Coast Line of Connecticut new 4s certificates were ¼ higher, City 3½s (1940) sold up ¾. In the stock list Consolidated Gas sold ½ up. United Railways pooled stock declined 1 point. The market closed dull and steady; Shares, 1,328; bonds, $103,000.

Weekly Failure Report.

Bradstreet's reports 183 failures in the United States during the week against 189 for the previous week and 196, 203, 203, and 198 for the corresponding weeks of 1904 to 1901. The Middle States had 67, New England 31, Southern 32, Western 25, Northwestern 7, Pacific 20, and Territories 1. Canada had 31 against 25 for the preceding week. About 91 per cent. of the total number of concerns failing had capital of $5,000 or less and 7 per cent. had from $5,000 to $20,000 capital.

DOMESTIC PRODUCT EXPORTS.

Figures for September Less Than for Same Month Last Year.

Exports of domestic products for September according to figures made public yesterday by the Bureau of Statistics of the Department of Commerce and Labor, showed an increase of more than $20,000,000 over August but a decrease of $3,445,870 compared with September, 1904. The principal changes were in breadstuffs and cotton. The former showed an increase of $6,560,328 while the cotton exports were smaller by $10,952,669.

The figures for September last and the corresponding month last year compare as follows:

	1905.	1904.
Breadstuffs	$12,980,243	$6,419,915
Cattle, hogs, and sheep	3,110,117	3,115,670
Provisions	12,799,893	11,984,842

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 13.—The principal local features to-day were the movements in Reading and Lehigh Valley, both of which developed considerable strength, the last named early advancing over a point. It reacted on the announcement that 4 per cent. bonds would be issued for the Coxe Brothers properties, as rumors had been current of a new stock issue, but the closing was firmer, on the belief that the public has not fully realized the importance to the anthracite trade of the purchase, which was ratified at to-day's meeting of the Lehigh Valley Board of Directors. While New York sold Reading, a local house which has been persistently buying the stock continued its purchases, in the local and New York market alike. Delaware Insurance stock was up 1½ points; otherwise there was little change in prices. Total sales, 29,989 shares, $76,800 bonds.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

APPELLATE DIVISION OF THE SUPREME Court, First Department.—In the matter of the Application of the Board of Rapid Transit Railroad Commissioners for the City of New York for the Appointment of Three Commissioners to Determine Whether a Rapid Transit Railway or Railways ought to be Constructed and Operated. Modification of Park Avenue Section.—Notice.

To all persons who have subsequent to the 21st day of February, 1900, owned any premises abutting on Park Avenue, between 34th and 41st Streets, in the Borough of Manhattan, in the City of New York, or their legal representatives:

Pursuant to an order made by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court of the State of New York, for the First Department, on the 12th day of May, 1905, and entered in the office of the Clerk of said Court on the 7th day of September, 1905, notice is hereby given as follows:

1. That the Court has appointed the undersigned referee to take testimony, and to report to the said Court the same, with his opinion as to the amounts of damages, if any, which at any time prior to the hearing before the undersigned have been respectively sustained by owners of real property abutting on the easterly side of Park Avenue, between 34th and 41st Streets, in the Borough of Manhattan, in the City of New York, by reason of the construction of the easterly tunnel section of said railway.

2. Claims for such damages must be presented, in form as hereinafter prescribed, to the undersigned referee at his office, No. 20 Liberty Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, in the City of New York, on or before the 21st day of October, 1905, at 12 o'clock noon. No claims not so presented will be considered.

3. Such claims must be presented in writing, subscribed and verified under oath, by the claimant or claimants, or by his, her, or their authorized representative or representatives. The claim must set forth the items of damage with the nature and amount thereof fully and intelligently stated, and must contain a stipulation by the claimant or claimants that any notice with respect to the claim may, in the proceeding before the referee, or in the said Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, be served by personal delivery of a copy thereof at an office within the City of New York, or by mailing a copy thereof, postage prepaid, addressed to the said office.

New York, September 18th, 1905.
ALTON B. PARKER, Referee.

LEHIGH ROAD ANNOUNCES COXE BROTHERS' SALE

Acquires the Largest Independent Hard Coal Property.

TO ISSUE $19,000,000 BONDS

Transfer Which Was Denied Last Week Reported Officially—Operators Have Paid 9 Per Cent. on Stock.

The Lehigh Valley Railroad acquired yesterday the corporation of Coxe Brothers & Co., the largest independent producers of coal in the anthracite district. The report that the holdings of Coxe Brothers & Co. had been sold to the Lehigh Valley was published in THE NEW YORK TIMES a week ago, but was denied at that time by the officers of the concern. Yesterday an official announcement was issued by the Lehigh Valley Railroad as follows:

"The Board of Directors of the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company, at a special meeting held this day at the office of the company, in Philadelphia, authorized and confirmed the purchase of the entire capital stocks of Coxe Brothers & Co., Incorporated, the Delaware Susquehanna and Schuylkill Railroad Company and the allied water companies, the Drifton Water Company, Beaver Meadow Water Company, Tomhicken Water Company, and the Oneida Water Company.

"The purchase of these stocks carries with it the ownership of all the collieries and mine properties of Coxe Brothers & Co., Incorporated, including over 1,100 miners' houses, all the real estate of that company in Chicago and Milwaukee, and the floating equipment in New York harbor, as well as the railroad of the Delaware, Susquehanna and Schuylkill Company, with a mileage of 76.51, together with the shops and equipment of 23 locomotives, approximately 2,100 coal cars, passenger coaches, and work cars.

"The companies were purchased as a going concern, including coal mined and on hand, together with all railroad and mine supplies. All of these properties are free and clear of any mortgage or incumbrance whatever.

"The consideration to be paid for the properties is to be provided for by an issue of collateral trust bonds, to be secured by pledge of the stocks of Coxe Brothers & Co., Incorporated, and the Delaware, Susquehanna and Schuylkill Railroad Company. A portion of these bonds will be retired annually, commencing with 1907.

"The Lehigh Valley interests will enter into possession of the properties on Nov. 1, 1905. Coxe Brothers & Co., Incorporated, is the largest individual operator in the anthracite field, with an annual capacity exceeding 2,000,000 tons."

According to reports in Wall Street yesterday, the Lehigh Valley Railroad, in connection with the purchase of Coxe Brothers & Co., will issue $19,0000,000 of collateral trust 4 per cent. bonds. The outstanding capital stock of Coxe Brothers & Co. is $2,910,150. The company earned last year $5,057,556 gross and paid 9 per cent. dividends. Its total surplus at the close of the year was $2,607,909.

The Delaware, Susquehanna & Schuylkill is capitalized at $1,500,000 and pays dividends of 6 per cent.

Coxe Brothers & Co. last year mined 1,243,706 tons of coal, of which 1,022,191 tons were shipped from the mines. A. B. Coxe was elected a Director of the Lehigh Valley Railroad last January.

WORLD'S COTTON SUPPLY.

More Than One-third the Entire Total Held in the United States.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 13.—Secretary Hester's statement of the world's visible supply of cotton, issued to-day, shows the total to be 3,326,472, against 3,090,704 last week and 2,416,291 last year. Of this the total of American cotton is 2,589,572, against 2,351,704 last week and 1,917,291 last year. Of all other kinds, including Egypt, Brazil, India, &c., 737,000, against 739,000 last week and 499,000 last year.

Of the world's visible supply of cotton there is now afloat and held in Great Britain and Continental Europe 1,579,000, against 1,235,000 last year; in Egypt 58,000, against 72,000 last year; in India, 431,000, against 225,000 last year, and in the United States 1,256,000, against 884,000 last year.

WANT BEETS ON FREE LIST.

Sugar Manufacturers Say They Need the Canadian Product.

The movement begun by the beet sugar manufacturers of this country for lower duty or free entry of Canadian beets to supply their factories in the Middle West took definite form yesterday when a test case standing in the name of the Marine Sugar Company of Marine City, Mich., came before the Board of United States General Appraisers for a hearing. The Treasury Department has been assessing the beets at 25 per cent. ad valorem on the ground that they are vegetables in their natural state within the meaning of the Dingley tariff law.

The manufacturers assert that if the beets are not free of duty as crude vegetable substances they are dutiable at only 10 per cent. under the provision in the law for unenumerated unmanufactured articles. The burden of the argument submitted in behalf of the Marine Sugar Company was that not enough beets are grown in this country to supply the domestic factories.

Already three factories have been obliged to close for lack of material, and the board was told that lower duties or free entry must be granted if the same fate is not to overtake other manufacturing concerns. After listening to oral arguments by counsel for the importers and the Government, affidavits were submitted. An adjournment was then taken to Dec. 6.

AIR LINE TO ISSUE BONDS.

Stockholders of Boston and New York Company Called to Meet.

A special meeting of stockholders of the Boston and New York Air Line Railway Company has been called to ratify a proposed issue of $5,000,000 of bonds. The Air Line is part of the New York, New Haven and Hartford system. It runs from New Haven to Willimantic, a distance of 52 miles. Most of the road is a single track line, but among the improvements contemplated by the New Haven is the double-tracking of this section of its line.

Of the $2,998,500 preferred stock of the Boston and New York Air Line, the New York, New Haven and Hartford owns $1,702,125, and in addition it holds all but $147,100 of the $898,500 of common stock. The road is leased to the New Haven for 99 years from 1882 for an annual rental equivalent to interest on the bonds and 4 per cent on the preferred stock.

Mercantile Marine's Rise Feature of Curb Market.

The Preferred Made Net Gain of 1⅞—The Common Gained, Too—Chicago Subway Weak—Standard Oil at 671.

The sudden rise in Mercantile Marine preferred was the feature of curb operations yesterday. Reports of increased earnings and decreased expenditures were undoubtedly responsible for the spurt. Opening at 34½, the preferred moved rapidly to 36¾ and reacted to 36½. The total sales amounted to 12,500 shares. The upward movement in the preferred was reflected in the common, which closed with a net gain of ¼. Again Chicago Subway was weak, unable ever to rise above 53¼; it closed at 52¾. Altogether about 9,000 shares of it were sold. Greene Copper, under transactions of over 6,000 shares, was strong around 27 and closed at 27¼. Standard Oil's high and closing figure was 671. Interborough closed at 213½. Otis Elevator at 108, American Tobacco at 350, and Great Northern rights at 36.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Oct. 13.—The local money market is slightly easier. The usual table of rates, &c., follows:

Call loans, 6 per cent.; time loans on collateral, 4½@5 per cent.; time loans on mercantile paper, 5 per cent.; Clearing House loans, 5 per cent.; New York funds, 5@10c discount; clearings, $28,625,812; balances, $2,037,441; Sub-Treasury debit, $79,874.

The copper share market has taken on renewed life with a few new features added. This morning Greene Consolidated was the feature, and was very active and strong. This was followed by a further advance in the price of Allouez and later in the day Boston Consolidated became the feature, getting on a new high level. The market continued active and strong until the closing, which was around the highest prices of the day. Complete list of transactions:

CURRENCY MOVEMENT.

Discussing the week's movement of currency, The Wall Street Journal says in its issue of to-day:

The reported movements of currency this week indicate a nominal loss in cash held by the banks of $55,200. The report, however, does not include the $2,600,000 gold received by the National City Bank from London by the Deutschland on Thursday, payment for which was made by the Assay Offices on Friday. This amount will count for one day's average in the bank statement.

The banks received from the interior $4,413,500 and shipped to the interior $4,024,700, including $300,000 transferred through the Sub-Treasury to St. Louis and $1,129,000 National bank notes sent to Washington for redemption. The gain from the interior was $388,800, being the first gain from the interior since the week ended Aug. 3.

The receipts of new gold were $2,712,900, namely: Gold imports, $1,402,000; by New York Assay Office checks, $667,900; San Francisco Mint checks, $83,400; Seattle Assay Office checks, $559,600.

Ordinary disbursements by the Sub-Treasury were $20,357,100. Payments by banks to the Sub-Treasury for customs, internal revenue, 5 per cent. redemption fund, &c., were $23,514,000. The loss on Sub-Treasury operations proper was $3,156,900.

The total gain from the interior and by new gold was $3,101,700. Deducting this from the loss to the Sub-Treasury, the net loss was $55,200.

The gain this week from the interior shows that the West has received about all the currency needed from New York for this year's crop movement. The demand from the South has been light and there is a possibility which may soon become a probability that before the South needs any large amounts of money for the cotton and sugar crops currency will be returning to New York from the West.

The loss on Sub-Treasury operations proper is smaller than that for either of the last two weeks, partly on account of heavier disbursements at the beginning of a quarter. Most of the loss may still be attributed to transfers of internal revenue and payments into the 5 per cent. redemption fund for out-of-town banks. Customs collections were very large, being $4,352,900, comparing with $3,055,900 in the preceding week. Pension payments were nearly $1,000,000 larger than in the preceding week, being $1,436,000, comparing with $440,000 the last week.

The Sub-Treasury received from banks and sent to Washington for redemption $5,027,000 mutilated currency.

Financial Notes.

The Pacific Coast Company has applied to list on the Stock Exchange $9,500 additional first preferred stock, $85,600 additional second preferred stock, $190,400 additional common stock, and $554,000 additional first mortgage 5 per cent. bonds of 1946.

The Metropolitan Street Railway Company has applied to the Stock Exchange to list $2,284,000 additional refunding 100-year 4 per cent. bonds of 2002.

A representative of the Standard Oil Company said yesterday that he knew nothing about the reported purchase of oil lands in Japan. The story came to New York on one of the Standard Oil boats.

A. Norden & Co. estimate the cotton crop at 11,500,000 bales, admitting "the possibility that the yield may be greatly increased if we do not have a killing frost before the middle of November."

THE COMMERCIAL WORLD

WHEAT.—The trade was undecided at the close of the market yesterday whether the break in prices was a result of design on the part of the bull leaders in hopes of driving out a lot of weak company, or was the result of successful bear pressure and a weakening of the bull position. Final prices in New York were ½c net lower and nearly 1c under the highest point of the day. The only strength in the market came right after the opening, when prices were advanced by bull support and reports of a good cash demand, especially at Minneapolis. The latter market, however, was weak as to options and exerted a depressing effect elsewhere throughout the day. The sharpest declines occurred in the last hour, when a lot of wheat came on the market for stop loss account. Commission houses were free sellers at times, and it was intimated that the leading bull, while openly buying, was again putting out wheat through commission houses. Foreign markets cut little figure, as Liverpool was only ⅛d net higher, Paris 5 to 15 points higher, and Budapest 2 points up. Broomhall reported that Argentine shipments were 656,000 bushels, compared with 640,000 bushels the previous week, and said Argentine crops were making excellent progress under favorable weather conditions, with the wheat promise satisfactory. Northwest receipts increased somewhat, reaching 867 cars, and the Minneapolis stock will show an increase for the week of 1,300,000 bushels. Total interior receipts were 1,347,000 bushels, or within 10,000 bushels of last year's total. The Modern Miller report was considered a standoff and had very little effect on the market. No. 2 red in New York closed 89⅝c elevator and 90⅝c free on board afloat; No. 1 Northern Duluth 91⅝c, and No. 1 Northern Manitoba 92⅝c free on board afloat. Exporters bought 5 loads.

CORN.—The local corn market, because of the unsettled conditions at Buffalo, was steady all day and closed partly ⅛c net higher. At the West, however, the fine weather and scattered selling by commission houses caused an easier market, except for a brief rally in the last hour, due to predictions for rains and lower temperatures. Liverpool was unchanged, and Argentine shipments, according to Broomhall, aggregated 951,000 bushels, compared with 1,560,000 bushels the previous week, although larger than Thursday's estimate. A prominent Minneapolis authority estimated the crop at 2,521,987,000 bushels; or about 200,000 bushels less than the Government figures this month. A rumor that a car of new No. 2 corn had been received from Southern Illinois helped weaken the market at midday. The export business amounted to 10 loads. No. 2 corn closed 62c nominal in elevator and 62c free on board afloat; No. 2 white and yellow nominal.

COTTON.—The cotton market was firm early in the day on covering and buying for a turn, but toward the close it reacted sharply under fresh bear pressure and liquidation, with final prices within 2 or 3 points of the lowest, at a net decline of from 2 to 4 points. Sales were estimated at 350,000 bales.

The opening was steady at unchanged prices to an advance of 2 points in response to steady cables, but the weather map indicated higher temperatures throughout the belt, and with local sentiment bearish prices soon sagged off to a net decline of from 4 to 5 points. This was followed by a rally on covering, and during the middle session the market showed considerable firmness on predictions for unsettled weather in the belt over Sunday, and fears that the cold wave reported northwest of the cotton country would work downward following the rains forecasted for the next twenty-four hours. The advance was also assisted by reports of small interior offerings. But after working up to a net advance of from 11 to 13 points, or around 9.99 for January, offerings increased and the market weakened rapidly. The close was barely steady at the decline.

Southern spot markets, according to official reports, were 1-16c lower to ⅛c higher. Mobile reported fair sales—3,000 bales, at the decline of 1-16c. The Liverpool market was influenced after a lower opening by American buying orders, and reports of small Southern offerings, and closed at a net advance of 4 points. The English spot market was 2 points lower, but there were sales of 10,000 bales at the decline. Only three points reported frost, according to the early map—Macon, Atlanta, and Montgomery—and in these districts temperatures ranged from 44 to 48 degrees.

The local market for spot cotton closed quiet and unchanged on the basis of 10.10c for middling upland, and 10.35c for middling Gulf. No sales were reported; deliveries on contract, 200 bales. Southern spot markets were telegraphed as follows: Mobile steady, 1-16c lower, at 9 9-16c, sales 3,000 bales; Savannah dull, unchanged, at 9⅝c, sales 762 bales; Norfolk firm, ⅛c higher, at 9¾c, sales 231 bales; Baltimore nominally ⅛c higher, at 10c, sales nil; St. Louis quiet, unchanged, at 10⅛c, sales nil; Augusta firm, 1-16c higher, at 9 11-16c, sales 1,318 bales; Charleston quiet, unchanged, at 9½c, sales nil; Galveston quiet, ⅛c lower, at 9⅞c, sales 300 bales; New Orleans firm, 1-16c higher, at 9⅞c, sales 3,250 bales; Wilmington steady, unchanged, at 9½c, sales nil. Estimated receipts at leading points: At Houston, 16,500 bales to 17,500, against 17,791 last week, and 12,070 last year; at Galveston, 21,000 to 23,000, against 24,765 last week, and 14,081 last year, and at New Orleans, 5,500 to 6,500, against 5,646 last week, and 10,188 last year.

LIVERPOOL, Oct. 13.—Spot cotton in good demand; sales, 10,000 bales; speculation and export, 500 bales; American, 9,000 bales; receipts, 9,000 bales, all American; middling upland, 5.32d. Futures opened steady, 2 points lower; closed steady at a net advance of 4 points; October and October and November, 5.24d; November and December, 5.28d; December and January, 5.32d; January and February, 5.35d; February and March, 5.37d; March and April, 5.40d; April and May, 5.42d; May and June, 5.44d; June and July, 5.46d; July and August, 5.47d. Manchester—Yarns dull; cloths quiet.

COFFEE.—Opening steady at unchanged prices to a decline of 5 points, the coffee market ruled rather easy under liquidation by near-by longs and closed steady but at a net loss of 10@15 points. Sales were reported of 39,750 bags. No actual switches were reported, but the character of the business seemed to indicate that all Street longs were selling December, and in some instances buying the later months. Trade interests operated both ways, buying near months and selling the later positions. It seemed considered that the December position was the main influence against the market. It is believed that a large interest is outstanding in that position and fresh support is undoubtedly restricted to some extent for fear that speculative longs in evening up will cause depression. The day's general news was not particularly influential. Cables were fairly steady early, but weakened after the local opening with Havre closing ¼@½ franc lower, and Hamburg closed about unchanged. It was a holiday in the Brazilian markets on Thursday, and about the only cable received was that giving Sao Paulo receipts for the day at 46,920 bags against 51,200 last year. New York warehouse deliveries showed a little improvement, reaching 12,328 bags on Thursday, against 23,521 last year.

The market for spot coffee was quiet with quotations on the basis of 8 11-16c for Rio No. 7.

Say Gelberg Is Insolvent.

A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Israel Gelberg, manufacturer of iron bedsteads, at 21 First Street, by the following creditors: Barnet Bennan, $270; Ike Bloom, $127, and Benjamin Davis, $120. It was alleged that he is insolvent, has concealed and removed the greater part of his stock, transferred all his accounts to Morganstein & Benker, to prefer them, and gave a chattel mortgage for $1,000 to J. Handleman, a brother-in-law. Mr. Gelberg has been in business since 1898.

BANKRUPTCY AUCTION SALES.

BY ORDER OF THE UNITED STATES District Court, the assets of BERGER & WEISS, bankrupts, will be sold at public auction to the highest bidders under the rules of this court on the 20th day of October, 1905, at 11 A. M., the assets consisting of liquor store and its contents at No. 6 Riverdale Av., Yonkers, N. Y. The assets will first be offered to be sold free and clear of all chattel mortgages, also to include the lease and license to the said premises. If the sale does not bring a satisfactory price when sold in the above manner the said property will be sold to the highest bidder, subject to a chattel mortgage covering the fixtures, &c., held by the Ebling Brewing Co., amounting to $1,100.
If enough is not realized, then all the right, title, and interest to the bankrupts in and to the property, lease, and fixtures covered by the chattel mortgage will be sold to the highest bidder, the assets not covered by the chattel mortgage will also be sold in lots to the highest bidders.
Said stock can be inspected at the above address on Oct. 19th and 20th between the hours of 9 A. M. and 5 P. M.
For further information address or call on the undersigned receiver or his attorneys.
HENRY M. BAIRD, Jr., Receiver.
ENGEL, ENGEL & OPPENHEIMER, Attorneys for Receiver, 132 Nassau St., city.
The above sale is the adjourned public sale which was to be held on Oct. 16th, and is set for the 20th, awaiting the confirmation of the private sale by the United States District Court.
